Hussein Cuts Short Talks With Egyptian Leader

CAIRO (AP) — King Hussein, trying to mediate the Arab dispute over President Anwar Sadat's peace overtures to Israel, unexpectedly returned to Jordan today after his talks with Sadat were cut short.

Syrian President Hafez Assad, meanwhile, toured the Persian Gulf trying to get Sadat's bankrollers to use financial pressure to stifle the Egyptian leader's one-man peace campaign.

In Brussels, Belgium, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said before leaving on his own Middle East tour that Sadat's planned Cairo peace talks next week could lead to "an agreement in principle covering a comprehensive settlement."

He said Washington and Moscow are deeply divided over the talks. "I do not believe they (the Russians) would support in any way the Cairo conference," he said.

Vance, who spoke with reporters at the end of a meeting of Atlantic alliance foreign ministers, was scheduled to arrive in Cairo later today.

Sadat and Hussein met for 2½ hours Thursday night, and Egyptian newspapers and Jordanian diplomats said the talks were to resume today.

But 10 minutes after a grimlooking Sadat arrived at Kubbeh Palace for the expected meeting today, the two rode off to Cairo airport and the Jordanian monarch flew home.

This prompted speculation that Hussein's mission had failed, at least for the moment. He had met Wednesday with Syria's Assad with no apparent results.

Assad arrived in Kuwait today from Riyadh, where he met Thursday with King Khaled of Saudi Arabia and Crown Prince Fahd, the Saudi prime minister. Saudi Arabia is the chief contributor of oil wealth to impoverished Egypt.

There was no indication the Syrian president had succeeded in getting Khaled and Fahd to put pressure on Sadat by threatening to cut off crucial financial support.

After Assad departed, the Saudi information minister, Mohammed Abdo Yamani, said King Khaled has "expressed hope that Allah will help the Arabs reunify their ranks and achieve their aspirations."

The Syrian president was going on Saturday to Qatar, another oil-rich state on the Persian Gulf.

A leading Egyptian newspaper editor who accompanied Sadat on his historic trip to Jerusalem told a news conference in New York that Saudi Arabia and Kuwait both approved of the Egyptian leader's strategy.

"I have read letters between President Sadat and King Khaled," said Moussa Sabri, editor-in-chief of Al Akhbar. "I know that there were many contacts between President Sadat and Saudi Arabia. Saudi Arabia is backing the visit. So are Kuwait, the Gulf coast, Sudan, the Emirates, Morocco and Tunisia."

"Syria will come back with Egypt because there is no alternative," the editor commented. "If the Syrians want to make war, they can't alone. If they are struggling for peace, we are struggling for peace."

Hussein, attempting to breach the gap between Assad and Sadat, came to Cairo Thursday from Damascus. The Syrian government press and radio reported he failed to shake Assad's opposition to the direct Israeli-Egyptian dialogue engineered by Sadat.

The king had been expected to follow Assad to Riyadh, but instead he went home to Amman. There was no explanation, and it was not known if he might go to Saudi Arabia later.

Preparations continued for the second stage of Sadat's peace initiative — talks opening in Cairo Wednesday between Egypt and Israel, along with U.S. and United Nations representatives, to make preparations for a general Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva.

Unconfirmed reports said Hussein might send an observer to the conference, but informed sources said he would hesitate to do so if that would threaten his relations with Assad.

Another mediator trying to bring Sadat and Assad together again, U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, was flying to Cairo today from a NATO meeting in Brussels. Officials said he was able to arouse only lukewarm support among America's European allies for the Egyptian-Israeli peace effort.

Board Upholds Action

By CRAIG ALLISON
Herald Staff Writer

The Circleville Board of Education met in regular session Thursday evening in the Board Offices on the first floor of the Junior High School. Board President Robert Johnson called the meeting to order at 7:40 p.m.

Before going through regular business, the Board heard from several parents whose daughters are members of the Tigerettes marching corps in the Circleville High School Band.

The parents brought before the Board the suspension of the Tigerettes as a marching group for the rest of the school year. The suspension came, according to Band Director Allen Howcroft, after the group changed the end of a marching routine at the Hillsboro football game without his prior knowledge or permission.

The parents stated that they were concerned that the suspension of the Tigerettes as a marching group for the remainder of this school year was too harsh a punishment for the deed that was done.

Howcroft was the first to speak. In his opening remarks, he stated that there had been a few different incidents of uniform problems with the Tigerette group during the past football season. One such occasion, according to Howcroft, was at the Wilmington-Circleville football game, when the group wore new uniforms that he had not seen until the night of the game. Howcroft stated that the girls failed to consult him during the procurement of the new uniforms. There was another incident of uniform change concerning hats, that again was done without consulting Howcroft, according to the band director.

"Before the Hillsboro football game," stated Howcroft, "the girls voted to change the routine at the end of their dance, and I was not consulted before the incident took place. I didn't say anything about it immediately, but rather I thought about it over that weekend at home," he stated. "At first I considered removing the young ladies from the band entirely, but after more thought on the matter, I decided to suspend the Tigerettes as a marching group for the remainder of this school year." According to Howcroft, the girls will be permitted to participate in the band, but not as a Tigerette group.

Parents speaking included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cullums, Mr. James Lockard, Mrs. Nancy Speakman, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Strawser. In similar remarks to the members of the Board, and speaking on behalf of their daughters, they stated to the Board that they felt the punishment given the girls for changing their routine without permission was too severe. They felt that there was a breakdown in communication, and some of them asked who the extra groups in the band (such as Tigerettes, color guard, and majorettes) finally answered to—Howcroft, Assistant Band Director Deborah Fannin, or co-captains within those individual marching units. Howcroft stated that he was in charge of all the separate marching units, and that routines, policies, and proper uniforms were all his ultimate responsibility.

Also speaking to the Board were Terry Agin, Janice Miller, Raymond Nance, and Betty Connell, all representing the Circleville Band Boosters. They all stressed to the Board the importance of firm discipline, and they informed the Board that the reputation of the Cir-

FBI Followed Every Tip In Kennedy Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — It all started when Allen Bressler and Edward Van Washenova opened the boxcar.

Like a small barn on wheels, it squatted on the railroad tracks in Newport, Mich., in the December cold 10 days after John F. Kennedy was killed in Dallas.

The boxcar was waiting for grain from Kahlbaum Brothers, a mill that contributed much to the economy of Newport and virtually all to the economy of Bressler and Van Washenova.

Their job was to get the boxcar ready for loading. But what the two saw inside brought them up short.

Before the day was out, their alarm would set in motion an intense, 72-hour effort by four FBI agents to trace the whereabouts of the boxcar during the previous eight months, find out who might have been inside, discover why he did what he did and learn what he knew about the murder of a president.

The hunt was typical of the dogged effort the FBI mounted in pursuit of almost every tip they got after Kennedy's assassination on Nov. 22, 1963.

Winning Ohio Lottery Numbers

The numbers drawn Thursday were: three-digit, 962; two-digit, 92; one-digit, 3, and six-digit, 928216.

Files made public this week, 14 years later, make some of the unsuccessful efforts look ridiculous.

When Bressler and Van Washenova opened the doors on New York Central Boxcar No. 124475, they saw printed on the wall in yellow chalk:

"Lee Oswald, Dallas Texas." The city and state were underlined.

Printed to the right were these words:

"Future man of destiny, Apr. 4, 1963."

That was eight months before the assassination. How did the writer know? Was this evidence of a conspiracy?

On the spot, Bressler and Van Washenova dropped any notion of filling the boxcar. They set out to find Harold McCormick, manager of the mill. They told him what they'd seen. Then they called the FBI.

The Detroit field office handled the tip. Agent Paul Costello went to Newport and talked to McCormick. The manager told him Boxcar 124475 was rolled up to the mill on Friday evening, Nov. 29 — seven days after Kennedy was shot.

Agent Costello walked out to the tracks. Inside the car, he found the writing. He also found this written in black:

"201 Southeast, 199 Portland, Oregon, U.S.A., North America, earth

Communists May Have Wanted Kennedy Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The late J. Edgar Hoover once said it was "entirely possible" that communists wanted to do away with John F. Kennedy because he was getting along too well with the Russians.

Six months after Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas by Lee Harvey Oswald, the FBI chief agreed with speculation that communists might have wanted to be rid of the president "so that this obstacle to their desired philosophy could be removed."

There was little elaboration on the remark, which was found among the 40,001 pages of FBI files on the Kennedy assassination opened this week to public view.

The reference was in the typed notes of an interview that Hoover granted to William Manchester, who had been commissioned by Kennedy's widow, Jacqueline, to write an account of the traumatic events surrounding the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination in Dallas.

"Manchester speculated that perhaps the communists, including Oswald, did not like the relationship between the late president and (Soviet Chairman Nikita) Khrushchev," the notes say. "The director replied that this was entirely possible ... The director told Manchester that he had always felt it better to kick individuals like Khrushchev on the shins once in a while rather than to boot-lick them."

The bulky FBI files show that detente between Russia and the United States apparently was first raised as a possible contributing motive for the assassination by Sanchez Bella, the Spanish ambassador to Italy.

Bella told reporters in Rome on Dec. 5, 1963 — 13 days after the Kennedy assassination — that Spain's intelligence services had established a possible link between Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, Oswald and the events in Dallas.

The ambassador cited Castro's concern about the improving relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union as a possible reason for wanting to see Kennedy killed.

Hoover said it was difficult to speculate on the motives of Oswald, whose interest in socialism and communism dated back to his mid-teens. Perhaps, Hoover mused, Oswald was aiming at Texas Gov. John Connally, a passenger in the presidential convertible who was seriously wounded by the assassin.

The 24-foot stack of papers released this week will be matched in January when the second half is made public. But still, skeptics of the Warren Report and its conclusion that Oswald acted alone were less than pleased.

"I'll wait until the next 40,000 pages come out," said Mark Lane, author of "Rush to Judgment."

And Harold Weisberg, who wrote seven books on the assassination while fighting to obtain the FBI documents, argued that the sheer bulk renders the material "indigestible by even the most competent, conscientious journalist."

Indeed, the size of the investigation,

the pursuit of the most tenuous of leads, the interviews with hundreds of people crosschecked and double-checked is more impressive than anything in the materials. The documents so far have revealed nothing to challenge the Warren Commission's conclusion that there was no conspiracy.

The FBI scoured the country for any clue to Oswald and to Jack Ruby, the night club owner who killed him. Any crank who made a report, any theory, no matter how remote or seemingly crackpot, was at least listened to — and often acted on. In June 1964, six months after the event, Hoover told Manchester that 50 FBI men were still on the case fulltime.

The FBI director was critical of the way the Dallas police handled the Kennedy assassination. He told Manchester if the FBI had taken custody of Oswald, he would never have been killed by Ruby.

FBI men obtained Oswald's psychiatric records when he was 13 and living in New York. He is revealed as a troubled, withdrawn child, a chronic truant, a youngster with an uncaring mother.

He became interested in the political left in those Cold War years and after he enlisted in the Marines, at age 17, the men who served with Oswald heard him speak sympathetically of communism.

A fellow Marine called him "Oswaldskovich" and he revealed in it.

In 1959 he went to Russia and met Marina, who became his wife. The FBI learned from her that she would never have married Oswald had she known he wanted to return to the United States.

When they did return, they began quarreling and she wanted a divorce because of his "crazy ideas and political opinions. Oswald was arrested after a fight in New Orleans while passing out leaflets for the 'Fair Play for Cuba Committee.' He took a shot at Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker and missed.

Struggles Over Amendments Hurt Social Security Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unexpected struggles over amendments are dashing hopes that Congress can complete action this year on a major increase in Social Security taxes.

Senate and House conferees, meeting separately on Thursday in hopes of resolving differences between the two chambers, found themselves farther apart than had been predicted, and a proposed compromise fell apart.

One congressional aide who is closely involved in writing a compromise bill estimated there is only one chance in five of reaching agreement today, as Democratic congressional leaders had anticipated.

Whatever is finally approved — whether this year or next — would mean higher payroll taxes for 107 million Americans and likely would triple the taxes paid by some workers over the next 10 years.

Social Security, which pays monthly benefits to 33 million Americans, is in trouble because of high unemployment, inflation and some overly generous benefits voted in 1972. The giant system is paying out more money in benefits than it is taking in through taxes.

Congress and the Carter administration would like to repair the damage before the 1978 election year.

On Wednesday and early Thursday, leaders of the Senate-House conference committee that is working on Social Security had sketched out a basic compromise on key issues.

They would have continued the traditional 50-50 employer-employee split of payroll taxes; raised the amount a pensioner may earn and still receive full Social Security benefits, and allowed a one-year income tax cut of up to $250 per student to help offset college costs.

But that proposed agreement fell apart later Thursday. And although some questions were raised about the basic Social Security issues, the big sticking point was a series of welfare amendments written by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance subcommittee on welfare.

The most important part of the Moynihan package is a $374 million grant to help states, cities and counties pay welfare costs over the next 10 months. The biggest single share of that money, $53 million, would go to Moynihan's home state, and most of that to financially ailing New York City.

At first, the Carter administration rejected any notion of tying the welfare amendments to Social Security. Carter aides feared the amendments would make it more difficult for Congress to approve the president's big welfare-revision package next year and might torpedo the Social Security bill.

But Moynihan convinced Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, to hold up final committee action on Social Security until Carter dropped opposition to the welfare amendments.

The Carter administration, noting Long's influence on tax revision, welfare, energy taxes and Social Security, reluctantly agreed to go along with the Moynihan amendments. But House members with influence of their own appeared adamantly opposed to the welfare provisions.

Weather

Travelers advisory continues in effect today and tonight. Very windy and much colder with periods of light snow today and tonight. Falling temperatures today, reaching the middle teens by afternoon and dropping to zero to five-below zero tonight. Very cold and mostly sunny with diminishing winds and temperatures from 10 to 15 degrees Saturday. Chances of precipitation, 60 percent today, 50 percent tonight and 20 percent Saturday. All roads in the area are extremely hazardous and drivers are urged to use extreme caution. Walking is also very dangerous as sidewalks are ice covered and slippery.

Market Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices put together a modest advance today, aided by signs that the dollar was stabilizing in foreign exchange markets.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 3.47 to 810.38 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said an upturn by the dollar which began on Thursday helped to lift traders' spirits.

The recent slump in the U.S. currency was regarded as a negative for the market since it is presumed to have discouraged foreign buying of stocks in this country.

Virginia Electric & Power was the most active NYSE issue, off 1/4 at 14 1/2.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped .52 to 806.91. But advances outnumbered declines by a 4-3 spread on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 20.40 billion shares against 21.05 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .09 to 51.37.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed .72 to 123.19.

Cleveland High School Band was "beyond reproach." "Everywhere our band travels, we get nothing but admiration and respect from other persons and other bands," they said.

Next to speak was CHS Principal Paul Sarchet, and Secondary Supervisor Rodger Wolfe. They stated that they felt Howcroft could have given a more drastic punishment in removing the girls from the band entirely, and they supported Howcroft both in the punishment and in the decision making process he used in arriving at that punishment.

Attendance at professional meetings was also approved for staff members. Doris Gillespie will attend "Ohio college bound students and financial aid" in Columbus on Dec. 15. Rodger Born will attend "Positive practices for principals" in Columbus Feb. 1-3.

The Board arranged for an organizational meeting on Wednesday, January 4, and they scheduled a special meeting for evaluation and goal setting for December 14 at noon. The Board gave approval to an administrator evaluation procedure to be adopted immediately. They also approved payment of dues for the Ohio School Board Association. The total of the payment was $600.

Also approved were investments and transfers from the clerk, along with various staff reports.

After discussing correspondence that had been received, the Board moved to reply to a particular letter as a Board. Johnson informed the Board that he had spoken to various professional and business groups, and encouraged other Board members to do the same if they had the chance.

Jean Droste was also welcomed as a new member of the Board. She will start her duties in January. Forrest Brown was also welcomed back for another term on the Board.

With all business finished, the Board adjourned at 10:15 p.m.

London Prisoners

Still At Ohio Pen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The old state penitentiary at Columbus still houses 343 prisoners transferred from the London Correctional Institute two weeks ago following a work stoppage.

The prisoners were sent here after corrections officials asked inmates whether they wanted to work, said corrections department spokesman George Lehner.

In the two weeks since the transfer, 60 hearings have been held to determine who should be returned to London, but nobody has gone back, said Lehner.

He described the prisoners' stoppage at London as a "sporadic work action ... that did not affect operations." Prisoners involved in the stoppage did not say what they wanted, Lehner said.

The transfer reduced the inmate population at London from 1,308 from the normal level of about 1,600 and increased the population at Columbus to about 1,500, he added.

Squirrel Finds

Warm Place

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A squirrel looking for a place to nestle on a cool West Texas morning found a warm spot, but he left a lot of other folks without electricity for a half hour.

Don Revell, district manager for West Texas Utility Company, said the squirrel was found on a voltage regulator Thursday, following a power failure downtown and in a residential area in this town of 95,000.

"We have that occasionally out here. Snakes and squirrels will climb up onto the transformers and trip the breakers," Revell said.

Cincinnati Puts Pressure On For ERA

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati City Council took a leadership role in economic sanctions against states which have not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment but only after making sure it would not cost the city federal funds.

Council barred officials and employees from going to conventions and seminars in states which have not ratified the ERA, unless they are conducting city business.

"Cities can help in exerting this economic pressure which may help speed ratification," said Councilwoman Bobbie Sterne, who will assume her second term as mayor in January 1979.

The council voted Wednesday to bar officials and city employees from attending conventions and seminars in the 15 states which have not ratified the ERA.

"The more people refuse to attend conventions in unratified states, the more national organizations will be encouraged to join the boycott," said Mrs. Sterne.

The measure was amended, however, when City Manager William Donaldson pointed out that representatives must go regularly to Chicago where regional headquarters are located for the Departments of Labor and Housing and Urban Development which supply federal funds. Illinois has not ratified the ERA.

The resolution was amended to limit such visits to official business only.

Minority Republican Councilman Guy Guckenberger called Mrs. Sterne's resolution "frivolous."

"Why don't we petition President Carter not to go back to Georgia since Georgia is one of the states that has not ratified ERA?" he asked.

"You're just saying that because you're a male," Mrs. Sterne answered. "I will plead my case for myself and all the other women in this country."

Guckenberger then changed his vote after approval of the amendment.

Councilman David Mann, the lone final dissenter, said he approves of the ERA but not economic measures to force it.

Icy Winds Send Snow Swirling Across Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raw icy winds sent fresh snow swirling across sections of the Midwest and Northeast today, stranding motorists on clogged highways and forcing schools and businesses to close.

Temperatures plummeted as the storm, born of a low pressure system in the Rockies and fed by frigid Arctic air, sliced through the nation's mid-section. In Dallas, the mercury dropped from a record high of 80 in mid-afternoon to 30 this morning. Temperatures were below the freezing mark in the Panhandle.

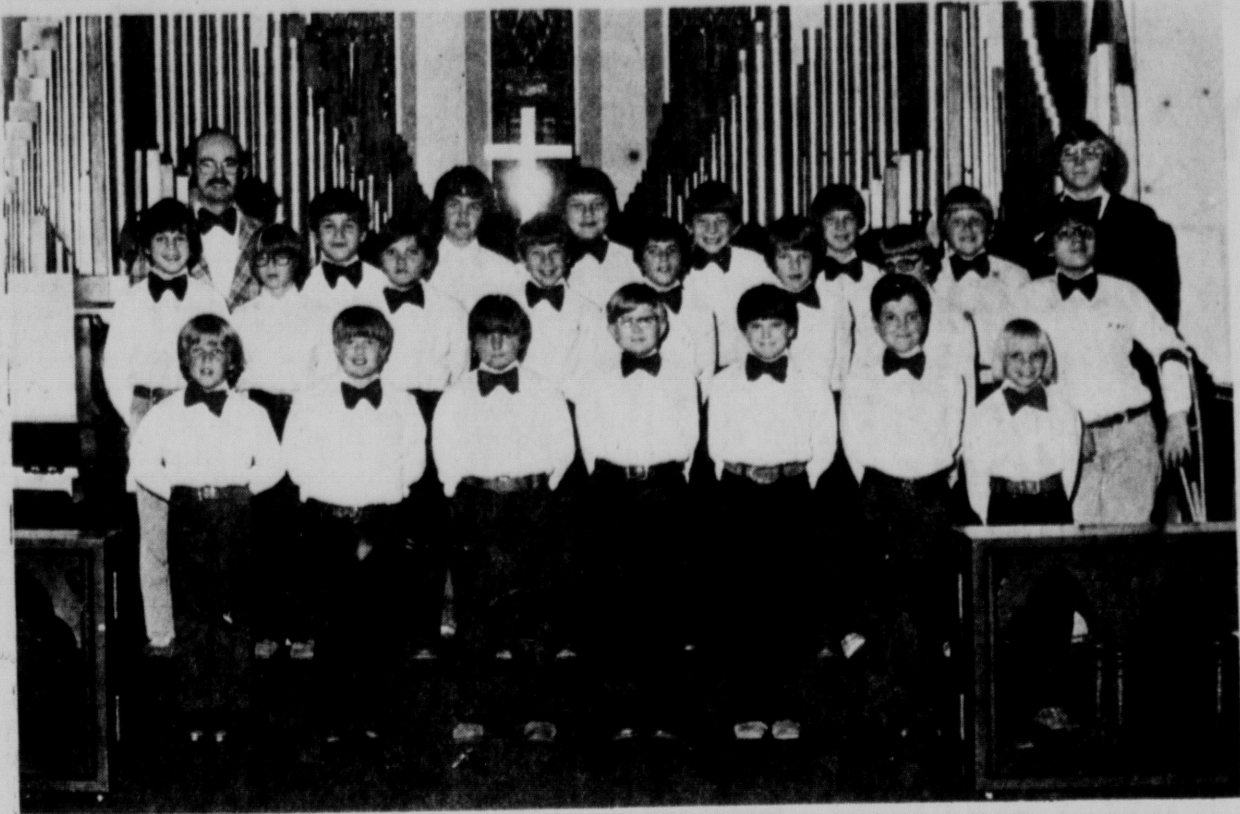

In the Dakotas, temperatures of 25 to 30 below zero combined with winds of 15 to 25 mph for wind-chill indexes of 60 to 80 below. Temperatures of 40 below were predicted today in both states.

"The freeways are a mess," said a Michigan state police dispatcher in Detroit on Thursday. "Rush-hour traffic is bad enough on a good day. Today it's horrible."

Dozens of abandoned cars lined freeway shoulders, most buried under snow from passing plows. Detroit's zero-degree reading Thursday set a record for the coldest Dec. 8 since 1882. The snow was blamed for the death of Lloyd Jakubos, 48, of Lapeer, Mich., in a crash on state route 24, state police said.

The new snow, added to the crusty accumulations of the past week, buried some communities in snow as deep as 36 inches.

Up to four more inches were forecast today for Michigan,

Cincinnati Bus Workers On Strike

CINCINNATI (AP) — Adament bus drivers and mechanics remained off the job, and no new talks were scheduled in the second day of Cincinnati's transit strike.

Gene Metz, president of Local 647, Amalgamated Transit Workers, said the union will demand binding arbitration to counter Queen City Metro's suggestion for partial arbitration.

Cincinnati schools reported 50 percent of the junior and senior high school students stayed home Thursday on the average. Transit officials said 26,000 of Cincinnati's 63,000 public school pupils ride buses.

Ironically, Cincinnati police reported very few traffic problems as more than 6,000 bus riders sought other means of transportation to work, school and shopping.

However, massive jams were reported in the heavily industrialized suburbs north of the city.

"The expected traffic problems were not the catastrophe predicted. In Cincinnati, a transit strike is not a catastrophe like in New York."

The normal bustle of Christmas shoppers was noticeably absent Thursday. Police also speculated that many people stayed home because of the predicted heavy snowfall which did not occur during the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Trego have returned from spending several days including, Thanksgiving Day, in Joliet, Ill., visiting with their daughter Ann and her family.

Our sympathy is with the Kessler family, Jeanie's Mother Katie Thomas Weber died last Thursday in Dublin, Ohio.

With the sick this week: Jessie Hill, a former resident of this vicinity was operated on at Riverside Hospital last Tuesday, Kate Bidwell had surgery in St. Anthony's last Thursday; Jodie Lawless is in Mt. Carmel for x-rays and tests; Fred Dountz, at home, was pushed into a wall by a cow last Friday and is suffering a broken rib and is pretty stoved up; Ross Bidwell was cutting some trees and had the misfortune of having one fall on him,

James Jacobs said students who cannot get to school will not be penalized for their absence if they bring a note from their parents when they return.

Meanwhile, Gene Metz, president of Local 627 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, predicted the strike, while unsanctioned by the union, "might be a long one."

no broken bones, but, he's not ready to run any foot races as yet; George Null (your local Postmaster) is in Grant Hospital in room 830 as of Saturday, he is in for tests and possible surgery soon.

The Orville Dountz's were honored last Saturday evening when their children and their families treated them to dinner at Clydes in German Village. The honored couple were celebrating their Wedding Anniversary. There were about 12 people in the party, so I'm sure they all had a very pleasant evening. Congratulations and many more Anniversaries to come.

Don't forget, you Senior Citizens the dinners at the church, if you do not have transportation to and from the church, just call the Methodist Church and they will provide you with transportation to and from Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Becker would like to invite you, the public, up to see their Christmas decorations at their home, both inside and out. If you would like to take pictures you are most welcome to do so.

Orville Raso is in Mount Carmel Hospital at this time. I hear he has pneumonia.

A Page Of Opinion

Happy Thought

If the ears of the nation's taxpayers are quivering more than usual these days, it could be because a number of people in high government offices are saying it soon will be time to reduce taxes. Like a dog in the vicinity of a juicy bone, otherwise bored citizens perk up when the subject is tax reduction.

The President said he will propose tax cuts early next year, even before he gets around to tax reform. Individual members of Congress have been voicing similar sentiments. None of them is advocating a comparable reduction in federal spending, which indicates an accepted part of the federal budget.

Since no specific tax reduction proposals have been presented as yet, no one knows what form they might take. The options are many. A permanent tax reduction could be accomplished simply by reducing tax tables a notch or two. A temporary reduction could come as a tax credit.

Or, the personal exemption of $750 now allowed the taxpayer and each dependent could be increased. The exemption has had an interesting history. When the first income tax law was adopted in 1913, each taxpayer was allowed an exemption of $3,000, plus an added $1,000 for all his dependents, collectively.

That meant each taxpayer with at least one dependent began his tax return with 4,000 in exempt income. Considering the income levels of 1913, few taxpayers paid any taxes at all. Sorry, not even the most optimistic tax cutter expects to see that day again.

Too Cheap

By JIM BISHOP

There is a word for Clement: cheap. He was bald and proper, a man with a blond mustache big enough to wax a car. He referred to himself as thrifty. There were two other tellers in that bank who would tell you that Clement was so tight his fingers squeaked when he paid bus fare.

He thought they were jealous. He dressed conservatively, always wrote the name "Calvin Coolidge" at all presidential elections, evinced the proper note of interest and amiability toward bank customers, and never dated a woman.

Two, he said, could not live as cheaply as one. Arithmetically, two could not live as cheaply as two even if the wife had a job. If she earned less than her husband, Clement intoned over his homemade cheese sandwich and glass of water, the husband would be operating at a loss.

No. No woman for Clement. He was indeed a male spinster. Of course, if some wealthy woman gave him a friendly smile, he might forget that he was 44 and over the hill. Happily, few women rich or poor ever glanced at Clement.

The bank employees barely nodded to Clement. A junior clerk named Leif Axelsen tried to make friends. He was rebuffed, but, being young, he thought that Clement was a lonely, middle-aged man.

"How about coming to dinner at my house?" Axelsen said. The head teller didn't give the invitation a count of two. "No, thank you," he said. "If I go to your house, it is only proper that I invite you to mine. No, Leif. I enjoy solitude. Besides, they say you have two noisy little children."

Those who pried were poor detectives. No one saw the man after hours. They knew he had a small apartment with shabby furniture left by his mother. They also knew that he saw a movie now and then because the theater manager left passes.

He told everyone that he would not buy a television set. "Instead," he said, "I have a library card." Young Axelsen shook his head. "What do you do with your salary?" he said. Clement sniffed. "I buy sound stocks."

He became the man nobody knew. The bank examiners arrived at irregular intervals. The veterans knew that it was a waste of time going over Clement's books because he was always balanced within a few cents.

In fact, the most exciting moment in 18 years occurred when an examiner dropped a ledger on a secretary's foot. The current years was different. The trees outside the bank were being stripped of russet and yellow leaves by a cold wind.

Clement had watched the examiners at work. At noon, he took his sandwich to the back room and asked Leif Axelsen to watch his cage and cash drawer until he returned. The young man was happy to pretend he was a teller.

When Clement returned, he barely had time to remove the "Next Window, Please" sign before he opened the cash drawer and emitted a shriek. "Somebody," he yelled, "has robbed the bank. Quick," he shouted to the policeman, "nobody in or out."

Customers froze. Bank officers came running. So did the examiners. They said that they had examined the cash, and it was intact. A little frantic counting, and it was obvious that almost $4,000 was gone.

It couldn't have been Clement. Everyone knew that. He hadn't left the premises. After much shouting of, "Be calm. Everybody quiet down," suspicion fell on Leif Axelsen. Clement moaned, "The truth is that the cash was all right when I left here for the back office. I asked Leif to watch this cage for me," he sighed. "He is the only one..." The police were called. Axelsen burst into tears. "Clement is right," he said. "I never stole a dime in my life and I haven't taken anything now. But it's true. I was the only person in that cage."

The young man was booked on suspicion of grand larceny. A lieutenant said, "I believe that Axelsen boy. I don't know why. He practically handed himself up to us." The lieutenant hung around the bank for days.

One afternoon he walked into Clement's cage grinning. "The case is solved," he said. "I thought you'd like to know." Clement hung his bald head. "I feel so sorry for his wife and children," he murmured.

"No," the cop said. "Save your pity for yourself. You took the money before lunch, shoved it into a bank envelope, and mailed it to your apartment. It has just come back, marked '13 cents in postage due.'"

Negotiators Okay Tax On Large Cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter can claim an important victory in congressional negotiators' approval of a tax on fuel-wasting cars. But a final agreement on the toughest energy problems seems as elusive as ever.

If accepted by a second conference committee and then by the House and Senate, the auto tax would cost buyers of inefficient 1979-model cars up to $550, a figure that would soar to as much as $3,850 on 1985 models.

The tax was approved Wednesday by the conference committee on energy taxes. Another part of the compromise approved by the committee would allow the 19 million motorists who itemize income tax deductions to continue to take a deduction for state and local gasoline taxes. The House had voted to end that tax break.

Even with those agreements, it seems unlikely that Congress will be able to wrap up work this year on Carter's energy program.

The two energy conference committees still face the toughest issues of all — the price of natural gas, a tax on domestic crude oil to force conservation and the distribution of revenues from that tax.

There appears to be a hardening of positions on key issues. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who supports Carter's House-approved plan to keep federal controls on the price of natural gas, said, "We have no leeway in our position, absolutely no flexibility."

Rep. Anthony Moffett, D-Conn., said an increasing number of House members "would certainly rather have no bill than to move too far toward deregulation" of natural gas prices, which is favored by the Senate.

And Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the chief Senate delegate at the tax committee, was sharply critical of the Carter administration for what he called its refusal to compromise on giving the oil and gas industry additional incentives to increase production.

The House-Senate panel considering natural gas faced another session today with little prospect of progress.

The tax panel, after approving the auto tax, adjourned until next week to give staff members time to work out some proposals for taxing factories and power plants that burn large amounts of oil or natural gas.

The vote on the auto tax was the first major agreement reached by the tax conferees in 11 days.

The tax is not expected to save a great deal of energy, only about 175,000 barrels of oil a day compared to current U.S. consumption of 18 million barrels a day. But backers view the tax as a highly visible tool to make Americans aware of the need to conserve fuel.

The tax would be paid directly by the buyer of any car that does not meet minimum standards. It would be in addition to a heavy fine on any manufacturer whose fleet of new cars did not meet mileage standards. While the manufacturer would have to pay that penalty, it would be passed along to customers as higher car prices.

School Financing Ruling Studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Board of Education will consider at its Monday meeting whether to appeal a common pleas court judge's ruling that the state's system for financing public schools is unconstitutional.

Judge Paul Riley threw out the equal yield formula, effective next July 1, in a Hamilton County Common Pleas Court ruling that it denies children equal protection of the law.

The formula, which requires districts to tax themselves above 20 mills to receive additional state funding, also was rendered unconstitutional because it does not permit children to attend schools in a "thorough and efficient system of common schools."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The confusion about arthritis, rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis is evident in the letters I receive from readers. Classification of arthritis and related disorders made by the American Rheumatism Association lists about one hundred variations, each of which has its own signs, symptoms and characteristics.

Arthritis and rheumatism are often wrongly substituted for each other. Arthritis is an inflammation, infection or change in any joint of the body.

Rheumatism is a vague term used to describe aches and pains and stiffness of the muscles, with or without involvement of the joints.

The two major classifications of arthritis are rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis. Rheumatoid arthritis is a chronic inflammation of the joints and the tissues around it. It occurs more frequently in women than in men and can begin to show evidence before 35. Even today, the exact cause is unknown. Although not all physicians agree with this concept of a "focus of infection" this is still considered a possibility.

Infections of the kidneys, the prostate, the gall bladder, the tonsils, the teeth and the sinuses are thought by some doctors to be the possible reason for the onset of rheumatoid arthritis. The symptoms of pain, swelling, tenderness of the joints in the fingers, the wrists, the knees, the feet, the ankles and the elbows characterize this form of arthritis.

Most sufferers are particularly distressed with the stiffness that occurs when they arise or after long periods of inactivity.

It is not surprising that mental depression and fatigue frequently accompany this and other forms of arthritis. Many complicated tests are available to establish the exact diagnosis.

Osteoarthritis, the cause of which is still unknown, is a chronic non-inflammatory disorder that involves the bones and the joints. Chiefly, this division affects the elderly, the obese and those who may have been subjected in their occupations to repeated injuries. Unlike rheumatoid arthritis, the pain of muscle spasms are more pronounced after moving about.

By a detailed history of the onset of the signs and symptoms of both conditions, and by the highly refined blood studies that are now available, the physician can distinguish between these two closely related, yet individualized forms of arthritis.

There is today great hope that the newly uncovered secrets about all forms of arthritis may yet lead to the prevention of these debilitating disorders. This is, of course, the ultimate hope. Today, the use of drugs and, in severe cases, the replacement of joints in the hip, the wrist and knee, are returning many of these courageous patients to a new life of serviceability and freedom from devastating pain.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It was viewed at first as another stratagem in the brewing competition between the nation's two biggest brewers, Anheuser-Busch, sometimes called the king, and Miller Brewing, a growing, aggressive marketer.

It appears now that the issues may be more than a tempest in a bottle.

Involved are accusations of deliberate misrepresentation and exploitation of consumers, and claims that the news media and a government agency are being "used."

On November 10, Anheuser-Busch filed with the Federal Trade Commission a request for an investigation of Miller, its parent, Philip Morris, Inc., and its advertising agency, McCann-Erickson Worldwide.

Miller, said A-B, has been improperly insinuating that Lowenbrau, a quality beer that it distributes, is the original imported product that connoisseurs have savored for nearly five centuries, when in fact Miller now brews it domestically.

McCann-Erickson declined to comment, but the response from Miller was immediate and spirited. "We find it incredible that the world's largest brewer would ask the FTC to protect them," it said, adding pointedly:

"It seems apparent that the crown on the King of Beers must be slipping."

But a study of the 32-page statement filed by A-B indicates that its accusations were motivated by more than, as Miller suggested, Lowenbrau's success in the "superpremium" market, where it competes with A-B Michelob.

Perhaps most importantly, AB claimed that domestic Lowenbrau isn't even the same beer that it said the consumer market was led to believe was a successor to that which was first tapped from a keg in 1383.

It isn't, said A-B, even the same beer that was recently imported from Germany, but which Miller now makes in the United States under a licensing agreement.

Contacted at the Lowenbrau Brewery in Germany, a spokesman seemed to concur. The domestic product he said, is "sort of a light beer that has been tested and found good for American tastes."

A-B listed these specifics in its

complaint:

1. German-brewed Lowenbrau is made with 100 per cent barley malt and no adjuncts. Domestic Lowenbrau is 72 per cent by weight barley malt and 28 per cent corn grits.

2. German-brewed Lowenbrau contains no non-natural additives. Domestic Lowenbrau contains potassium meta bisulfate, an antioxidant, and enzymatic chill-proofing compound, as well as kelcoloid to improve foam.

3. The German product is naturally carbonated, or krausened. The domestic brew is carbonated non-naturally by injection of carbon dioxide.

4. The German brew is fermented twice over a period in excess of six weeks. The domestic product is fermented once for a period of nine days.

When Miller Brewing was told that these parts of the A-B document might be published, it responded with a long statement saying that A-B was using the FTC and the media "to wage nothing more than a campaign of product disparagement in a competitive battle with us."

Said the spokesman: "To our knowledge this is the first time in the history of the FTC of a complainant."

"The fact is that this complaint, which you have a copy of, is not a public record, further confirms their use of the press in this competitive battle."

The spokesman added, "We are confident that our advertising, labeling and packaging is accurate, truthful and in compliance with the law." A detailed refutation would be filed with the FTC, he said.

Asked about the public versus private nature of the document, Stephen Newberg-Rinn, an FTC attorney, stated flatly: "It is in fact public." The decision to make it public can be made by the complainant, he said.

Because of apparent misunderstanding, he said, he had even called the Miller Brewing attorneys to emphasize the point.

After Miller Brewing files its answer to the complaint, he said, the matter will be reviewed and a recommendation made to the full commission.

to the back room and asked Leif Axelsen to watch his cage and cash drawer until he returned. The young man was happy to pretend he was a teller.

When Clement returned, he barely had time to remove the "Next Window, Please" sign before he opened the cash drawer and emitted a shriek. "Somebody," he yelled, "has robbed the bank. Quick," he shouted to the policeman, "nobody in or out."

Customers froze. Bank officers came running. So did the examiners. They said that they had examined the cash, and it was intact. A little frantic counting, and it was obvious that almost $4,000 was gone.

It couldn't have been Clement. Everyone knew that. He hadn't left the premises. After much shouting of, "Be calm. Everybody quiet down," suspicion fell on Leif Axelsen. Clement moaned, "The truth is that the cash was all right when I left here for the back office. I asked Leif to watch this cage for me," he sighed. "He is the only one..." The police were called. Axelsen burst into tears. "Clement is right," he said. "I never stole a dime in my life and I haven't taken anything now. But it's true. I was the only person in that cage."

The young man was booked on suspicion of grand larceny. A lieutenant said, "I believe that Axelsen boy. I don't know why. He practically handed himself up to us." The lieutenant hung around the bank for days.

One afternoon he walked into Clement's cage grinning. "The case is solved," he said. "I thought you'd like to know." Clement hung his bald head. "I feel so sorry for his wife and children," he murmured.

"No," the cop said. "Save your pity for yourself. You took the money before lunch, shoved it into a bank envelope, and mailed it to your apartment. It has just come back, marked '13 cents in postage due.'"

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter can claim an important victory in congressional negotiators' approval of a tax on fuel-wasting cars. But a final agreement on the toughest energy problems seems as elusive as ever.

If accepted by a second conference committee and then by the House and Senate, the auto tax would cost buyers of inefficient 1979-model cars up to $550, a figure that would soar to as much as $3,850 on 1985 models.

The tax was approved Wednesday by the conference committee on energy taxes. Another part of the compromise approved by the committee would allow the 19 million motorists who itemize income tax deductions to continue to take a deduction for state and local gasoline taxes. The House had voted to end that tax break.

Even with those agreements, it seems unlikely that Congress will be able to wrap up work this year on Carter's energy program.

The two energy conference committees still face the toughest issues of all — the price of natural gas, a tax on domestic crude oil to force conservation and the distribution of revenues from that tax.

There appears to be a hardening of positions on key issues. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who supports Carter's House-approved plan to keep federal controls on the price of natural gas, said, "We have no leeway in our position, absolutely no flexibility."

Rep. Anthony Moffett, D-Conn., said an increasing number of House members "would certainly rather have no bill than to move too far toward deregulation" of natural gas prices, which is favored by the Senate.

And Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the chief Senate delegate at the tax committee, was sharply critical of the Carter administration for what he called its refusal to compromise on giving the oil and gas industry additional incentives to increase production.

The House-Senate panel considering natural gas faced another session today with little prospect of progress.

The tax panel, after approving the auto tax, adjourned until next week to give staff members time to work out some proposals for taxing factories and power plants that burn large amounts of oil or natural gas.

The vote on the auto tax was the first major agreement reached by the tax conferees in 11 days.

The tax is not expected to save a great deal of energy, only about 175,000 barrels of oil a day compared to current U.S. consumption of 18 million barrels a day. But backers view the tax as a highly visible tool to make Americans aware of the need to conserve fuel.

The tax would be paid directly by the buyer of any car that does not meet minimum standards. It would be in addition to a heavy fine on any manufacturer whose fleet of new cars did not meet mileage standards. While the manufacturer would have to pay that penalty, it would be passed along to customers as higher car prices.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Board of Education will consider at its Monday meeting whether to appeal a common pleas court judge's ruling that the state's system for financing public schools is unconstitutional.

Judge Paul Riley threw out the equal yield formula, effective next July 1, in a Hamilton County Common Pleas Court ruling that it denies children equal protection of the law.

The formula, which requires districts to tax themselves above 20 mills to receive additional state funding, also was rendered unconstitutional because it does not permit children to attend schools in a "thorough and efficient system of common schools."

NEW YORK (AP) — It was viewed at first as another stratagem in the brewing competition between the nation's two biggest brewers, Anheuser-Busch, sometimes called the king, and Miller Brewing, a growing, aggressive marketer.

It appears now that the issues may be more than a tempest in a bottle.

Involved are accusations of deliberate misrepresentation and exploitation of consumers, and claims that the news media and a government agency are being "used."

On November 10, Anheuser-Busch filed with the Federal Trade Commission a request for an investigation of Miller, its parent, Philip Morris, Inc., and its advertising agency, McCann-Erickson Worldwide.

Miller, said A-B, has been improperly insinuating that Lowenbrau, a quality beer that it distributes, is the original imported product that connoisseurs have savored for nearly five centuries, when in fact Miller now brews it domestically.

McCann-Erickson declined to comment, but the response from Miller was immediate and spirited. "We find it incredible that the world's largest brewer would ask the FTC to protect them," it said, adding pointedly:

"It seems apparent that the crown on the King of Beers must be slipping."

But a study of the 32-page statement filed by A-B indicates that its accusations were motivated by more than, as Miller suggested, Lowenbrau's success in the "superpremium" market, where it competes with A-B Michelob.

Perhaps most importantly, AB claimed that domestic Lowenbrau isn't even the same beer that it said the consumer market was led to believe was a successor to that which was first tapped from a keg in 1383.

It isn't, said A-B, even the same beer that was recently imported from Germany, but which Miller now makes in the United States under a licensing agreement.

Contacted at the Lowenbrau Brewery in Germany, a spokesman seemed to concur. The domestic product he said, is "sort of a light beer that has been tested and found good for American tastes."

complaint:

1. German-brewed Lowenbrau is made with 100 per cent barley malt and no adjuncts. Domestic Lowenbrau is 72 per cent by weight barley malt and 28 per cent corn grits.

2. German-brewed Low

SANTA and the PIGWIDGEN

By LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: On their way to find the Pigwidgen, Claus and the elf come upon a sleeping giant. Tweedle- nees foolishly wakes the giant who starts after them in a rage.

CHAPTER EIGHT THE DONKEY

"RUN for your life!" shouted Claus. He tore down the far side of the mountain.

"I'm coming! I'm coming!" sputtered Tweedleknies, leaping after Claus. He lurched over a rock and went slipping, sprawling, tumbling head over heels until he came to a stop standing on his head with both legs wrapped around a tree.

Opening his upside-down eyes he saw the head of the giant looming over the top of the mountain. The giant grinned.

"Help!" bellowed Tweedleknies.

Claus turned and saw the giant reaching out to snatch the elf in his gargantuan fist. His heart pounding, Claus unshouldered the bow the elves had given him to kill the Pigwidgen. He shot the magic arrow into the heart of the giant.

The earth quaked and the mountain tottered when the great giant fell. Tweedleknies leaped to his feet and slid down the mountainside to Claus.

"You've done it!" he cried admiringly. "You've killed a giant!" "Yes," said Claus gravely. "But I've used the magic arrow and it cannot be used again."

"Pooh!" exclaimed Tweedleknies. "You've three more weapons. There's no need to worry."

Then he and Claus continued on their way. The farther north they went the colder the wind blew. One day they met a witch huddled by the side of the road.

"Good day," said Claus. "Can you tell me please if this is the way to the place where the Pigwidgen dwells?"

"I'll tell you nothing," rasped the witch.

In wrath, the witch blew powder in Tweedleknies' face.

"Aren't you cold sitting there?" demanded Tweedleknies.

"Fie on you!" snapped the witch and she covered her head with her cloak.

Claus and Tweedleknies went on their way. They had not gone far when Tweedleknies said angrily, "She can't talk to me that way. I'm going back and tell her a thing or two."

He ran back to the witch and tapped her on her shoulder. The witch withdrew her head from the cloak and Tweedleknies said, "You were very rude just now. You should apologize."

The witch's eyes flashed green and purple lights. Her face was chinless and her nose was like a tea kettle spout turned upside down.

"It could be," said Tweedleknies huffily, "that if you acted nicer you would look nicer."

The witch rose in wrath. She reached under her cloak and drew out a handful of powder. She blew the powder in Tweedleknies' face and muttered, "That's for being a butinsky!"

Tweedleknies threw his hands over his face. He felt his jaw dropping and his teeth jutting over his lips and his ears growing long and hairy. In a moment he was turned into a donkey and the witch had disappeared.

Claus had continued on his way. He was astonished when a donkey came up behind him and nudged his shoulder.

Claus looked around for Tweedleknies but there was no sign of the elf. "Tweedleknies!" he shouted. "Look what's here!"

The donkey threw back his great long head and brayed mournfully. "What can be the matter?" wondered Claus.

The donkey pawed the snow with his hoof. Claus looked down and saw he had stamped out two words. "It's me."

"Who?" cried Claus in confusion. And then he groaned. "Oh, no," as he finally understood.

Tomorrow: The Snake Nest

Pickaway County CAP At Maxwell AFB

It has been announced that the Ohio Wing of the Civil Air Patrol will conduct a field trip to Maxwell AFB in Montgomery, Alabama.

The unit departed this afternoon at 4 p.m., and is slated to return Sunday. Both departure and return will be at Rickenbacker Air Force Base near Lockbourne. The flight will be made on a C-123.

Participating in the exercise will be the Pickaway County Composite Squadron 1004.

Fairfield Man Wins Lottery

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Coggin, 64, of Fairfield said he felt "like a winner all the way" as he appeared on the Ohio Lottery television show Thursday night. His feeling was right. He won $25,000.

The retired maintenance foreman said he was "on Cloud Nine, right on top," after his big win. Coggin said "I felt like a winner all the way. I couldn't think anything but positively."

Coggin said he had been planning a trip to Hawaii anyway and the big win makes those plans solid.

A weekly buyer of lottery tickets, Coggin said he bought the winning one at a drivethrough beverage store in Fairfield. He is the father of four, the grandfather of nine, and expects another grandchild soon.

Other winners Thursday were: Willie Bewley of Indianapolis, $7,100; Jackie Sturm of Louisville, Ohio, $7,400; and Mike Gregory of Shelby, $8,500. Linda Freeman of Columbus retired as champion with her $25,000 in winnings from last week.

The TV Bonus winners were: Linus Feldbush of Bolivar, $50,000; Thomas Young of Cleveland, $10,000; and J.F. Walsh of Columbus, $5,000.

Food For Thought

STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS

1/2 cup vacuum packed wheat germ (regular) chopped green onion
1/2 teaspoon basil, crumbled
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/4 cup melted butter
2 teaspoons chicken seasoned stock base
2 tablespoons flour
3/4 cup chablis or other white wine
1/2 cup half and half
2 whole chicken breasts, halved and boned

1 tablespoon butter for frying
Mix wheat germ, onion, basil and garlic powder into melted butter.

Combine stock base and flour, gradually add wine and half and half. Stir until smooth. Add 1 tablespoon sauce to wheat germ mixture and set remainder aside.

Place chicken breasts skin side down on board. (If desired skin may be removed.) Cover with waxed paper and flatten with mallet. Place equal amount of wheat germ stuffing in center of each chicken breast. Roll breasts around stuffing. Fasten with picks.

Brown chicken rolls in 1 tablespoon butter in skillet over medium high heat. Transfer to 1-1/2 quart baking dish. Pour wine sauce over chicken. Cover. Bake at 400 F. 45 to 50 minutes or until tender. Remove picks. Makes 4 servings.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail VanBuren

Families Anonymous Helped This Mother

DEAR ABBY: In answer to CURRENTLY IN LIMBO, who was sure her well-known husband was on drugs but didn't know what to do about it, you were absolutely right! He must admit that he needs help before anything can be done for him.

But what about the wife? She's going out of her mind worrying about him. A few years ago I was in a similar situation — only it was my son who was on drugs. Then I discovered FAMILIES ANONYMOUS.

After attending one meeting I had my first good night's sleep in years! From other members who had experienced the agonies I had been through, I learned how to handle my son. When he saw the change in my attitude, his attitude began to change and so did he. It was just like a miracle!

He is now clean and happily married, and best of all, we are a loving family.

Abby, please check us out and tell your readers about this wonderful group.

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: I have checked you out, and know that you are a legitimate self-help group. There are no dues or fees, no forms to fill out, no formal sign-ups, no last names and visitors are welcome.

For the location of a meeting in your area, write: Families Anonymous, Inc., P.O. Box No. 344, Torrance, Calif. 90501, and please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for their response as they are a non-profit organization run by volunteers.

DEAR ABBY: Five months ago I gave my father a gift certificate to a massage parlor for his 55th birthday. Since many months had passed and he had not used it, I wondered why.

Then a letter appeared in your column from HURT WIFE, asking why a church-going, happily married man would visit a massage parlor. You offered a number of reasons. "Curiosity, lust, an itch for variety, fear of missing something, temporary insanity... etc."

I gave my father a gift certificate to a massage parlor for a perfectly legitimate reason—to treat him to a relaxing massage. The fact that he has not yet taken advantage of it, I attribute to prejudice such as yours. I think you owe all legitimate masseurs and masseuses an apology.

HURT SON
DEAR SON: And to them I apologize. But my judgment about massage parlors is based on the fact that literally thousands of dubious massage parlors have sprung up in recent years. And the massages (unlike beauty) offered there are more than skin deep.

DEAR ABBY: You can do every elementary and junior high school teacher a huge favor by suggesting that from a teacher's point of view, the best Christmas or Hanukkah gift a parent can buy their children is a set of pencils with the student's name on them.

Teachers spend a lot of time settling arguments regarding ownership of pencils.

SEVENTH GRADE TEACHER
DEAR TEACHER: Thanks for a dandy suggestion. Write on, teacher!

DAVID L. RITENOUR

Airman David L. Ritenour, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Ritenour, Jeffersonville, has been selected for technical training at Chanute AFB, Ill., in the Air Force aircraft maintenance field

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Ritenour is a 1976 graduate of Miami Trace High School. His wife, Kathy, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jacobs Jr., New Holland.

Writer Instructs
Billy Graham

NEW YORK (AP) — A Presbyterian minister who has written a book about the Rev. Billy Graham says he believes the evangelist should avoid politicians.

"I feel that he should stay at arm's length from world political figures," David Poling, an Albuquerque, N.M., minister, said Wednesday.

Poling criticized Graham's involvement with several presidents, including former President Richard M. Nixon. He also suggested that Graham should avoid prayer breakfasts in the future.

Poling, a former president of the Christian Herald, writes for the Newspaper Enterprise Association. His book is entitled "Why Billy Graham?"

Carter Sometimes Corrects
Memos Grammar, Spelling

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter sometimes corrects grammar and spelling in memos submitted by underlings. Maybe he should turn his attention to their speech texts.

The office of Robert Lipshutz, White House counsel, once handed reporters a text in which Lipshutz reported that leaders of the developing nations are busy "irradicating illeracy." That's not a typographical error, or errors. At least, not here.

Lipshutz also was quoted as using the following ungrammatical phrase: "out of respect of the inherent dignity and man and woman."

Dr. Peter Bourne, the president's special assistant for health issues, is a learned man. But someone, presumably a speechwriter, recently had him spelling minuscule as miniscule.

During the campaign, Carter himself earned a reputation for precise use of words. He is not infallible, of course.

For example, Carter likes to talk about the "enormity" of the energy problem. The preferred definitions of the word in Webster's New World Dictionary are "great wickedness" and "a monstrous or outrageous act; very wicked crime."

Carter presumably uses the word as a reference to "enormous size or extent; vastness." But the dictionary says this is "generally considered a loose usage."

In the first months of the Carter administration, foreign policy adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski kept himself so far out of the public eye that he was rumored to be reluctant to appear on television talk shows or otherwise make bid for personal publicity.

More recently, the president's Polish-born assistant for national security affairs has appeared on

Dizzy Plays
In Africa

MASERU, Lesotho (AP) — American jazz trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie and his quartet arrived in this southern Africa town to take part in the Maseru Jazz Festival on Saturday.

The quartet was met at the airport by Albert Mogale, minister of culture, on Wednesday. Traveling with Gillespie were guitarist Rodney Jones, drummer Mikky Poker and bassist Benny Brown.

Saturday's lineup includes bass player Monk Montgomery, singer Al Wilson and six music instructors from Rutgers University in New Jersey.

newcomer, but not for long. Should Brzezinski decide to "go public" on a grander scale, he can call on staff advisers experienced in the realm of journalism and public relations.

For the first time, Brzezinski and the National Security Council staff he heads have their own professional spokesman. He is Jerrold Schecter, former diplomatic editor of Time magazine, whose title is associate press secretary.

In addition, Brzezinski recently borrowed Fred Shaver, former U.S. Embassy spokesman in Venezuela, from the U.S. Information Agency. Shaver is expected to return to USIA soon, and it is not yet clear whether he will be replaced.

But Shaver's presence, however brief, has heightened speculation that Brzezinski will prove to be no shrinking violet.

Past administrations relied on career foreign service officers to speak for the NSC. One of them, Richard Moose, has gone on to serve as assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

Income-tax may be a dirty word during the holidays, but like it or not, that time is just around the corner. If you like to get a jump on figuring your returns, we have the "J. K. Lasser Guide, 1978" available now.

Perish the thought, but if you're having trouble with your 1978 model, don't despair. The 1978 editions of "Chilton" and "Motor" auto repair manuals have arrived.

On the subject of cars, two other new books will be of interest to car buffs. "The Grand Prix Carpetbaggers" is the autobiography of John Cooper co-authored with John Bentley. It's a lively memoir of 3 decades of automobile racing which tells the exciting inside story of this glamorous international world of men and machines.

Who hasn't dreamed of owning a convertible! "The Great American Convertible" by Robert Wieder is an affectionate guide to the era of "topless" cars.

If you plan to ask Santa for radio equipment to be used as a hobby, the 1978 "Radio Amateur's Handbook" is a good source for valuable information. This is the standard manual of amateur radio communication.

For the lover of facts, "Information Please Almanac" for 1978 is now on the shelf. Sports fans will find facts galore in the new "Encyclopedia Of Sports" by Frank Menke.

The beauty of the ballet is enhanced when you understand it. "Balanchine's Complete Stories Of The Great Ballets" by George Balanchine will give you this understanding.

An adventure in the marketplace! That's the description given to the "S.O.S. Directory." It's a listing of factory outlet and sample stores where you can save on shopping. It covers a large selection of merchandise, a nationwide area and useful tips on buying wisely.

"The Dark Side Of Knowledge" is an exploration of the occult by 2 professors of physics. Albert Shadowitz and Peter Walsh take an intriguing and enlightening journey into the incredible world of the occult. Using the powers of science to explore all kinds of obscure phenomena, they are fascinated with what they find.

Since we didn't receive any new fiction this week, may we suggest that you think about reading some of the Christmas stories available. Pearl Buck has a good collection for starters. We'd be happy to help you find something to keep your reading interest these long, cold evenings. Relax from the holiday rush with a good book from your public library.

Derby News

MRS. GEORGIA SWEET, 869-2462

You are invited to attend morning worship services at the Derby United Methodist Church each week with the Rev. Linda Stafford bringing the message. Services start at 9:15 a.m. followed by Sunday School at 10:30 a.m.

If you wish to give flowers for the altar you are urged to do so, this is a lovely way to remember a loved one.

The children of the Sunday School classes are having practice for the Christmas program on Saturday from 2:30-4 p.m.

Cub Scout Pack 847 will be present on December 11 at the Derby United Methodist Church morning services and will present the church with a charter. The church sponsors the group.

The attendance of area folks at the Derby Elementary School Christmas Bazaar was tremendous on Saturday. Every organization in the area seemed to be represented and each offered many lovely and useful items for sale. A big thank you to all who participated or attended and contributed to its success.

At this time of the year please don't forget those who are shut-ins and cannot be here to help celebrate Christmas with us this year. Remember the following with prayer, a card, or a visit: The Taylor, Redman and Furniss families, Mrs. Lillian Nance, Herman Rowland, Bill Erb, Bill Davis, and Mrs. Ellie Cox. In area nursing homes are Mrs. Flonnie Vance and Mrs. Belle Webb, Madison Elms Nursing Home, London, Ohio, 43140; Mrs. Minnie Ridgway, Pickaway Manor Nursing Home, 391 Clark Drive, Circleville, Ohio, 43113; Mrs. Nelle Bauhan, Winchester Place, 36 Lehman Lane, Canal Winchester, Ohio, 43110.

Anyone I have missed? Please let me know.

To Mr. and Mrs. John Musselman goes congratulations on their fiftieth wedding anniversary the past week. On Sunday they were guests of honor at a celebration held in their home. Given for them by their granddaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wilson, Lori and Ryan of Mt. Sterling, Guests from the Mt. Sterling area were Gloria Musselman, Gary and Joanne Cox, Mrs. Josephine Cox, and Eleanor Alkire. Guests from Columbus were Helen and Bill Cox, Elmer Cox, and Martha Lee Mantle, Dale, Joyce, Tami and Tina Haney, Jim and Pauline Musselman, Rip, Betty, Scott and Teresa Musselman, Ned, Betty, Mark and Mitch Musselman, of Ballah Road, Alvin, Etta, Jimmy, and Julie Cox, Harrisburg, Charles and Doris Musselman, Obetz, Tom and Florence, Tonya Jo, Mark and Philip Musselman, Grove City, Elmer Cox, Bill and Helen Cox, Martha Lee Mantle, Columbus, Fern and Warren Mantle, of London, and Kerwin and Jody Neffinger, and Hassel Dewie and Lyman Hunnicutt all of Derby.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Pruden, Bradley and Brian, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Sterling, Tony and Jodelle, of Cleveland, called on the Archie Sweets one afternoon last week. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kinney of Gibsonsburg called on the Archie Sweets.

On Sunday K. P. Mason and his Grandma Mrs. Archie Sweet missed very much attending church due to illness.

From the Southwest Community Church of the Nazarene, the Southwest Puppets performed at the Derby Elementary School recently with help from Dean Darst, Stephanie Fraim, Rosemary Lenz, and Laura Writsel. Then they entertained, with Selina Puckett, Linda Pell, Cindy Langford, Paula Horn, and Paige Allen at Monroe and Darby Schools in the play "Nobody Likes Me."

For the ladies, Southwest Church will have "R and R Weekend" Jan. 27-29 at Salt Fork State Park, Cambridge, Ohio. The cost for three days will be $10.00 and $7.00 for two days, including four meals. It's purpose: to encourage spiritual growth and fellowship for sharing and some study.

On Sunday, Dec. 11, at 6 p.m. the Southwest Church will present their last film of the Successful Christian Living Series. The children's Christmas Program is scheduled for Dec. 18 at 10:40 a.m. at the Southwest Church.

Heart Patient Playing Tennis

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Olga Cifuentes, an 8-year-old Colombian girl who underwent successful heart surgery last month, played tennis for the first time this week.

She was introduced to the game Wednesday by Colombian Davis Cup players Ivan Molina, Alvaro Betancur and Jairo Velasco.

The girl, who before her operation could not take part in any sport, was reluctant and shy at first. But after a few practice hits and instructions from the tennis stars, she had great fun.

Olga was born with a hole in her heart and defects in her arteries.

The operation was performed by famed heart surgeon Dr. Christiaan Barnard.

Joan Mondale To Visit Soviet Union

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Joan Mondale flew to Leningrad in the Soviet Union to see the Hermitage Museum.

"The visit is strictly private, and she is going to stay there for only a few hours," a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said Wednesday.

Before going to the museum, the wife of Vice President Walter F. Mondale met with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin. Both were in Helsinki for the 60th anniversary of Finland's independence.

"She will have no official engagements in Leningrad. She just went there to see the art collections she loves to see," the spokesman said of her trip.

Mrs. Mondale was scheduled to return to Washington today.

OSU Commencement Scheduled Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 1,600 degrees will be awarded Friday, Dec. 9 during Ohio State University's winter commencement.

The 1,632 degree candidates include 997 who will receive bachelor's degrees, 388 masters and 149 doctorates.

Novice G. Fawcett, OSU president emeritus, who retired in 1972 after 16 years as head of the university, will address the graduates.

THE RADIO HOBBYIST

By Frederick O. Maia
KKB-0924 - WSUT

Executive Director, American Radio Council

(Q.) For the CB'er, what is the most effective way to increase radio communication range?

(A.) All CB radios have an output power level in the neighborhood of 4 watts. According to Uncle Charlie (FCC) it is illegal to run higher power than this. There are, however, no restrictions on the type of antenna you can use. (There are height restrictions.) A good "gain type" beam antenna can effectively increase your radiated power and radio range considerably. You are allowed to place a beam antenna 20 feet higher than the structure on which it is mounted (provided it isn't a mast or tower installed especially for the beam.) A beam antenna placed 20 feet over a tall building or a tree using low loss coax transmission line can easily give you an ERP (effective radiated power) of 30 watts or more.

There are even lower loss transmission lines than standard coax type. Using open-wire "ladder line" or air-dielectric transmission lines (on a hundred foot length) can increase your ERP another 20 percent to 50 percent. Remember it isn't what your transceiver puts out in power that counts! It's what your antenna system radiates that is important! It is an absolute fact that you can have a higher ERP with a good radiating system (and legal power) than you can with some (illegal) amplifiers and a poor one. It has been mathematically proven.

(Q.) Just what do all those fancy controls do on my CB radio?

(A.) Everybody knows about the on-off-volume switch, the mike button and the channel switch. The other switches, however, seem to confuse a lot of people. The fact is that in many cases they are not really necessary, but like the fancy car with all the "extras," sometimes it's nice to have them. The most common accessory controls found on most better quality CB's are:

Automatic Noise Limiter — Sometimes marked ANL or NL, this control limits unwanted pulses of static and noise caused by lightning, motor arcing, spark plugs and the like.

Noise Silencer or Blanker — Usually marked NB on the control, it is usually more effective than a noise limiter in that it can eliminate extra unwanted noise (to some extent) rather than just eliminating the sharp spikes or pulses.

Delta Tune or Fine Tuning — Allows you to change your frequency just a little bit in either direction of center channel. Helps to make the voice communications more understandable. Usually a Delta tuning control will allow you to adjust your channel frequency 1 KHz either way. On a sideband radio, this control is called a "Clarifier."

RF Gain — This is a sensitivity control that allows you to adjust the strength of incoming signals. If the signal is too loud and slightly "garbled," by backing off on this control, the signal will become clear. It is also handy for eliminating weak (but interfering signals) when a stronger signal is being copied. For weaker signals, however, you will want to increase the RF Gain.

Distance - Local Switch — is found on CB radios usually when they don't have an RF Gain control. This control is basically an attenuator in that it reduces transmitter power so that it will not overload nearby CB radios and be unreadable. Two-way communication is very difficult when the person you are talking to is in the same neighborhood and he does not have a way to reduce his CB transceiver's RF gain.

Microphone Gain — Not found on every CB radio, this control adjusts the amount of audio power being fed from the mike to the audio stage of your transceiver. It increases (or decreases) talk power. CB radio operators should be very careful not to overmodulate their sets and cause "bleedover" onto other channels.

"S" Meter — This is a front panel meter that serves a two fold purpose. It allows you to know that you are "talking" over the air on transmit and gives a relative incoming signal strength reading on received signals.

There are other controls, such as CB-PA (allows CB radio to be used for paging with an external speaker); selective calling (a brand new feature that is being built into CB's that will allow specific CB radios to be called); AM-SSB (switches that allow transfer from AM to sideband mode), and on and on... There seems to be no end. New controls are coming out daily it appears.

(Q.) How come you have to be 18 years old to get a CB license, yet a "ham" radio operator can be as young as four years old? Doesn't this place requirements in the wrong area?

(A.) Not really. In order to get an amateur radio license you must pass a written test on Morse Code, electronic

Snow Shoveling Can 'Break Your Heart'

A snow shovel may seem very innocent leaning against a garage wall or hanging on a hook in the basement, but in the wrong hands, usually those of an out of shape person, it can be a lethal weapon.

Kathy Tomlinson, president of the Pickaway County Heart Branch, says "Every winter following a heavy snowfall, our communities are hit with a flurry of heart attack deaths, most due to overexertion from snow shoveling."

Snow shoveling is a strenuous exercise. It may look light as it floats softly to the ground, but snow quickly packs down and becomes quite heavy on the end of a shovel.

"Anyone unaccustomed to regular physical activity, especially those persons over 45, can easily over do it," Tomlinson said. "These persons should shovel slowly and rest often."

The heart association advises that anyone shoveling snow, despite age, should take occasional breaks. Even the healthy man can push himself to the point of exhaustion or even heart attack.

Tomlinson said, "Following these heart association tips can help keep that snow shovel in your hands all season."

If overweight and, or out of shape, see a doctor before shoveling, even if no symptoms of ill health are present.

If you have a history of heart disease, it is imperative to see a doctor before heaving that first shovelful.

Shovel before eating or at least two hours afterward. Always avoid undue exertion immediately after meals.

Don't make your arms do all the work. Use all your muscles. Those shovelfuls will be lighter if you lift with your back, leg and arm muscles.

"Remember, snow is much heavier when wet," Tomlinson added.

Wear warm, but light clothing. Underdressing may lead to chilling, while too much clothing could lead to overheating.

Tomlinson also advised against smoking or drinking while shoveling snow.

"Alcohol may give you a false lift theory and radio rules. (And at least 2 four year olds have passed this extremely simple test. They had to have the questions read to them since they were not yet in school!). There are no proficiency requirements to getting a CB license. The fact is that it is more difficult to get a "ham" than a CB license, therefore the age limit is dropped in the Amateur Service.

and lead to overexertion," Tomlinson said. "Smoking, added to the cold temperatures, greatly constricts blood vessels. That combination, along with the exertion from shoveling can be deadly."

According to the heart association, the best way to tackle the chore of snow shoveling is to go about it in moderation, or better yet, hire a neighborhood youngster.

Mayor Undergoes Hip Surgery

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Erastus Corning II, dean of the nation's mayors, was reported in satisfactory condition after surgery on his hip.

Surgeons implanted an artificial ball-and-socket joint in Corning's right hip Wednesday to replace the natural joint, which had been damaged by arthritis. He is expected to be up on crutches within several days, but may remain hospitalized for several weeks, his doctors said.

Corning, 67, was re-elected last month to a 10th term. He has been mayor of New York state's capital city since 1942.

Canton Teachers Vote To Strike

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Canton city school teachers voted 3-1 Thursday to strike Jan. 3 if agreement isn't reached before then on a salary increase.

The strike action was approved at a mass meeting attended by some 700 teachers after negotiators reported that the school board said it could not provide a pay raise during the life of the current contract, which expires June 30.

No increase was provided in the contract, which contains a wage reopener clause. Negotiations under that provision began Nov. 21.

Present salaries for the district's 1,100 teachers range from $8,800 to $16,544.

Al Rubenstein, president of the Canton Professional Educators Association, said no dollar amount has been demanded by the teachers, rather "something reasonably acceptable by both sides."

The system serves 16,352 pupils.

Fire Prevention Stressed With Holiday Decorations

COLUMBUS — The holiday season presents special fire hazards — hazards that could cause serious injury or death. State Fire Marshal Terry E. Drake urges Ohioans to take special precautions when decorating their homes.

The Fire Marshal's Fire Prevention Bureau reports that Christmas trees, electrical equipment and open flames of candles and fireplaces present the greatest fire hazards. To reduce the number of holiday fires in Ohio, Don Ryan, Chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau, developed the following guidelines.

When buying electrical lighting and other decorations, check that all electrical equipment has been tested by a nationally known and recognized testing laboratory. If lights are to be used outside, they should be approved and manufactured specifically for exterior use in order to withstand the elements. Also check last year's electrical equipment to be certain none of the wiring is frayed or exposed.

Use the proper size bulbs in your decorative lighting. Test the lights and replace any burned out bulbs before putting them in some hard-to-reach spot on your tree. Always turn lights off before you leave the house or go to bed.

When decorating, be careful not to overload electrical circuits. A circuit is overloaded when a fuse burns out or the circuit-breaker turns off. If a fuse burns out, do not replace it with a larger one; this will not increase the capacity of the circuit and will only add to the hazard.

Use extension cords only when absolutely necessary. Do not run cords under carpets, rugs, or any other combustible material.

Always use a fireplace screen and never leave burning candles or fireplaces unattended. Don't use your fireplace to burn large amounts of discarded wrapping paper; your fire could overheat and cause damage. Be careful not to place combustible decorations or greenery near candles or fireplaces.

If you have a live tree, make sure your stand is always full of water — a dry tree is an extreme fire hazard. Be certain your tree stand is sturdy and large enough for your tree. Avoid combustible tree decorations and do not place your tree near any heat source (such as vents, fireplace, television sets). Do not block doorways or exits with your decorated tree.

Marshal Drake reminds Ohioans that taking the extra time to follow these guidelines and check for fire hazards could make the difference between a joyous or tragic holiday.

Additional fire prevention information is available from the Fire Prevention Bureau of the State Fire Marshal's Office at 8895 East Main Street, Reynoldsburg, Ohio 43068.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

BROUGHT TO YOU BY JACK RANDLE OF MARSH INSULATION

Because of the interest in and the need for residential and commercial insulation, we want you to know more about it.

We will not use material that does not list the following specifications, or does not have a warranty on the bag or an accompanying certificate of warranty..

....and we recommend that you do not either!

1. Brand name and manufacturer should be listed on the bag.
2. List of specifications should be provided:

- a. Federal specification HH-1515C
- b. Flame resistance test C-739

1. Class I—flame spread of 25 or less
2. Class II—flame spread of 26-50

(Anything with a flame spread greater than Class II should not be used.)

- c. Thermal Resistance Test C-519/C-518

1. Information about "R" factor should be provided.
R factor — Thermal Resistance; the resistance rendered by insulation or building material to the flow of heat. Expressed as Fahrenheit degrees per BTU/(hour) (square foot).
2. The greater the R Factor the better the insulation.

- d. Corrosiveness Test ASTM-C739

1. In addition there should be information about the corrosiveness of the product to plumbing and wiring. (A good product will not be corrosive.)

- e. Government Standards

1. FHA standards—acceptable for use in FHA financed housing.
2. HUD standards—acceptable for HUD housing.

- f. Surface Burning Characteristic—E-84

- g. Density Test C-519

Unless these tests are on each bag of cellulose insulation or sometimes called wood fiber insulation, we do not recommend you put it in your home or business.

Mass Transit Systems Could Wind Up Transporting Students

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mass transit systems in Ohio's big cities could wind up transporting school pupils if major new busing programs are mandated by federal courts looking into segregation in the state.

Sen. William F. Bowen, D-Cincinnati, proposes this as an alternative to the state having to shell out millions of dollars for more buses and even greater outlays to hire drivers.

He had already introduced legislation to permit it when the education department asked for $2.1 million in state funds to buy 213 buses for the Columbus school system, after a federal judge ruled the city and state in violation of federal desegregation laws. The controlling board pigeonholed it, for now.

Herbert D. Brum, the department's school finance chief, said exploratory talks had been held with the Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA), but was told that the transit system couldn't handle students because their school hours coincided with peak hour demands by other passengers.

Bowen and others said COTA's reason was invalid, because federal funds to purchase more vehicles for mass transit systems are available, and are apparently not available for the state and its school systems to purchase additional "little yellow buses" for the schools.

Although desegregation suits remain to be litigated — even the Columbus cases remains open — Brum estimated that in addition to Columbus, Cleveland may need $3 million to buy buses and Dayton $1.1 million. Similar demands could also come from areas such as Youngstown and Cincinnati, at some point.

In refusing to consider the Columbus request, the board said it wanted additional information about the possibility of mass transit handling of school transportation, as well as the ability of local school boards to tighten belts and share some of the responsibility. Most districts provide busing for high school students but aren't required to under law, it was noted.

Joseph J. Sommer, executive secretary of the Ohio House, soon may be a full-fledged, voting member.

He is rumored an odds on choice of the Stark County Democratic Committee to replace Rep. Irene B. Smart, elected to the municipal court bench Nov. 8 in her home county.

Sommer, an amiable House employee respected by members from both political parties, served as former Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan's administrative services director while retaining his voting residence in Canton.

Members of the controlling board are mostly state legislators and they take care usually of those spending requests affecting a fellow member's home district.

So it wasn't too surprising this week when the board authorized a natural resources request for $10,000 to help plan a $1 million improvement of a state park golf course practically in the back yard of House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-New Boston.

Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-Bourneville, a southern Ohioan himself, said he thought "we should approve this for two reasons. It's the speaker's area, and if they can find enough flat land down there for a golf course, they should have it."

The request did get approved, although veteran Rep. A.G. Lancione, D-Bellaire, suggested a reason why it shouldn't be. Smiling, he said "the speaker is busy enough. We shouldn't encourage him to take up golf."

Flags Fly At Gallery

Come rally 'round the flags that are part of "New Glory, Part II: 'New Designs for Flags,'" at the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts Dec. 12 to Jan. 8, 1978.

The 25 original flags in this exhibition, all winners of the first nationwide flag-design competition, were created for specific organizations of the artist's own choosing, such as states, cities, the National Audubon Society and the Paiute Indian Tribe.

The goals of this exhibition are to mark the American Revolution Bicentennial, to reawaken interest in the flags of America's past and to inspire a higher level of design for flags of the future.

The exhibition was organized by the Santa Barbara Museum of Art and circulated by the Smithsonian Institution Travelling Exhibition Service.

The Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts is located at 480 E. Broad St. For more information, phone 221-68-01.

Bone Marrow Transplant Performed

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Doctors at University of Minnesota Hospitals performed a bone marrow transplant Thursday which doctors hope will save the life of a Cambridge, Ohio, boy.

Kevin Boyd, 11, received a pint and a half of bone marrow from his 8-year-old sister Tricia during a three-hour procedure, a hospital spokesman, Bob Lee, said.

Lee said both children were doing well. He said it would be about a month before doctors know whether the transplant was successful. In the meantime, Kevin will remain in protective isolation.

Kevin has aplastic anemia, which has destroyed the bloodmaking function of his bone marrow and rendered his immune system ineffective. It is hoped the transplant of healthy marrow will restore the marrow function and give Kevin an immune system that works.

Kevin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Boyd, was flown to Minnesota Nov. 20 after the family received private donations totaling more than $8,000 to help them pay existing hospital bills, transportation and housing costs in Minneapolis.

The Ohio Bureau of Crippled Children's Services will pay for the operation and the lengthy hospital stay it requires.

Kevin was at Children's Hospital in Columbus when it was discovered in mid-November that he had the illness. Medical officials there agreed he could get the best treatment in Minneapolis.

After it was made public that Kevin's parents could not afford to take him to Minnesota, offers of help poured in. A Florida man even offered to fly Kevin to Minneapolis in his private plane.

However, a commercial flight was used because the entire family had to be transported so doctors in Minneapolis could conduct tests to find the best candidate for the transplant.

Reverend Ike Keeps Financial Affairs Secret

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Somewhere inside the anonymous, glass-walled office building, a receptionist answers calls to the unlisted phone number: "Good morning, 6410."

To people who accidentally dial or pass by outside, there is no hint that they have come upon one of the nation's wealthiest religious groups.

For this nameless, modern building belongs to the empire of Frederick Eikerenkoetter, better known as the Rev. Ike.

The organization operates with a secrecy about its own financial affairs that oddly contrasts with its leader's exuberant celebration of the joys of spending money.

The studied obscurity of Ike's organization, the United Christian Evangelistic Association, is reflected by its headquarters.

There is no name on the door of the three-story building at 910 Commonwealth Ave. In the bare lobby, the only hint of what lies on the floors above is emergency switches labeled "computer rooms," "tape storage" and "key punch." But it is impossible for outsiders to see these rooms. The stairway and the elevator are locked.

"Ike's basic attitude is that the work that is done here is private," said Kenneth Kolman, the association's director of operations. "He has chosen to keep it very closed."

Estimates of the association's annual income range from $6.5 million to $15 million, but the real figure is secret.

The headquarters provides the behind-the-scenes organization for the flamboyant personal style of the Rev. Ike.

Requests to interview Rev. Ike were consistently refused and Kolman was very short on answers when questioned during a telephone interview.

Ike is a handsome, impeccably groomed 42-year-old black man who preaches the advantages of a positive self-image. And lots of money, Ike says, does wonders for self-esteem. "It is the lack of money, not the love of money, which is the root of all evil," Ike says.

He tells his followers: "We are not interested in pie in the sky by and bye. We want our pie now, with ice cream on it and a cherry on top."

Ike practices what he preaches. He wears $1,000 suits. His fingers glisten with diamonds and gold. He rides to his New York church in an $85,000 automobile.

At last count, Ike had 16 Rolls-Royces at his disposal. He has a choice of spending the night at a house in Redondo, Calif., an apartment in New York City or the church's parsonage in suburban Westchester County.

On Sundays, he preaches at his 5,000-seat United Church in the Washington Heights section of Manhattan. It is an ornate former movie theater filled with antique French furniture and valued at $2 million.

Ike draws a yearly salary of $40,000, but Kolman says most of the jewelry, cars and other symbols of wealth are paid for and owned by the church — the United Church, Science of Living Institute.

The tax-exempt church, in turn, is supported largely through donations. When the collection plate is passed on Sunday, Ike likes to say, "Please do not give change. Change makes me nervous in the service."

He urges followers to write to him, and much of the church's cash is contained in the piles of mail that arrives each day at a post office box in the Boston suburb of Brookline.

Kolman says the mail is put in sealed containers at the post office. Then it is taken to a bank, where bank employees open it and take out the money. They write the amount they find on the envelopes, then send all the mail to the headquarters.

"The money goes directly into the hands of the bank so that nobody in our operation gets their hands on it," Kolman said.

Although no money is handled at the headquarters, Kolman said the building is unmarked to avoid the threat of holdups.

The organization's books are audited by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., a nationally known accounting firm. They are also checked by Ike's wife, Eula.

"She comes in and helps keep me honest," Kolman said. "She examines every single expenditure. There is a great system of checks and balances within the organization."

Financial decisions are overseen by a seven-member board of directors. Bu Kolman said the directors' identities are another church secret.

Kolman, who was an accountant before he joined the church 10 years ago, said the board decided whether to accept investment suggestions made by him, Ike and the church's lawyers.

Most of the money, he said, is put into government securities and bank accounts.

However, he added, "There's not all that much invested, because the money is turned around very quickly into radio broadcasts, television and magazines. The purpose of the ministry is to get the philosophy across to the great mass of the people, and this is an extremely expensive thing to do."

Ike's sermons are heard on 85 radio stations each week with 15- or 30-minute programs, ranging from daily to weekly broadcasts. He discontinued producing television programs four years ago.

The church, founded in 1962, does not officially have members. But it receives mail from 1.3 million people each month. Most of them live in New York and the South.

Kolman says the following is mostly black, though in California they are 90 per cent white.

"Figures and information are filed with Internal Revenue, and Internal Revenue and the post office examine us very, very carefully," Kolman said. "If they didn't think that things were proper, we wouldn't still be here."

"What it really amounts to is that we do everything that's required of us. Beyond that, the Rev. Ike feels that it's nobody's business."

"Operations and hospital rooms cost a lot more than you think."

Everyone Knows Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everyone seems to have a theory on why Congress is deadlocked on so many issues this session. But no one seems to know what to do about it.

The various theories include changes in Congress, particularly the House, which has lessened the power of the leadership, and the fact that some tough issues that have come to a head this session.

Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. of New York, a senior House Republican, contests that "the issues that we've got to deal with really are sticky ones. As the old saying goes, if they were easy, we'd have dealt with them long ago."

However one tries to explain it, there is widespread agreement that the first half of the 95th Congress may be known more for what it hasn't been able to do than for its accomplishments.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., is a second-term congressman, a status that once was a guarantee of anonymity. But he never accepted the axiom that junior House members are rarely seen and never heard. He helped organize 80 moderates and liberals among the younger members into a bloc that wields considerable influence.

"A deal would have been cut on energy long ago if it had been left to the old guard," said Moffett in a brief interview during a break in the deliberations of the Senate-House conference committee which has made little progress in trying to reach a compromise on the non-tax portions of the energy legislation.

Despite the deadlock, Moffett contends Congress deserves credit for facing the energy problem.

"Two years ago, there was total paralysis in this town on energy," he Conable talked about House reforms and noted that "one committee chairman used to be able to speak for his committee with some confidence back during the days of unquestioned seniority and autocratic rule. Nowadays, he has to nurture the opinions not only of his subcommittee chairmen, but even of the rebellious and ambitious young men who make up his rank and file."

Energy and Social Security are two highly visible issues on which Congress has remained deadlocked, and legislators managed only this week to resolve a four-month-old battle over abortion. No simple theory applies to any of them.

Abortion is a highly volatile, emotional issue which has plagued Congress since the Supreme Court ruled that state laws flatly prohibiting abortions were unconstitutional violations of an individual's right of privacy.

That ruling and a subsequent decision that the government had no constitutional obligation to pay for abortions left the volatile question of the use of federal funds squarely in the hands of Congress.

Another question on which feelings run very strong is whether the federal government should regulate the price of natural gas. Deregulation is not a new issue.

The pro-and anti-deregulation forces have been fighting since 1954, when the Supreme Court ruled that the government could set prices for natural gas.

The year the court issued its ruling, Congress voted to strip the government of authority to set gas prices. But Dwight D. Eisenhower vetoed the bill.

That was the last time the deregulation forces prevailed on Capitol Hill. Last year, the Senate voted to drop government price controls while the House voted to keep them. The election-year session was coming to a close and no attempt was made to reach a compromise.

Legislation to deal with financial problems in the Social Security System has run into the political reality that no one wants to push for a substantial tax increase as an election year approaches.

Most cases come down to issues that were never easy to resolve, to traditional political pressures and to a changing membership that prizes independence above party loyalty.

Pneumonia Vaccine Licensed

ROCKVILLE, Md. — The Food and Drug Administration today announced it has licensed a vaccine against pneumococcal pneumonia, a common form of pneumonia.

There are no other vaccines on the market to prevent this form of bacterial pneumonia, which is a serious and sometimes fatal lung infection.

A similar but less broadly effective pneumonia vaccine was developed in the 1940's under the sponsorship of the Armed Forces, but its use was abandoned and further research ended since it was generally assumed at that time that antibiotics would solve the pneumonia problem.

Despite the wide use of antibiotics, however, pneumonia today is the fifth leading cause of death in the United States, killing an estimated 25,000 Americans annually. The type of pneumonia against which the vaccine protects accounts for a major portion of these deaths. The vaccine is effective in at least 80 percent of the people who receive it.

The company which has been licensed by FDA to sell the vaccine, Merck, Sharp & Dohme, West Point, Pennsylvania, expects to begin commercial distribution early in 1978. The brand name of the vaccine is "Pneumovax" (polyvalent pneumococcal vaccine).

The vaccine is expected to be particularly useful for the elderly and for people over the age of 2 with serious chronic diseases, since these groups face an increased risk of dying from pneumonia.

Pneumonia is not generally fatal in healthy young adults and children in the U.S., and these groups are not considered prime targets for the vaccine.

The incidence of pneumonia increases under crowded conditions, so the vaccine also is expected to be used in nursing homes and other institutions.

Preliminary studies suggest that the vaccine also is useful in sickle cell anemia patients, since they are at especially high risk from severe pneumonia infections. Studies also are underway to determine the effectiveness of the vaccine in preventing middle ear infection in infants.

Reactions to the vaccine, such as soreness and redness at the injection site, are common, but usually last no longer than 48 hours.

Since the vaccine is entirely derived from inactivated or killed bacteria the vaccine itself cannot cause pneumonia.

The vaccine was developed at the Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories under the direction of Dr. Maurice Hilleman, working in cooperation with Dr. Robert Austrian of the University of Pennsylvania and investigators supported by the National Institutes of Health.

Field trials of the vaccine, involving some 30,000 volunteers, began in 1973.

Unified Book Of Worship And Hymns For North American Lutherans Near

NEW YORK (AP) — The church that sparked the dream of a unified book of worship and hymns for all Lutherans of North America has virtually quit the project. But it nevertheless nears realization for the others.

They've agreed on the contents and set the publication schedule for a new Lutheran Book of Worship, 10 years in the making, for common use of most Lutherans of the United States and Canada.

A blending of "the familiar and fresh, the old and the modern, the traditional and the contemporary," says the Rev. Omar Bonderud of Minneapolis, an American Lutheran Church official, of the new book.

It'll be the first revised service and hymnbook for nearly six million Lutherans in two decades, and their closest yet to a combined approach to worship.

Ironically, however, as the development process went into its final lap, the denomination that had first proposed it, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, having shifted to a stricter, more individualist course, backed away from the project.

The demurrer led to a wholesale resignation last month of six of that denomination's seven representatives on the InterLutheran Commission on Worship, a joint group which had worked through the years in producing the book.

Asserting frustration and the impugning of their credibility, the six charged that the "real reason" for their denominational administration's overruling them was an aversion to closer links with other Lutherans.

But the six said that even so, the new book will be a "blessing to the church" and this is the "best available book for use in worship among Lutherans ever made," thoroughly in accord with Scriptures and Lutheran confessions.

In spurning it, a newly set up Missouri Synod review committee charged doctrinal impurity in some hymns, such as in the final verse of "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" and in the second verse of "Amazing Grace."

The committee also objected to a hymn, "At the Cross Her Station Keeping," saying it contained the idea that Jesus' mother, Mary, shared in his suffering on the cross. Among other things called unacceptable were some rephrasings in the ancient creeds.

However, the traditional forms of creeds and prayers also are included in the new book.

The head of the Missouri Synod review group, the Rev. Dr. Robert C. Sauer, conceded there had been concern about the implications of fellowship with other Lutherans, but he maintained this was not the central issue.

The collective resignation of the Midwestern-based denomination's worship commissioners was only the latest such upheaval in that denomination as it pushed its drive for tighter adherence to its positions apart from other Lutherans.

Close to 200 congregations with about 100,000 members have pulled out of the denomination in its pressure for Biblical literalism that previously had led to a walkout of professors and formation of a separate seminary in St. Louis.

The denomination's convention last July declared a state of "protesting fellowship" toward a sister body, the American Lutheran Church, because of its ordination of women and ecumenical links with other Christians.

Despite Missouri's aloofness, however, most of the rest of American Lutheranism has strongly ratified the new worship book, and set a publishing schedule making it available as of the first Sunday in Advent next year, Dec. 3, 1978.

Containing 544 hymns, old and new, the book also will include orders for various worship services and festivals.

For two U.S. denominations, the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America, along with the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada, the book will vitalize a new bond at a basic point — in worship and song.

Presbyterian Minister To Be Installed

The Rev. Edward A. Clydesdale will be installed as pastor of the Presbyterian Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m. by the Presbytery of Scioto Valley.

The message for the evening, "Go and Tell," will be delivered by Dr. Hugh Bean Evans, executive Presbyter of the Scioto Valley Presbytery. Also sharing in the service: Rev. Jack L. Pursell, vice-moderator of the Scioto Valley Presbytery, Rev. Henry A. Walters, previous pastor of the church, Dr. Frank J. Irvine, who served as interim pastor, Rev. James Grove of the First Presbyterian Church of Chillicothe, Rev. Julian Taggart of the Amanda Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Mary Orr, elder of the Kingston Presbyterian Church and Mr. J. C. Simpson, clerk of session of the Circleville Church.

An informal reception following the service is being prepared by the Women's Association. The community is invited to attend.

ODLC Remembers Holiday Policy

With the holiday season approaching, Director Clifford E. Reich of the Ohio Department of Liquor Control reminded distillery representatives and department employees of the department's policy on gifts and gratuities. The policy states:

"No employee of the Department of Liquor Control shall solicit or accept any reward, gratuity, gift of any nature, payment or compensation for any services rendered except his or her regular salary."

The Director sent letters to liquor vendors and employees this week reminding them of the gratuities policy.

Director Reich said the policy was instituted shortly after he assumed his position in January, 1975. He said that both employees and the industry have respected this policy and that he was sure he could depend on their continued cooperation.

"It is not necessary for any vendor to send gifts in order to do business in the Department of Liquor Control," the Director stated. "The only requirement is that they abide by policies, procedures and requirements established by law."

LE Board Makes Personnel Decisions

At the Logan Elm Board of Education meeting Monday night, one resignation was accepted from a substitute bus driver and three substitutes—one secretary and two drivers—were employed.

Mark Albright was employed to teach driver education after school.

The board adopted a salary schedule for cafeteria workers effective Jan. 1.

Board President Roger Hobbie appointed a committee of two board members and superintendent John Henn to study salary schedules for secretaries and other non-teaching employees. Recommendations will be made to the board as the study progresses.

Guidance course Counselor Kobel reported to the board the various activities and functions of the department.

Dow West, high school principal, asked the board for additional secretarial help at the school. He also received approval to hold commencement exercises on the football field at 2 p.m. May 28.

Approval was granted for attendance to the following meetings: Jewell Hinton to Fiscal Management of School Food Service; Gary Weaver to the Academy of Newly Elected Board Members; Donald Bower to the National School Board Associating; Gobel Branham to Managing and Auditing Energy Use; and for any board members who wish to attend the Negoti-Aid Contract Administration Workshop.

The board approved purchasing of materials for covered walkways leading to the pre-engineering classrooms at the Washington School, McDowell and the high school. Construction is underway, with completion scheduled by Jan. 1.

A resolution was passed accepting amounts and rates as determined by the budget commission and authorized payment of the necessary tax levies. The operating millage rate of 26.1 was certified to the county auditor.

Approval was given for school placement for a child with muscular dystrophy along with reimbursement for transportation and expenses.

The superintendent was requested to obtain soil tests at the proposed site of the tennis courts which are to be constructed by the Booster Club.

A discussion was held concerning construction of a roadway with federal funds between Tarlton Road and Zane Trail Road on the west boundary of school property.

The examiners reported on the state audit of school finances for June, 1974 to May, 1977. It was read and approved by the board.

The meeting was extended to Dec. 29 at 1 p.m. All board members were present as well as West and Kobel

Willie's Dillies

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

One day this week we were sitting around lying to each other as always when the subject of high school football teams came up and various squads...past, present and future...were gone over with a fine tooth comb.

A lot of fine teams and plenty of top flight athletes have come out of Pickaway County and we are proud to have been a part of them and grateful for the many nice memories they have left with us.

One of the teams that stands out as we look back...and their have been plenty...was the undefeated 1970 bunch of Tigers from Circleville.

A lot of things are happily implanted in our minds in regard to this team but two things really stand out...Doyle Kiser's 60-yard punt return under the dim lights at Hamilton Twp. that broke a scoreless deadlock and set the Red and Black on its way to victory...The final game of the season against Logan who were 7-2 and at one time during the season ranked in the AAA state poll. After battling 0-0 with only 3:30 left in the first half, the Tigers exploded for three touchdowns to lead 20-0 at halftime and were on their way to a 38-0 win...And a headline that read "It's 10 and 0 with none to go."

We remember Dick Radcliff, one of the top linebackers we've ever seen, breaking his arm in the season opener at Grove City, and Jim Mogan and Mike Hamrick taking over the linebacking duties...and what a job they did! And Radcliff fought back and was back in action before the season ended to give the Tigers a trio of linebackers that couldn't be beat with a stick.

It was a great offensive line that opened gaping holes for the Tigers backs to romp and race through the opposition...And they had the backs to do it...Tom Bowers sending the pigskin into the ozone and finding Mike Webb like a bill collector setting his sights on a deadbeat...But, don't ever overlook what we consider one of the finest defensive units we have had the pleasure of watching...Running against them was like playing Russian Roulette with a machine gun.

We are proud to have been part of this great group and will never forget them. In case some of you don't remember...They lined up like this: offense-Ends-Webb, Gary Owens and Don Valentine; Tackles-Mark Davey and Bill Fowler; Guards-Gary Robbins and Gary Mogan; Center-Craig Allison; Quarterback-Bowers; Fullback-Dave Truex and Rich Speakman; Slot Back-Chris Long; Halfbacks-Tom Shea and Harold Smith.

When the defensive Tigers roared onto the field, sharpened their claws and dared anyone to come at them, it was: Ends-Fowler and Owens; Tackles-Tom Frericks and Bill Francis; Middle Guard-Davey; Linebackers-Jim Mogan, Hamrick and Radcliff; Cornerbacks-Truex and Valentine; Halfbacks-Bowers and Kiser.

Nine of these young men were named first team All-South Central Ohio League and 10 more received honorable mention. Coach Denny Williams was named AA Central District Coach of the Year and Webb made All-State.

Yep...It was quite a team...And if you don't agree...Do as they always say...Look at the record.

Our "fearless" forecast—We like to see Cincinnati win but we think the "Steel Curtain" will cage the Bengals.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Massive Baseball Trades Shock Winter Meeting

HONOLULU (AP) — An 11-player deal involving four teams and including such stars as outfielder Al Oliver, pitchers Bert Blyleven and Jon Matlack, and first baseman Willie Montanez, shocked baseball's winter meetings in a turbulent session of trading and executive decisions.

The mammoth trade among the Texas Rangers, Pittsburgh Pirates, New York Mets and Atlanta Braves overshadowed such things as the reinstatement of suspended Braves' owner Ted Turner, a new four-year contract for National League president Charles Feeney, an American League turnaround of a group seeking to buy the Boston Red Sox, and a $5 million reorganization of the Cleveland Indians.

Texas owner Brad Corbett started the four-way swap that changed the look of the National League East, made the Rangers a favorite in the American League West and began the reconstruction of Turner's hapless Atlanta team.

Corbett began Thursday talking a minor deal with the New York Mets when he discovered the Mets coveted Montanez, slugging first baseman of the Braves.

So, the Rangers' owner talked Atlanta into dealing him Montanez for reliever Adrian Devine, outfielder

Tommy Boggs and minor league infielder Eddie Smith. Turner was delighted to unload Montanez' reported $300,000 yearly salary for three young inexpensive players.

Now, with Montanez in hand, he talked the Mets into delivering left-handed pitcher Jon Matlack and first baseman-outfielder John Milner to Texas for outfielder Tom Grieve and a player to be named later.

Corbett, however, wasn't through. He had been trying all week to grab outfielder Al Oliver from Pittsburgh, one of the game's premier hitters. So, he convinced the Pirates to take Milner, and with Matlack in the fold, delivered right-hander Bert Blyleven to Pittsburgh for Oliver and rookie shortstop Nelson Norman.

It was a coup. Corbett had a fine pitcher in Matlack, much better than his 7-15 record with the Mets, and a consistent hitter and excellent fielder in Oliver. Pittsburgh got a good hitter in Milner, and the pitcher they so badly needed in Blyleven. The Mets picked up needed power in Montanez, and as Turner said, "we got some young players more interested in baseball than money."

It was believed to be the biggest winter meeting deal since 1954, when the Baltimore Orioles and New York Yankees engineered a 17-player trade.

Pittsburgh Favored To Beat Cincinnati

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Welcome to the playoffs, Pittsburgh Steelers. So long, Cincinnati ... and Washington ... and New England ... and Atlanta.

The National Football League's postseason puzzle won't be completed this weekend, but virtually all of the pieces will fit into place after the Steelers beat the Bengals and St. Louis whips Washington Saturday, and Los Angeles, Miami, Baltimore and Oakland win Sunday.

Now for the long-range forecast: —In the American Conference, Pittsburgh will win the Central Division title this weekend and, a week later, Miami will win the Eastern championship and Oakland will deal itself into the playoffs with the wild card berth.

—In the National Conference, St. Louis will eliminate the Redskins this week and, next week, will win the conference wild card spot while Minnesota takes the Central crown and Chicago gets nothing.

If you're mapping out your post-season viewing schedule, plan to watch Oakland at Miami and Pittsburgh at Denver Dec. 24, followed by Minnesota at Dallas and St. Louis at Los Angeles Dec. 26.

Looking ahead is fun. Looking back isn't. Last week's mark was 7-7. For the season, the figures are 117-51—.696. This week's picks:

Steelers 21, Bengals 13
When Pittsburgh's defense has to be good, it is very, very good. The Bengals still are trying to find themselves. They'll find themselves home for the holidays.

Cardinals 24, Redskins 16
A few weeks ago, St. Louis was dreaming of a division title — or maybe just daydreaming. The Redskins' dreams become a nightmare.

4 Dolphins 17, Patriots 10
An Upset Special. We're convinced the Dolphins' defense is under-rated ...

almost as much as the offense.

Rams 20, Falcons 9
It's a meaningless game for Los Angeles — but the Rams still remember their season-opening loss in Atlanta.

Colts 28, Lions 14
If Detroit can't beat the bad teams on the road, how does it expect to win against the good ones?

Raiders 24, Vikings 13
A Super Bowl replay. With or without Fran Tarkenton, Minnesota always comes out the same way — second-best.

Bears 30, Packers 10
Here's the step-by-step explanation of how Chicago is going to miss the playoffs.

The Bears will beat the Packers and the New York Giants and will finish 9-5, as will the Vikings. Their division and conference records also will be the same (6-1 and 8-4). And because Minnesota beat the Bears by six points (22-16 on Oct. 16) while Chicago beat the Vikings by just three points (10-7 on Nov. 20), the Vikings will get the division title.

St. Louis, by finishing 9-5, will be deadlocked with the Bears in conference records—and because the Cardinals beat Chicago 16-13 on Sept. 25, they'll get the NFC's wild-card berth.

Broncos 20, Chargers 17
San Diego's been hot lately and Denver could ease up now that it's title is secure. But the Broncos need the momentum.

Seahawks 28, Chiefs 17
Did you know Seattle is first in NFC passing offense? Did you know Kansas City is last in NFC offense — and last in defense, too? That adds up to another upset.

Browns 23, Oilers 20
And here's yet another one. Houston's attack is hardly dynamic — especially outdoors.

Cowboys 27, 49ers 14
It's not the most thrilling way to end the Monday night schedule, but it could've been worse. It could've been

Jets 31, Bills 23
... in which the Bills keep going nowhere without O.J. Or it could've been ...

Eagles 21, Giants 20
... in which Philadelphia finally manages to win a squeaker. Or ...

Saints 16, Bucs 3
... in which a Tampa Bay field goal is a moral victory.

Earl Campbell Wins Heisman Trophy

NEW YORK (AP) — When Tony Dorsett won the 1976 Heisman Trophy as the outstanding college football player in the land, Earl Campbell was in the training room at the University of Texas trying to ease the pain of an injury-filled junior season.

"I saw it on TV," Campbell said, "and I said to myself ... 'Someday.'"
Someday arrived Thursday night as Campbell, a 220-pound blockbuster from the rose fields of Tyler, Tex., won the 43rd annual Heisman Trophy. The announcement was made on national television to cap an hour-long-plus CBS "spectacular" that wasn't nearly as spectacular as Campbell's slashing runs.

Trailing Campbell in the voting were Notre Dame tight end Ken MacAfee and Oklahoma State running back Terry Miller ... or, if you prefer, Miller and MacAfee.

No one really knows except the accounting firm of Harris, Kerr, Forster & Co. The Downtown Athletic Club of New York, which awards the Heisman, usually lists the top 14 finishers, along with votes for first, second and third places and total points based on a 3-2-1 count, as well as a breakdown by regions.

This time, no one from the DAC seemed to know what was going on and every question about the voting drew a reply of, "I can't tell you what I don't know. There's nothing we can do about it."

The DAC insisted that no one from the accounting firm was around. CBS was incredulous.

"They (Harris, Kerr, etc.) are the chink in the armor," said a spokesman for the network. "As far as we're concerned, they're holding this thing up."

But this was Earl Campbell's night and nothing could detract from it, not entertainers like Connie Stevens, Leslie Uggams, Elliott Gould, Robert Klein and assorted pompon girls and dancers. Nothing could spoil it, not even gimpy-kneed O.J. Simpson's debut as a song-and-dance man, although his song-and-dance duet with Gould came out more like grunt-and-shuffle.

"I guess I'm too happy to cry and too happy to smile," said the poker-faced Campbell, who led the nation in rushing with 1,744 yards — he had just 653 a year ago when he was plagued by leg injuries and missed four games — and became the No. 1 ground-gainer in Southwest Conference history with 4,444 career yards.

"I deserve what happened to me tonight because I worked so hard," he continued. "Last year, I knew there was gonna be a tomorrow and I started working out in the middle of May. The Heisman Trophy means 22 years of hard work. If you only knew how hard I worked you'd say, 'Earl deserves it.'"
Campbell's situation figures to make him (1) an early selection in the National Football League draft next spring and (2) rich. First, though, he has one college game remaining when the No. 1-rated Texas Longhorns meet fifth-ranked Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2.

Then it's on to the pros, where Campbell hopes to "do what I've wanted to do since I was in the fourth grade. I think I've got a great future ahead of me if I take advantage of it."

Steve Owens scored 56 touchdowns for Oklahoma from 1967 through 1969.

Darrell Royal, now the head football coach at Texas, is the all-time interception leader among Oklahoma players with 17.

Baseball Played By Pilgrims

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Turner may not have been aware of it when he was skipping the 12-meter sloop Courageous to victory in the 23rd defense of the America's Cup this summer, but baseball and yachting are blood cousins.

They have been for at least 126 years.

For this piece of priceless information, we are indebted to Harry Simmons of the baseball commissioner's office. Harry is the game's VPICODUPIEEFODCA. Translated, that is Vice President In Charge of Digging Up Information Everybody Else Forgot or Didn't Care About.

It was Simmons who, a few years ago while rummaging through the dust and cobwebs of diamond lore, discovered that baseball, or a rough form of it — instead of being an invention of Gen. Abner Doubleday in the mid-1800s — actually was a vice of the Pilgrims back in 1622.

The revelation surfaced in an official proclamation by the then Gov. William Bradford of Massachusetts. At the time, Christmas was not a legal holiday for most Pilgrims, who regarded it as heathen. The straight-laced, highly religious Puritans, however, refused to work on Christmas Day.

Gov. Bradford bowed to the Puritans' convictions. Yet on Christmas Day, 1622, while leading workers into the fields, he caught sight of the Puritans "at play in the streets, throwing and stroking in a game called 'stoole ball.'" He was livid. He proceeded to dress down the offenders with an official reprimand.

"Stoole ball" became an ancestor of baseball as we know it.

Recorded baseball history also got a shaking up when Simmons, in his research, uncovered journals telling of black "freedmen" playing a game similar to baseball in the Weeksville (Now Bedford-Stuyvesant) and Williamsburg sections of Brooklyn in 1860, before the Civil War.

Jackie Robinson was 87 years late. As for the dapper, swashbuckling Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves baseball team, he was a century and a quarter late in linking those two implausible of sports cousins — yachting and baseball.

When Turner sailed the sleek Courageous to four straight victories over the Australian challenger, Australia, off Newport, R.I., he was putting a reverse twist on some ancient lore found by Simmons in a yellowed and tattered book, published in 1868, titled "American Pastimes." It was written by Charles Paverelly and touched on such sports as Base Ball (Cap B. B. two words), Cricket, Rowing and Yachting.

One name appears prominently in two of the chapters — that of George Steers. It was Steers who designed and built the schooner America for Commodore John C. Stevens of the New York Yacht Club. It was the America which sailed into Cowes in the summer of 1851 — after her commandant had thrown down a challenge — beat 16 of Britain's finest sailing vessels in a race around the Isle of Wight.

An easy winner, the U.S. schooner's crew was awarded a bottomless silver cup by the Queen. This became the famed America's Cup, for which England and other nations have challenged over the ensuing years but never won.

During this period, a favorite pastime back in the United States was a game called Base Ball, borrowed from the old English game of Rounders, and refined, "a noble and manly game," historians said. Base Ball clubs sprang up almost everywhere, one of the earliest being the Knickerbocker Club of 1842 and 1843.

Another team was the Eckford Baseball Club of Brooklyn, composed of shipwrights and mechanics. The team's star player: George Steers, designer of the America.

When Eckford beat Union 228 in its first game, Frank Pidgeon, writing in "Porter's Spirit, 1855, could not restrain his enthusiasm.

"George Steers," he said. "Everything he did was well. I fear many a day will go by before we see his equal again."

So went the early growing pains of our national pastime.

Not true. Researcher Simmons insists, that after the bloody Civil War, a dying President Lincoln called General Doubleday to his bedside and invoked him: "Our country is divided. Do something. Invent baseball."

Corbett's Sister Dies

CLARION, Pa. (AP) — The sister of Jim Corbett, tight end with the Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League, has been killed in a dormitory fire at Clarion State College.

Robinne Ann Corbett, 18, of Erie, died in a fire that broke out in her room at Wilkinson Hall on the college campus.

Nets Late For Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New Jersey Nets fought their way through a snowstorm to reach Chicago Stadium and arrived late for Thursday night's game against the Bulls. Their shooting touch arrived even later.

The Nets missed their first 16 shots of the game and found themselves down 19-0 before Howard Porter finally hit a jumper to break the ice after 6:28 had gone by.

The Nets, whose 3-22 record is by far the worst in the National Basketball Association, never recovered. Chicago led 30-11 at the quarter and coasted to a 104-78 victory.

"We're not the type of team to come from behind," observed Coach Kevin Loughery of the Nets, whose latest losing streak is now at six games. "We missed too many easy shots and we're just not strong enough to play catch-up."

In Thursday night's only other NBA game, the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Golden State Warriors 117-116.

Wilbur Holland led Chicago with 18 points and Mickey Johnson and John Mengelt had 16 apiece. Rookie Bernard King scored 23 for New Jersey, but Porter, who finished with 13, was

Hawks Place Charles On Waivers

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Hawks, looking to save some money, have placed veteran National Basketball Association guard Ken Charles on waivers.

Charles, a five-year veteran from Fordham University, reportedly was making about $100,000 a year when he was cut Thursday to avoid a deadline whereby any player employed after that has to be paid for the rest of the season.

"It was an economic move," Hawks General Manager Mike Gearon said.

Charles, a No. 3 draft pick in 1972 who came to Atlanta last year in a trade which sent Tom Van Arsdale to Buffalo, had been averaging 9.4 points a game this season.

"That's life in the NBA," said Charles, a stockbroker in the off-season, of the cut. "What else can you say? I just have to go on to something else."

His departure leaves the Hawks, 12-10, with a backcourt of second-year man Armond Hill and rookies Eddie Johnson, Charlie Criss and Tony Robertson.

MacAfee Is MVP

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame has named All-American tight end Ken MacAfee the most valuable player on this year's football team.

MacAfee, a senior who caught 54 passes for 797 yards and six touchdowns this year, was honored Thursday night at the Irish awards banquet.

Ecclestone May Return To Flames

ATLANTA (AP) — Tim Ecclestone, who injured his knee earlier this season, may be back at practice in three weeks, the Atlanta Flames announced.

The National Hockey League club had feared that Ecclestone, who has missed all but four games, would be lost for the remainder of the season.

The Flames said doctors examined his right knee and found only a slight cartilage tear which will not require surgery.

5 Girls Keep Basketball Stats

KEEPING THE STATS — Basketball stats this year are Kathy Clark, Diana Cox, Amy Schneider, Teresa Tomlinson and Jane Cole.

By LISA LINTNER
The 1977-78 basketball statisticians are as follows: seniors Jane Cole, Kathy Clark, Amy Schneider, Teresa Tomlinson and junior Diana Cox.
Jane Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cole, has been a basketball stat for two years. Jane keeps all violations, assists, bad passes and turnovers. She says about being stat,

"We all get along well, and we have a lot of fun at the games."
Amy Schneider keeps the statistics for charges taken, fouls, field goal percentages, and free throw percentages. This is Amy's second year as stat. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schneider and comments, "It's a lot of fun. I really like it. I like going to all the games!"

Kathy Clark says about being a stat, "I love it! I get to go to every game." Kathy keeps the shot chart, and this is her first year to stat. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Clark.

Teresa Tomlinson keeps rebound statistics. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tomlinson. This is Teresa's first year to be a stat. She said, "I feel honored to be a stat for the Tigers."

Diana Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cox, also keeps a shot chart. Diana says, "It's really fun. It helps me know more about basketball." This is Diana's first year as a basketball stat.

The stats would like to wish the reserve and varsity basketball teams the best of luck this year.

Eighth Grade Cheerleaders Featured

By TERESA TOMLINSON
The six eighth grade cheerleaders were chosen last May.

Jennifer Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cole, has been a cheerleader for two years and is the captain of the squad. Her activities at CJHS include cheerleader, working in the office, and being a gym assistant. When asked her reaction to being chosen, she commented, "When they put the megaphone around me and said I got captain, I screamed and burst out crying." She added, "I was so happy I had gotten it. I think it's a great honor to cheer for such a great bunch of guys." Her likes include cheering and playing volleyball and softball.

TWO-year veteran Toni Lintner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Lintner, is active in cheerleading and band. Her hobbies include riding horses, swimming, cheering, and milking cows. When asked her comment on being chosen, she responded, "I was nervous when I was picked. It is an honor to cheer for the Tiger teams." She added, "I would like to say good luck to the seventh, eighth, and ninth grade basketball teams, and the wrestling teams."

"I really enjoy cheering and was really excited to be chosen," commented Kim Moats. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Moats and has been a cheerleader for two years. Her likes include gymnastics and swimming, and at CJHS she is involved in the band.

Kim Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson, is cheering for her first year. She is active in the band and her likes include gymnastics. "I enjoy cheering for the guys and being a part of the team," commented Kim.

Two-year veteran Kim Smith enjoys swimming and gymnastics. At CJHS, she is involved in cheerleading and band. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Quinn. When asked her reaction to being chosen cheerleader, she commented, "I was really excited and I feel great!"

Looking Back At Red, Black

By MELISSA ALLISON

Don Greenlee, a member of track 2-3 and football 3-4, is now co-owner of Circle Plastics and a member of the Emergency Medical Team.

Weta Mae Leist, EMS, choir, sextet, is now employed as a secretary for the Agriculture Department.

Kenny Williams, vice president of Stooze Club, is working at DuPont.

Phyllis Cupp, prom chairman, is a secretary at Bowling Stock Yards.

Jim Arledge, football player and track, is driving a truck.

Steve Brudzinski, varsity football and golf coach, took the golf team to state champs in 1956; he is teaching woods and mechanical drawing at CHS.

Mrs. Janet Boggs, who taught world history, now owns the Children's Shop.

SOS Has Busy Month

By ELLEN CHRISTY

"December is a busy month for SOS," stated club president Terri Strawser. Monday the club sold Charity Newsies for Kiwanis. They wrapped candy Tuesday for the DuPont Christmas party.

Wednesday the club will be participating in the Underprivileged Children's Christmas Party, which is held at the high school. The SOS Christmas party will be held Dec. 19 at the home of Judy Tharp. Members are going caroling at Berger Hospital and various rest homes.

Goods for the SOS Christmas basket are to be in by Dec. 19. Dance committees are meeting now to plan for the Sweetheart Dance on Feb. 11.

"I hope all of the club's members will get involved in these December events so that SOS can greatly benefit the community over the holidays," concluded Terri.

Student Returns To Circleville

KIM RIFFLE

By ANGIE ALLEN
"I like CHS, and I think it's a lot of fun," commented Kim Riffle, new sophomore at CHS.

Kim is returning to Circleville from Lakewood Junior High School. She resides at 154 Hayward Ave. with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Francis, and her two brothers.

Kim's hobbies are camping, fishing, and all sports. A big dislike of Kim's is homework.

Band Ready For Christmas Concert

By JANET SPRING

Have you been to the CHS music room lately? It really sounds like Christmas. The band and choir are busy preparing for the upcoming Christmas Concert Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The choir will be presenting several soloists as they sing, "Silent Night," "Masters in This Hall," "Christmas Song," and "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen." Harmony, the Swing Choir, will then perform two of their numbers: "Deck the Halls and All That Jazz" and a special version of "Away in a Manager," arranged to a Mendelssohn concerto. The choir will finish their part of the concert with "It's the Most Wonderful Time of the Year," "Hodie Emmanuel," and "Glory to the Newborn King."

The CHS Concert Band will be performing six of their numbers, starting with "Jingle Bell Rock." "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" and "Cantique De Noel" follow with "Of Festive Bells and Ancient Kings," "Great Songs of Christmas," and "Sleigh Ride."

F. Allen Howcroft, band director, stated, "Coming from football season down to concert season, there is an interesting changeover in dynamic contrast, and it is interesting to note the prominence that the woodwinds now must take. We feel it is difficult but not impossible to have each instrument playing so you can hear them."

Members of the choir, band, and Swing Choir hope for a good turnout to this festive holiday concert, which is open to the public.

Merchants Purchasing Magazines

By DENISE CRAWFORD
Ward's Cardinal Market has purchased ten magazine subscriptions, plastic covers, and one metal magazine rack for the Circleville High School Library, according to Mrs. Karen Seum, librarian.

They received these subscriptions and supplies from EBSCO, a magazine agency which goes to different businesses and asks them to buy subscriptions.

McDonald's will also furnish seven magazine subscriptions, plastic covers, and one metal magazine rack.

Mrs. Seum will choose the titles. In receiving these subscriptions and supplies Mrs. Seum stated, "The magazines are used and greatly appreciated by the students."

Capital Grad Teaching In Junior High

MRS. DEBRA MALLORY

By DEANNA CRAWFORD
A new addition to the teaching staff at the Circleville Junior High School is Mrs. Debra Mallory. Mrs. Mallory is a graduate of Capital University, and this is her first year of teaching. She commented that she likes the town and thinks it's quiet.

As a ninth grade English teacher, Mrs. Mallory stated, "I get the basics in English and reading across because I think it's important."

In addition to teaching English she will also coach the girls' reserve basketball and softball teams. Her hobbies are coaching the girl's basketball and softball teams and reading. She resides on Nicholas Court with her husband Greg.

The Engineering Technology department at Miami University offers instruction leading to a Bachelor of Science in Applied Science degree. Upon successful completion of this program, the graduates will be prepared to enter the engineering fields of manufacturing operations, technical services, and industrial marketing.

Otterbein College, in cooperation with Grant Hospital, offers a "2 plus 2" program in nursing. Upon successful completion of the first two years, one is to be prepared to write the licensing examination to become a Registered Nurse (RN). Upon successful completion of an additional two years of upper division nursing study, one will receive a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree (BSN) from Otterbein.

Representatives from Columbus Technical Institute will be here Tuesday and a representative from Hocking Tech next Friday. Interested students and parents are invited to attend these sessions.

Santa Visits School

By ANGIE ALLEN

Guess who's coming to CHS? Santa! Along with gifts, treats, and games, Santa will be at the SOS' Underprivileged Children's Party on Wednesday from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

Clubs at CHS are taking active part in organizing the party. Club's duties include the following: Annual Staff-party favors, DECA-name tags, EMS-invitations, Key Club-transportation, Latin Club-gifts, Red and Black staff-games, Student Council-Christmas tree and decorations, and The Curtain Callers will be presenting a Christmas play.

SOS members and advisor Mrs. Karen Seum have been busy planning and organizing the party for some time. Members Susan Crabtree and Cheryl Smith were selected as chairmen of the party and have headed up the plans. The SOS club is also in charge of transportation and refreshments.

So you better watch out, 'cause Santa Claus is coming to CHS!

Students Place In Contest

KATHLEEN HIGGINS AND KATHY BERRIGAN

By ANNA ISAAC
Kathy Berrigan, a junior at CHS, received first place in the county in the thirty-first annual Voice of Democracy contest. Kathleen Higgins, a sophomore, received second place.

This contest is sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States (VFW) and the Ladies Auxiliary of the VFW.

This year's theme is "My Responsibility to America." Participating students were to give a speech on this theme.

It was required for the students in Miss Joy Miller's Drama I and speech classes to participate in the contest.

Five students were chosen from each class. These students were Kathy Berrigan, Dawn Butler, Sue Frericks, Mary Gans, and Dave Marshall, who were chosen from the speech class, and Yon Bakalas, Ruth Baughman, Kathleen Higgins, Phil Jarrosiak and Kris Rahe, who were chosen from the Drama I class.

These ten students had to then present their speeches in the CHS auditorium and be judged by the English faculty of CHS for the high school competition.

Three students were chosen to represent CHS in the County competition. They were Kathy, Kathleen, and Ruth Baughman, a senior.

These three students attended a banquet at Johnny's Restaurant to compete for the county title on Dec. 1.

Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Higgins, won second place and received a plaque and $25.

Kathy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Berrigan, won first place and received a plaque and $50. Kathy will now compete in the district competition.

When asked how she felt about winning, Kathy commented, "I was very happy and surprised to win." Kathleen stated, "I was happy to receive second place for Circleville."

Pillow Fighters

Make Better Lovers

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The harder a husband and wife whack each other in pillow fights, the more likely it is that their marriage is a happy one, a University of Utah study indicates.

A study of 23 married couples by four researchers indicates that spouses who walloped each other the hardest with soft pillow clubs reported less discord in their marriages than those with lighter touches.

The study, designed to examine non-verbal communication, involved putting couples into a 6-foot ring. Participants were asked to bop each other for a minute with the clubs, which were wired to show the number, frequency and intensity of the blows.

After the bouts, the couples completed a questionnaire to measure agreement on 10 marital issues.

Researchers said spouses who openly and vigorously expressed anger in a playful setting appeared to be closer than others.

Mrs. Brown is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard England, 28484 Kingston Pike and is the wife of the pastor of Northwest United Methodist Church in Columbus, the Rev. Paul Brown.

Carson Sentenced

CINCINNATI (AP) — John Carson, 52, former administrator for two Cincinnati halfway houses for alcoholics, has been sentenced to 1-5 years for theft.

Carson was convicted in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court of diverting $5,000 in welfare vouchers.

One of the world's largest manmade lakes is the Lake of the Ozarks, which has 650 billion gallons of water and 1,375 miles of shoreline.

Film To Be Shown At Ringgold UM

"Corrie: Behind the Scenes with The Hiding Place," a new full-length color release from World Wide Pictures, will be shown at the East Ringgold United Methodist Church, 17689 Main Street, Ringgold, Ohio, on Sunday. A single showing is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

"The Hiding Place," a true story filmed in Holland and other European locations, is based on the experiences of Corrie ten Boom, who, with her father, sister, and brother, provided refuge for countless Jewish families. A secret room was constructed in their home as a hiding place for use during Gestapo raids. The ten Boom's activities were discovered, and they were sent to prisons and concentration camps.

According to Kenneth Bliss, Director

of Distribution for World Wide Pictures, "The Hiding Place" has been extremely well-received, both by audiences and film critics. "Corrie" was produced to give people who have seen 'The Hiding Place' or read her many best-selling books an opportunity to hear her share many of her memories about her life in Holland, her family, and her lifetime of service to others."

Bliss added that the film "offers a great lesson in the perseverance of a personal faith in a very dark and trying period of world history. Corrie ten Boom, now in her eighties, has a tremendous vitality, a deep spiritual commitment, and a profound love for her fellow man. We believe we have succeeded in transmitting a part of her zest, personality, and source of strength through this film."

Bliss noted that the film includes "interesting sidelights on the experiences of the cast and crew during the filming of 'The Hiding Place'."

The Reverend Michael E. Swanton, pastor of the Ringgold Church, stresses that the showing of "Corrie" is open to the public free of charge. Only a "free will" offering will be taken. "We encourage families to plan to attend together, for what we believe will be a memorable experience," he concluded. A nursery will be provided for those attending with small children.

LIKE SOLDIERS

There's beauty to the morning after a snowstorm, with the world turned white. The trees march in line like soldiers buried under the weight of their packs. Branches bend under the load; sometimes they break. But, more often they're resilient enough to withstand the storm . . . and still keep growing.

Can we say the same of ourselves? Do we stand up under burdens, or do our hidden shoulders snap and break? It might help us to bear heavy loads if we realized that we're never alone. The world is full of others staggering along under their own burdens, and most of them manage to keep going. And the lucky ones who have a true faith even realize that the pilgrimage has a reason, a meaning, even though they may not understand it.

Where do you find faith? You don't. It comes to you. And the Church is the first step toward such a meeting.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — It's been 20 years since Raymond Burr began a long run as television's most famous barrister, and the burly Canadian actor is as busy as ever.

"I did a cameo thing in '79 Park Avenue,' the television special, I had a part in a movie we just finished in Canada and I'm talking about two other movies now," said Burr, known round the world for his portrayal of "Perry Mason" in the courtroom series that ran nine seasons.

"I'm considering a two-hour special for television," the actor continued, "and I'm thinking about a television series, though there would have to be limitations written into it, like six months a year away from work."

"If I don't go back to television next year with another series, I won't go back for a series at all," Burr said.

Burr's next scheduled ap pearance on TV is as narrator of a public television special Christmas Eve, "Christmas Around the World." It's an hour-long program of live reports on Christmas celebrations in eight countries.

Burr, at 60, maintains the commanding presence that made him a symbol of justice both as Mason and as the wheelchair-bound Chief Robert Ironside in the crime series, "Ironside." It's difficult to sit across from Burr and not think of Mason and Ironside.

"People really identified me with law and justice when I got into the 'Perry Mason' show," Burr said. "In fact, I stopped driving my car whenever I'd had a drink. How would it look for Mason to be arrested for drunken driving?"

"I didn't live 24 hours a day as Perry Mason or Robert Ironside," Burr said, "but I always thought it was important to become vitally interested in the characters."

"Perry Mason" is as popular as it was—episodes still are being rerun in this country and abroad—for several reasons, Burr said. The cast was a good one, the writing and direction were superior, and, said Burr, "I don't think there's anything like nine years on television for developing a character."

"And then I think we were dealing with certain fundamental truths," he said, "that most people could identify with."

Burr acted on the stage and in scores of movies before "Perry Mason." Until then, he was best known as the prosecuting attorney in "A Place in the Sun" and the killer in "Rear Window."

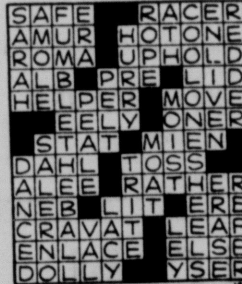

Though crime was at the core of both "Perry Mason" and "Ironside," violence was downplayed in favor of reasoning as a solution to the characters' problems.

"The kinds of things on today are more of a reflection of the times we're in," Burr said.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR SATURDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Be careful in your approaches. Also, be enthusiastic about all endeavors or your efforts may not impress, may not produce the results you seek.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Do not let a desire for comfort or pleasure cause you to neglect duties important to your future. Be tactful in making requests, not demanding.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Do not fret over delays or disappointments. Meet obstacles with composure: YOU can overcome them all.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): If dubious about certain matters, give them further study and, if necessary, seek expert advice. In leisure time, devote yourself to a hobby for a change of pace.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Collaborate on a program with associates who have allied interests and principles. Some excellent ideas could result from a "meeting of minds."

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Friends, associates may want to change some plans. Consider carefully before objecting. You may see new values.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): One of your ideas which others might consider "visionary" seems to have solid foundation, so give it more thought and don't let others discourage you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): A day calling for flexibility. Don't adhere rigidly to a course when new developments definitely call for a change of policy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your impulse to "get going" should be checked until associates are ready to join you. Forcing matters will only lead to dissension.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): With further thought, you now see possibilities in hitherto barren areas of achievement so, if you're in a mood to take a chance, go ahead. Success likely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Good stellar influences. Especially favored: real estate interests, home improvements, family concerns and social activities.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may not be in the best position to take action on a cherished project just now, but that needn't deter you from keeping your plans in mind.

YOU BORN TODAY are roundly talented and will show definite leanings toward certain interests early in life. Follow your intuition: it is potent. You have an intense love of freedom and independence and may eschew marriage and domesticity for fear of being "trapped."

Where your career is concerned, you have many choices, notably in the business and (or) financial world; in music, literature, medicine, the law or science. You have an ardent nature, but are not particularly demonstrative; love the outdoors, sports and animals.

Birthdate of: Cesar Franck, noted composer; Emily Dickinson, Amer. poet; Chet Huntley, TV news commentator.

Brothers Keep Alive Art
Of Chairmaking

BOSS HOLLOW, ARK. AP — The government is custodian of a vanishing American wilderness. Jack McCutcheon is custodian of a vanishing American art. One or the other is going to have to give.

Jack McCutcheon is a chairmaker. In partnership with his brother-in-law, Charles Christian, he makes chairs in a fashion handed down from the earliest settlers of the Ozarks, a hardy, self-sufficient breed who made do by the bounty of the wilderness and their own wits.

Jack and Charles learned the chairmaking art from Jim Nichols, Charlie's father-in-law, who is now 73 and who, as a lad of 16, learned from his own father, and so on back to the pioneers.

Some years ago Jack and Charles were invited to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington to demonstrate their techniques to scholars of America's folkways. Such is the rarity of their craft.

It is a method involving warping the wood by boiling and then fitting the curved pieces together precisely, joining seasoned wood to unseasoned wood so the joints grow stronger with age, not weaker.

They use no nails or screws or glue. Most of their tools are hand made. Yet chairs made by Jim Nichols more than half a century ago are as sound as ever, and chairs made by Jack and Charles will be around long after both of them are gone. They are functional chairs, simple, straightforward, as honest in design as they are sturdy.

"I have heard of a man in Kentucky who makes chair bottoms the way we do," Jack McCutcheon said. "I don't know his name. If there are others, I haven't heard of them."

"Most of the people who make chairs similar to ours, hand made chairs, use split oak for the seat bottoms. I really believe we're the last using bitternut bark. Nothing I've seen is as good or lasts as long."

There's the rub. Bitternut trees, a variety of hickory, grow in relative abundance in this sparsely populated section of the Ozarks. But, gradually, more and more of this section has been designated as wilderness area, a legal designation which preserves the natural state of an area by prohibiting the cutting of a single tree.

On recent Saturday Jack McCutcheon, his wife, Lois, and their 23-year-old son, Carl, drove 15 miles from their home at Ben's Branch over sinuous mountain roads, no more than dirt lanes, to the nearest legal stand of bitternuts Jack had been able to scout out.

They parked at the mouth of Boss Hollow and then walked, or rather scrambled, a quarter of a mile along rugged slopes to the remote site.

"The bitternut isn't a regular hickory tree," Jack said. "It's really a weed tree. Timber people clear them out and throw them away when they set up a logging operation. But it's the only tree we can use for our chairs. No other kind will do."

The irony is that if Jack McCutcheon's source of supply is cut off, tauntingly, in the valiant effort to preserve the wilderness, a tree will live and an American folk art will die.

Violence Flares At Ohio Mines

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Violence has flared at Ohio coal mines for the first time since the nationwide strike by the United Mine Workers began Tuesday.

A pre-dawn scuffle at Southern Ohio Coal Co.'s Meigs No. 1 mine near Pomeroy included gunfire Thursday. But a Meigs County sheriff's department special investigator was unable to determine where the shots came from.

Striking mine workers were picketing the mine and non-union mine foremen were inside the mine at the time of the shooting. There were no injuries or arrests.

Later in the day, a firebomb was ignited at Southern Ohio's Racoon No. 3 mine in Vinton County, but authorities said it did no damage or injuries.

Sheriff's dispatcher Kathryn Davis said pickets threw the bomb near the mine complex entrance. Sheriff's deputies and Highway Patrol troopers were sent to the mine at least twice Thursday to clear pickets from the entrance.

Steve Hiles, a spokesman for the American Electric Power Co. in Lancaster, said the company had received assurance from District 6 UMW officials that the harrassment at the company's three mines would stop by late Thursday evening. Southern Ohio Coal is a subsidiary of American Electric Power Co.

Hiles said pickets at Southern's three Meigs County mines had interfered with access to and from the mines by nonstriking employees and vendors.

Early Thursday, strikers erected barricades at the mines to keep personnel out, Hiles said. He said two individuals complained rocks were thrown in their car windows as they drove through the area.

Hiles said the union officials said pickets would be limited and free access would be provided to the mines.

Negotiations between the 160,000-member UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association were to resume in Washington Thursday.

The union is demanding the right to strike at individual mines and a refinancing of the union's troubled health and pension funds. Coal operators, meanwhile, are demanding that the new contract contain penalties against miners who participate in wildcat strikes.

Membership ratification procedures for a new, three-year contract will take at least 10 days to complete.

Some 10,000 Ohio miners are idled by the strike.

Costello began measuring. The letter "D" in Dallas was 7 feet from the floor of the boxcar. "Apr. 4, 1963" was 5 feet, 8 inches from the floor. That gave him an idea how big the writer was.

Next, Costello talked to Bressler. The mill hand told him he found the door of the boxcar shut, but that its seals were old and had been broken. Van Washenova said the same.

Agent James E. Cullen photographed the inside of the boxcar.

Now there were two choices: Assume the words about Oswald were written after Kennedy was killed. That would mean tracing its whereabouts since Nov. 22. Or assume the more ominous — that the words were written before the assassination.

As early as April 4? Earlier?

That would mean tracing the boxcar all over the country, talking to innumerable people, spending day after day, tying up agent after agent. . .

Agent Lawrence M. Cooper in Detroit decided to do both.

From Martin Howe, freight service manager for the New York Central Railroad, he found:

—On assassination day, Boxcar 124475 moved from Detroit to Vassar, Mich.

—It was unloaded at the Super Food Co.

—Five days later, it moved empty back to Detroit.

—After that, it moved empty from Detroit to Newport.

Also from Howe at the New York Central, agent Cooper got an itinerary for the boxcar reaching back to March 4.

Sketchy as the itinerary was, it was 49 lines long, listed cities from Seattle to Weehawken and named railroads from the Western Pacific to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy.

Boxcar 124475's cross-country wanderings became agent Cooper's problem.

Agent Horace Beckwith got the job of tracing the car in Michigan since Nov. 22.

And agent Beckwith got a break. At Super Foods in Vassar, manager Frank Stevenson said Boxcar 124475, filled with Quaker Oats, had been sealed from assassination day until Nov. 26. On that day, it was unloaded by a receiving clerk named Russell Torrey.

Beckwith found Torrey in the Super Foods warehouse.

Had he unloaded a boxcar full of Quaker Oats on Nov. 26?

Well, yes, he had.

Did he notice Lee Harvey Oswald's name scrawled inside?

Well, in fact, sometime that Tuesday afternoon, before he had completely finished lugging the Quaker Oats out of the boxcar, he'd stopped working for a few minutes and written Oswald's name inside the car with yellow chalk he used to mark freight boxes.

Division Of Parks To Hold Hearing On Rule Changes

COLUMBUS — The Division of Parks and Recreation of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR) will hold a public rules hearing Thursday, December 15, in Columbus to discuss rule changes concerning the operation and use of state park facilities.

The hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Building C conference room at ODNR's Fountain Square headquarters. Fountain Square is located just south of Northland Shopping Center at 1952 Belcher Drive in northeast Columbus.

Purpose of the public hearing is to permit persons to express their views on the proposed rules, according to Ralph Vanzant, Chief of the Division of Parks and Recreation.

The proposed rule changes would enable persons who are permanently or totally disabled to camp in state park camping areas at one-half the regular fee. They will also be allowed the same benefits as holders of Golden Buckeye Cards.

Under the proposed rules, Golden Buckeye Card holders will be entitled to reduced rates at state park cabin facilities from Tuesday following Labor Day weekend in September through Thursday preceding Memorial Day weekend in May. Currently, card holders are entitled to reduced rates from November 1 through March 31.

Additional rule changes to be presented at the public hearing would:

- Permit overnight sleeping on boats in designated areas for a cost of $2 per night. Class A or B campers and holders of seasonal dock permits will be exempt from paying a fee.
- Allow individuals not registered as campers to use a trailer waste station facility at a state park campground for a cost of $1.
- Permit dogs, trained for the purpose of aiding deaf persons and being used to aid such persons, in state park cabins, lodges, beaches and campgrounds.
- Prohibit any passengers, except the driver, from being in a motor vehicle while launching or loading a boat from a state park boat ramp.

— Allow the waist flotation device referred to as the "belly boat" to be used when fishing on ODNR-maintained lakes. The "belly boat" is prohibited for use in swimming areas and ski zones.

A copy of the proposed rule changes may be obtained from the Division of Parks and Recreation, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus 43224.

Hussein Cuts Short Talks With Egyptian Leader

CAIRO (AP) — King Hussein, trying to mediate the Arab dispute over President Anwar Sadat's peace overtures to Israel, unexpectedly returned to Jordan today after his talks with Sadat were cut short.

Syrian President Hafez Assad, meanwhile, toured the Persian Gulf trying to get Sadat's bankrollers to use financial pressure to stifle the Egyptian leader's one-man peace campaign.

In Brussels, Belgium, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said before leaving on his own Middle East tour that Sadat's planned Cairo peace talks next week could lead to "an agreement in principle covering a comprehensive settlement."

He said Washington and Moscow are deeply divided over the talks. "I do not believe they (the Russians) would support in any way the Cairo conference," he said.

Vance, who spoke with reporters at the end of a meeting of Atlantic alliance foreign ministers, was scheduled to arrive in Cairo later today.

Sadat and Hussein met for 2½ hours Thursday night, and Egyptian newspapers and Jordanian diplomats said the talks were to resume today.

But 10 minutes after a grimlooking Sadat arrived at Kubbeh Palace for the expected meeting today, the two rode off to Cairo airport and the Jordanian monarch flew home.

This prompted speculation that Hussein's mission had failed, at least for the moment. He had met Wednesday with Syria's Assad with no apparent results.

Assad arrived in Kuwait today from Riyadh, where he met Thursday with King Khaled of Saudi Arabia and Crown Prince Fahd, the Saudi prime minister. Saudi Arabia is the chief contributor of oil wealth to impoverished Egypt.

There was no indication the Syrian president had succeeded in getting Khaled and Fahd to put pressure on Sadat by threatening to cut off crucial financial support.

After Assad departed, the Saudi information minister, Mohammed Abdo Yamani, said King Khaled has "expressed hope that Allah will help the Arabs reunify their ranks and achieve their aspirations."

The Syrian president was going on Saturday to Qatar, another oil-rich state on the Persian Gulf.

A leading Egyptian newspaper editor who accompanied Sadat on his historic trip to Jerusalem told a news conference in New York that Saudi Arabia and Kuwait both approved of the Egyptian leader's strategy.

"I have read letters between President Sadat and King Khaled," said Moussa Sabri, editor-in-chief of Al Akhbar. "I know that there were many contacts between President Sadat and Saudi Arabia. Saudi Arabia is backing the visit. So are Kuwait, the Gulf coast, Sudan, the Emirates, Morocco and Tunisia."

"Syria will come back with Egypt

because there is no alternative," the editor commented. "If the Syrians want to make war, they can't alone. If they are struggling for peace, we are struggling for peace."

Hussein, attempting to breach the gap between Assad and Sadat, came to Cairo Thursday from Damascus. The Syrian government press and radio reported he failed to shake Assad's opposition to the direct Israeli-Egyptian dialogue engineered by Sadat.

The king had been expected to follow Assad to Riyadh, but instead he went home to Amman. There was no explanation, and it was not known if he might go to Saudi Arabia later.

Preparations continued for the second stage of Sadat's peace initiative — talks opening in Cairo Wednesday between Egypt and Israel, along with U.S. and United Nations representatives, to make preparations for a general Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva.

Unconfirmed reports said Hussein might send an observer to the conference, but informed sources said he would hesitate to do so if that would threaten his relations with Assad.

Another mediator trying to bring Sadat and Assad together again, U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, was flying to Cairo today from a NATO meeting in Brussels. Officials said he was able to arouse only lukewarm support among America's European allies for the Egyptian-Israeli peace effort.

Board Upholds Action

By CRAIG ALLISON
Herald Staff Writer

The Circleville Board of Education met in regular session Thursday evening in the Board Offices on the first floor of the Junior High School. Board President Robert Johnson called the meeting to order at 7:40 p.m.

Before going through regular business, the Board heard from several parents whose daughters are members of the Tigerette marching corps in the Circleville High School Band.

The parents brought before the Board the suspension of the Tigerettes as a marching group for the rest of the school year. The suspension came, according to Band Director Allen Howcroft, after the group changed the end of a marching routine at the Hillsboro football game without his prior knowledge or permission.

The parents stated that they were concerned that the suspension of the Tigerettes as a marching group for the remainder of this school year was too harsh a punishment for the deed that was done.

Howcroft was the first to speak. In his opening remarks, he stated that there had been a few different incidents of uniform problems with the Tigerette group during the past football season. One such occasion, according to Howcroft, was at the Hillsboro-Circleville football game, when the group wore new uniforms that he had not seen until the night of the game. Howcroft stated that the girls failed to consult him during the procurement of the new uniforms. There was another incident of uniform change concerning hats, that again was done without consulting Howcroft, according to the band director.

"Before the Hillsboro football game," stated Howcroft, "the girls voted to change the routine at the end of their dance, and I was not consulted before the incident took place. I didn't say anything about it immediately, but rather I thought about it over that weekend at home," he stated. "At first I considered removing the young ladies from the band entirely, but after more thought on the matter, I decided to suspend the Tigerettes as a marching group for the remainder of this school year." According to Howcroft, the girls will be permitted to participate in the band, but not as a Tigerette group.

Parents speaking included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Culmins, Mr. James Lockard, Mrs. Nancy Speakman, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Strawser. In similar remarks to the members of the Board, and speaking on behalf of their daughters, they stated to the Board that they felt the punishment given the girls for changing their routine without permission was too severe. They felt that there was a breakdown in communication, and some of them asked who the extra groups in the band (such as Tigerettes, color guard, and majorettes) finally answered to—Howcroft, Assistant Band Director Deborah Fannin, or co-captains within those individual marching units. Howcroft stated that he was in charge of all the separate marching units, and that routines, policies, and proper uniforms were all his ultimate responsibility.

Also speaking to the Board were Terry Agin, Janice Miller, Raymond Nance, and Betty Connell, all representing the Circleville Band Boosters. They all stressed to the Board the importance of firm discipline, and they informed the Board that the reputation of the Cir-

FBI Followed Every Tip In Kennedy Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — It all started when Allen Bressler and Edward Van Washenova opened the boxcar.

Like a small barn on wheels, it squatted on the railroad tracks in Newport, Mich., in the December cold 10 days after John F. Kennedy was killed in Dallas.

The boxcar was waiting for grain from Kahlbaum Brothers, a mill that contributed much to the economy of Newport and virtually all to the economy of Bressler and Van Washenova.

Their job was to get the boxcar ready for loading. But what the two saw inside brought them up short.

Before the day was out, their alarm would set in motion an intense, 72-hour effort by four FBI agents to trace the whereabouts of the boxcar during the previous eight months, find out who might have been inside, discover why he did what he did and learn what he knew about the murder of a president.

The hunt was typical of the dogged effort the FBI mounted in pursuit of almost every tip they got after Kennedy's assassination on Nov. 22, 1963.

Files made public this week, 14 years later, make some of the unsuccessful efforts look ridiculous.

When Bressler and Van Washenova opened the doors on New York Central Boxcar No. 124475, they saw printed on the wall in yellow chalk:

"Lee Oswald, Dallas Texas." The city and state were underlined.

Printed to the right were these words:

"Future man of destiny, Apr. 4, 1963."

That was eight months before the assassination. How did the writer know? Was this evidence of a conspiracy?

On the spot, Bressler and Van Washenova dropped any notion of filling the boxcar. They set out to find Harold McCormick, manager of the mill. They told him what they'd seen.

Then they called the FBI.

The Detroit field office handled the tip. Agent Paul Costello went to Newport and talked to McCormick. The manager told him Boxcar 124475 was rolled up to the mill on Friday evening, Nov. 29 — seven days after Kennedy was shot.

Agent Costello walked out to the tracks. Inside the car, he found the writing. He also found this written in black:

"201 Southeast, 199 Portland, Oregon, U.S.A., North America, earth

Communists May Have Wanted Kennedy Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The late J. Edgar Hoover once said it was "entirely possible" that communists wanted to do away with John F. Kennedy because he was getting along too well with the Russians.

Six months after Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas by Lee Harvey Oswald, the FBI chief agreed with speculation that communists might have wanted to be rid of the president "so that this obstacle to their desired philosophy could be removed."

There was little elaboration to the remark, which was found among the 40,001 pages of FBI files on the Kennedy assassination opened this week to public view.

The reference was in the typed notes of an interview that Hoover granted to William Manchester, who had been commissioned by Kennedy's widow, Jacqueline, to write an account of the traumatic events surrounding the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination in Dallas.

"Manchester speculated that perhaps the communists, including Oswald, did not like the relationship between the late president and (Soviet Chairman Nikita) Khrushchev," the notes say. "The director replied that this was entirely possible ... The director told Manchester that he had always felt it better to kick individuals like Khrushchev on the shins once in a while rather than to boot-lick them."

The bulky FBI files show that detente between Russia and the United States apparently was first raised as a possible contributing motive for the assassination by Sanchez Bella, the Spanish ambassador to Italy.

Bella told reporters in Rome on Dec. 5, 1963 — 13 days after the Kennedy assassination — that Spain's intelligence services had established a possible link between Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, Oswald and the events in Dallas.

The ambassador cited Castro's concern about the improving relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union as a possible reason for wanting to see Kennedy killed.

Hoover said it was difficult to speculate on the motives of Oswald, whose interest in socialism and communism dated back to his mid-teens. Perhaps, Hoover mused, Oswald was aiming at Texas Gov. John Connally, a passenger in the presidential convertible who was seriously wounded by the assassin.

The 24-foot stack of papers released this week will be matched in January when the second half is made public. But still, skeptics of the Warren Report and its conclusion that Oswald acted alone were less than pleased.

"I'll wait until the next 40,000 pages come out," said Mark Lane, author of "Rush to Judgment."

And Harold Weisberg, who wrote seven books on the assassination while fighting to obtain the FBI documents, argued that the sheer bulk renders the material "indigestible by even the most competent, conscientious journalist."

Indeed, the size of the investigation,

the pursuit of the most tenuous of leads, the interviews with hundreds of people crosschecked and double-checked is more impressive than anything in the materials. The documents so far have revealed nothing to challenge the Warren Commission's conclusion that there was no conspiracy.

The FBI scoured the country for any clue to Oswald and to Jack Ruby, the night club owner who killed him. Any crank who made a report, any theory, no matter how remote or seemingly crackpot, was at least listened to — and often acted on. In June 1964, six months after the event, Hoover told Manchester that 50 FBI men were still on the case fulltime.

The FBI director was critical of the way the Dallas police handled the Kennedy assassination. He told Manchester if the FBI had taken custody of Oswald, he would never have been killed by Ruby.

FBI men obtained Oswald's psychiatric records when he was 13

benefits to 33 million Americans, is in trouble because of high unemployment, inflation and some overly generous benefits voted in 1972. The giant system is paying out more money in benefits than it is taking in through taxes.

Congress and the Carter administration would like to repair the damage before the 1978 election year.

On Wednesday and early Thursday, leaders of the Senate-House conference committee that is working on Social Security had sketched out a basic compromise on key issues.

They would have continued the traditional 50-50 employer-employee split of payroll taxes; raised the amount a pensioner may earn and still receive full Social Security benefits, and allowed a one-year income tax cut of up to $250 per student to help offset college costs.

But that proposed agreement fell apart later Thursday. And although some questions were raised about the basic Social Security issues, the big sticking point was a series of welfare amendments written by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance subcommittee on welfare.

The most important part of the Moynihan package is a $374 million grant to help states, cities and counties pay welfare costs over the next 10 months. The biggest single share of that money, $53 million, would go to Moynihan's home state, and most of that to financially ailing New York City.

At first, the Carter administration rejected any notion of tying the welfare amendments to Social Security. Carter aides feared the amendments would make it more difficult for Congress to approve the president's big welfare-revision package next year and might torpedo the Social Security bill.

But Moynihan convinced Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, to hold up final committee action on Social Security until Carter dropped opposition to the welfare amendments.

The Carter administration, noting Long's influence on tax revision, welfare, energy taxes and Social Security, reluctantly agreed to go along with the Moynihan amendments. But House members with influence of their own appeared adamantly opposed to the welfare provisions.

Weather

Travelers advisory continues in effect today and tonight. Very windy and much colder with periods of light snow today and tonight. Falling temperatures today, reaching the middle teens by afternoon and dropping to zero to five-below zero tonight. Very cold and mostly sunny with diminishing winds and temperatures from 10 to 15 degrees Saturday. Chances of precipitation, 60 percent today, 50 percent tonight and 20 percent Saturday. All roads in the area are extremely hazardous and drivers are urged to use extreme caution. Walking is also very dangerous as sidewalks are ice covered and slippery.

Market Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices put together a modest advance today, aided by signs that the dollar was stabilizing in foreign exchange markets.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.47 to 810.38 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said an upturn by the dollar which began on Thursday helped to lift traders' spirits.

The recent slump in the U.S. currency was regarded as a negative for the market since it is presumed to have discouraged foreign buying of stocks in this country.

Virginia Electric & Power was the most active NYSE issue, off 1/4 at 14 1/4.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped .52 to 806.91.

But advances outnumbered declines by a 4-3 spread on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 20.40 million shares against 21.05 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .09 to 51.37.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed .72 to 123.19.

Cincinnati Puts Pressure On For ERA

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati City Council took a leadership role in economic sanctions against states which have not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment but only after making sure it would not cost the city federal funds.

Council barred officials and employees from going to conventions and seminars in states which have not ratified the ERA, unless they are conducting city business.

"Cities can help in exerting this economic pressure which may help speed ratification," said Councilwoman Bobbie Sterne, who will assume her second term as mayor in January 1979.

The council voted Wednesday to bar officials and city employees from attending conventions and seminars in the 15 states which have not ratified the ERA.

"The more people refuse to attend conventions in unratified states, the more national organizations will be encouraged to join the boycott," said Mrs. Sterne.

The measure was amended, however, when City Manager William Donaldson pointed out that representatives must go regularly to Chicago where regional headquarters are located for the Departments of Labor and Housing and Urban Development which supply federal funds. Illinois has not ratified the ERA.

The resolution was amended to limit such visits to official business only. Minority Republican Councilman Guy Guckenberger called Mrs. Sterne's resolution "frivolous."

"Why don't we petition President Carter not to go back to Georgia since Georgia is one of the states that has not ratified ERA?" he asked.

"You're just saying that because you're a male," Mrs. Sterne answered. "I will plead my case for myself and all the other women in this country."

Guckenberger then changed his vote after approval of the amendment. Councilman David Mann, the lone final dissenter, said he approves of the ERA but not economic measures to force it.

Icy Winds Send Snow Swirling Across Midwest

Raw icy winds sent fresh snow swirling across sections of the Midwest and Northeast today, stranding motorists on clogged highways and forcing schools and businesses to close.

Temperatures plummeted as the storm, born of a low pressure system in the Rockies and fed by frigid Arctic air, sliced through the nation's mid-section. In Dallas, the mercury dropped from a record high of 80 in mid-afternoon to 30 this morning. Temperatures were below the freezing mark in the Panhandle.

In the Dakotas, temperatures of 25 to 30 below zero combined with winds of 15 to 25 mph for wind-chill indexes of 60 to 80 below. Temperatures of 40 below were predicted today in both states.

"The freeways are a mess," said a Michigan state police dispatcher in Detroit on Thursday. "Rush-hour traffic is bad enough on a good day. Today it's horrible."

Dozens of abandoned cars lined freeway shoulders, mostly buried under snow from passing plows. Detroit's zero-degree reading Thursday set a record for the coldest Dec. 8 since 1882. The snow was blamed for the death of Lloyd Jakubos, 48, of Lapeer, Mich., in a crash on state route 24, state police said.

The new snow, added to the crusty accumulations of the past week, buried some communities in snow as deep as 36 inches.

Up to four more inches were forecast today for Michigan, northern Ohio, western Pennsylvania, extreme northern West Virginia and most of New York. Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine were to get between four and eight inches.

Near blizzard conditions exist today in Minnesota, where roads are blocked in the western and southern portions of the state. Temperatures — well below zero in most of the state — are not expected to top 10 below today.

Thursday's heaviest snow, four to nine inches, was across the southern Great Lakes region. Meadville, tucked in the northwestern corner of Pennsylvania, was still digging from beneath 30 inches received since Monday when the new storm began, piling up new snow at a rate of an inch an hour.

State police said many tractor-trailer rigs and private vehicles were abandoned on Interstates 79 and 90 in Erie County.

Three to seven inches of new snow fell on southwestern Pennsylvania, cleveland High School Band was "beyond reproach." "Everywhere our band travels, we get nothing but admiration and respect from other persons and other bands," they said.

Next to speak were CHS Principal Paul Sarchet, and Secondary Supervisor Rodger Wolfe. They stated that they felt Howcroft could have given a more drastic punishment in removing the girls from the band entirely, and they supported Howcroft both in the punishment and in the decision making process he used in arriving at that punishment.

Attendance at professional meetings was also approved for staff members. Doris Gillespie will attend "Ohio college bound students and financial aid" in Columbus on Dec. 15. Rodger Born will attend "Positive practices for principals" in Columbus Feb. 1-3.

The Board arranged for an organizational meeting on Wednesday, January 4, and they scheduled a special meeting for evaluation and goal setting for December 14 at noon. The Board gave approval to an administrator evaluation procedure to be adopted immediately. They also approved payment of dues for the Ohio School Board Association. The total of the payment was $600.

Also approved were investments and transfers from the clerk, along with various staff reports.

After discussing correspondence that had been received, the Board moved to reply to a particular letter as a Board. Johnson informed the Board that he had spoken to various professional and business groups, and encouraged other Board members to do the same if they had the chance.

Jean Droste was also welcomed as a new member of the Board. She will start her duties in January. Forrest Brown was also welcomed back for another term on the Board.

With all business finished, the Board adjourned at 10:15 p.m.

London Prisoners Still At Ohio Pen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The old state penitentiary at Columbus still houses 343 prisoners transferred from the London Correctional Institute two weeks ago following a work stoppage.

The prisoners were sent here after corrections officials asked inmates whether they wanted to work, said corrections department spokesman George Lehner.

In the two weeks since the transfer, 60 hearings have been held to determine who should be returned to London, but nobody has gone back, said Lehner.

He described the prisoners' action at London as a "sporadic work stoppage ... that did not affect operations." Prisoners involved in the stoppage did not say what they wanted, Lehner said.

The transfer reduced the inmate population at London from 1,306 from the normal level of about 1,600 and increased the population at Columbus to about 1,500, he added.

Squirrel Finds Warm Place

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A squirrel looking for a place to nestle on a cool West Texas morning found a warm spot, but he left a lot of other folks without electricity for a half hour.

Don Revell, district manager for West Texas Utility Company, said the squirrel was found on a voltage regulator Thursday, following a power failure downtown and in a residential area in this town of 95,000.

"We have that occasionally out here. Snakes and squirrels will climb up onto the transformers and trip the breakers," Revell said.

Cincinnati Bus Workers On Strike

CINCINNATI (AP) — Adament bus drivers and mechanics remained off the job, and no new talks were scheduled in the second day of Cincinnati's transit strike.

Gene Metz, president of Local 647, Amalgamated Transit Workers, said the union will demand binding arbitration to counter Queen City Metro's suggestion for partial arbitration.

Cincinnati schools reported 50 percent of the junior and senior high school students stayed home Thursday on the average. Transit officials said 26,000 of Cincinnati's 63,000 public school pupils ride buses.

Ironically, Cincinnati police reported very few traffic problems as more than 6,000 bus riders sought other means of transportation to work, school and shopping.

However, massive jams were reported in the heavily industrialized suburbs north of the city.

"The expected traffic problems were not the catastrophe predicted. In Cincinnati, a transit strike is not a catastrophe like in New York."

The normal bustle of Christmas shoppers was noticeably absent Thursday. Police also speculated that many people stayed home because of the predicted heavy snowfall which did not occur during the day.

Commercial Point News

By ESTHER NULL, PHONE 877-3108

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Trego have returned from spending several days including, Thanksgiving Day, in Joliet, Ill., visiting with their daughter Ann and her family.

Our sympathy is with the Kessler family, Jeanie's Mother Katie Thomas Weber died last Thursday in Dublin, Ohio.

With the sick this week: Jessie Hill, a former resident of this vicinity was operated on at Riverside Hospital last Tuesday, Kate Bidwell had surgery in St. Anthony's last Thursday; Jodie Lawless is in Mt. Carmel for x-rays and tests; Fred Dountz, at home, was pushed into a wall by a cow last Friday and is suffering a broken rib and is pretty stoved up; Ross Bidwell was cutting some trees and had the misfortune of having one fall on him,

James Jacobs said students who cannot get to school will not be penalized for their absence if they bring a note from their parents when they return.

Meanwhile, Gene Metz, president of Local 627 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, predicted the strike, while unsanctioned by the union, "might be a long one."

no broken bones, but, he's not ready to run any foot races as yet; George Null (your local Postmaster) is in Grant Hospital in room 830 as of Saturday, he is in for tests and possible surgery soon.

The Orville Dountz's were honored last Saturday evening when their children and their families treated them to dinner at Clydes in German Village. The honored couple were celebrating their Wedding Anniversary. There were about 12 people in the party, so I'm sure they all had a very pleasant evening. Congratulations and many more Anniversaries to come.

Don't forget, you Senior Citizens the dinners at the church, if you do not have transportation to and from the church, just call the Methodist Church and they will provide you with transportation to and from Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Becker would like to invite you, the public, up to see their Christmas decorations at their home, both inside and out. If you would like to take pictures you are most welcome to do so.

Orville Rasor is in Mount Carmel Hospital at this time. I hear he has pneumonia.

Happy Thought

If the ears of the nation's taxpayers are quivering more than usual these days, it could be because a number of people in high government offices are saying it soon will be time to reduce taxes. Like a dog in the vicinity of a juicy bone, otherwise bored citizens perk up when the subject is tax reduction.

The President said he will propose tax cuts early next year, even before he gets around to tax reform. Individual members of Congress have been voicing similar sentiments. None of them is advocating a comparable reduction in federal spending, which indicates a substantial deficit now is an accepted part of the federal budget.

Since no specific tax reduction proposals have been presented as yet, no one knows what form they might take. The options are many. A permanent tax reduction could be accomplished simply by reducing tax tables a notch or two. A temporary reduction could come as a tax credit.

Or, the personal exemption of $750 now allowed the taxpayer and each dependent could be increased. The exemption has had an interesting history. When the first income tax law was adopted in 1913, each taxpayer was allowed an exemption of $3,000, plus an added $1,000 for all his dependents, collectively.

That meant each taxpayer with at least one dependent began his tax return with 4,000 in exempt income. Considering the income levels of 1913, few taxpayers paid any taxes at all. Sorry, not even the most optimistic tax cutter expects to see that day again.

Too Cheap

By JIM BISHOP

There is a word for Clement: cheap. He was bald and proper, a man with a blond mustache big enough to wax a car. He referred to himself as thrifty. There were two other tellers in that bank who would tell you that Clement was so tight his fingers squeaked when he paid bus fare.

He thought they were jealous. He dressed conservatively, always wrote the name "Calvin Coolidge" at all presidential elections, evinced the proper note of interest and amiability toward bank customers, and never dated a woman.

Two, he said, could not live as cheaply as one. Arithmetically, two could not live as cheaply as two even if the wife had a job. If she earned less than her husband, Clement intoned over his homemade cheese sandwich and glass of water, the husband would be operating at a loss.

No. No woman for Clement. He was indeed a male spinster. Of course, if some wealthy woman gave him a friendly smile, he might forget that he was 44 and over the hill. Happily, few women rich or poor ever glanced at Clement.

The bank employees barely nodded to Clement. A junior clerk named Leif Axelsen tried to make friends. He was rebuffed, but, being young, he thought that Clement was a lonely, middle-aged man.

"How about coming to dinner at my house?" Axelsen said. The head teller didn't give the invitation a count of two. "No, thank you," he said. "If I go to your house, it is only proper that I invite you to mine. No, Leif. I enjoy solitude. Besides, they say you have two noisy little children."

Those who pried were poor detectives. No one saw the man after hours. They knew he had a small apartment with shabby furniture left by his mother. They also knew that he saw a movie now and then because the theater manager left passes.

He told everyone that he would not buy a television set. "Instead," he said, "I have a library card." Young Axelsen shook his head. "What do you do with your salary?" he said. Clement sniffed. "I buy sound stocks."

He became the man nobody knew. The bank examiners arrived at irregular intervals. The veterans knew that it was a waste of time going over Clement's books because he was always balanced within a few cents.

In fact, the most exciting moment in 18 years occurred when an examiner dropped a ledger on a secretary's foot. The current years was different. The trees outside the bank were being stripped of russet and yellow leaves by a cold wind.

Clement had watched the examiners at work. At noon, he took his sandwich to the back room and asked Leif Axelsen to watch his cage and cash drawer until he returned. The young man was happy to pretend he was a teller.

When Clement returned, he barely had time to remove the "Next Window, Please" sign before he opened the cash drawer and emitted a shriek. "Somebody," he yelled, "has robbed the bank. Quick," he shouted to the policeman, "nobody in or out."

Customers froze. Bank officers came running. So did the examiners. They said that they had examined the cash, and it was intact. A little frantic counting, and it was obvious that almost $4,000 was gone.

It couldn't have been Clement. Everyone knew that. He hadn't left the premises. After much shouting of, "Be calm. Everybody quiet down," suspicion fell on Leif Axelsen. Clement moaned. "The truth is that the cash was all right when I left here for the back office. I asked Leif to watch this cage for me," he sighed. "He is the only one —"

The police were called. Axelsen burst into tears. "Clement is right," he said. "I never stole a dime in my life and I haven't taken anything now. But it's true. I was the only person in that cage."

The young man was booked on suspicion of grand larceny. A lieutenant said, "I believe that Axelsen boy. I don't know why. He practically handed himself up to us." The lieutenant hung around the bank for days.

One afternoon he walked into Clement's cage grinning. "The case is solved," he said. "I thought you'd like to know." Clement hung his bald head. "I feel so sorry for his wife and children," he murmured.

"No," the cop said. "Save your pity for yourself. You took the money before lunch, shoved it into a bank envelope, and mailed it to your apartment. It has just come back, marked '13 cents in postage due.'"

Negotiators Okay Tax On Large Cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter can claim an important victory in congressional negotiators' approval of a tax on fuel-wasting cars. But a final agreement on the toughest energy problems seems as elusive as ever.

If accepted by a second conference committee and then by the House and Senate, the auto tax would cost buyers of inefficient 1979-model cars up to $550, a figure that would soar to as much as $3,850 on 1985 models.

The tax was approved Wednesday by the conference committee on energy taxes. Another part of the compromise approved by the committee would allow the 19 million motorists who itemize income tax deductions to continue to take a deduction for state and local gasoline taxes. The House had voted to end that tax break.

Even with those agreements, it seems unlikely that Congress will be able to wrap up work this year on Carter's energy program.

The two energy conference committees still face the toughest issues of all — the price of natural gas, a tax on domestic crude oil to force conservation and the distribution of revenues from that tax.

There appears to be a hardening of positions on key issues.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio,

who supports Carter's House-approved plan to keep federal controls on the price of natural gas, said, "We have no leeway in our position, absolutely no flexibility."

Rep. Anthony Moffett, D-Conn., said an increasing number of House members "would certainly rather have no bill than to move too far toward deregulation" of natural gas prices, which is favored by the Senate.

And Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the chief Senate delegate at the tax committee, was sharply critical of the Carter administration for what he called its refusal to compromise on giving the oil and gas industry additional incentives to increase production.

The House-Senate panel considering natural gas faced another session today with little prospect of progress.

The tax panel, after approving the auto tax, adjourned until next week to give staff members time to work out some proposals for taxing factories and power plants that burn large amounts of oil or natural gas.

The vote on the auto tax was the first major agreement reached by the tax conferees in 11 days.

The tax is not expected to save a great deal of energy, only about 175,000 barrels of oil a day compared to current U.S. consumption of 18 million barrels a day. But backers view the tax as a highly visible tool to make Americans aware of the need to conserve fuel.

The tax would be paid directly by the buyer of any car that does not meet minimum standards. It would be in addition to a heavy fine on any manufacturer whose fleet of new cars did not meet mileage standards. While the manufacturer would have to pay that penalty, it would be passed along to customers as higher car prices.

School Financing Ruling Studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Board of Education will consider at its Monday meeting whether to appeal a common pleas court judge's ruling that the state's system for financing public schools is unconstitutional.

Judge Paul Riley threw out the equal yield formula, effective next July 1, in a Hamilton County Common Pleas Court ruling that it denies children equal protection of the law.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The confusion about arthritis, rheumatism, rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis is evident in the letters I receive from readers. classification of arthritis and related disorders made by the American Rheumatism Association lists about one hundred variations, each of which has its own signs, symptoms and characteristics.

Arthritis and rheumatism are often wrongly substituted for each other. Arthritis is an inflammation, infection or change in any joint of the body.

Rheumatism is a vague term used to describe aches and pains and stiffness of the muscles, with or without involvement of the joints.

The two major classifications of arthritis are rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis. Rheumatoid arthritis is a chronic inflammation of the joints and the tissues around it. It occurs more frequently in women than in men and can begin to show evidence before 35. Even today, the exact cause is unknown. Although not all physicians agree with the concept of a "focus of infection" this is still considered a possibility.

Infections of the kidneys, the prostate, the gall bladder, the tonsils, the teeth and the sinuses are thought by some doctors to be the possible reason for the onset of rheumatoid arthritis. The symptoms of pain, swelling, tenderness of the joints in the fingers, the wrists, the knees, the feet, the ankles and the elbows characterize this form of arthritis.

Most sufferers are particularly distressed with the stiffness that occurs when they arise or after long periods of inactivity.

It is not surprising that mental depression and fatigue frequently accompany this and other forms of arthritis. Many complicated tests are available to establish the exact diagnosis.

Osteoarthritis, the cause of which is also unknown, is a chronic non-inflammatory disorder that involves the bones and the joints. Chiefly, this division affects the elderly, the obese and those who may have been subjected in their occupations to repeated injuries. Unlike rheumatoid arthritis, the pain of muscle spasms are more pronounced after moving about.

By a detailed history of the onset of the signs and symptoms of both conditions, and by the highly refined blood studies that are now available, the physician can distinguish between these two closely related, yet individualized forms of arthritis.

There is today great hope that the newly uncovered secrets about all forms of arthritis may yet lead to the prevention of these debilitating disorders. This is, of course, the ultimate hope. Today, the use of drugs and, in severe cases, the replacement of joints in the hip, the wrist and knee, are returning many of these courageous patients to a new life of serviceability and freedom from devastating pain.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It was viewed at first as another strategem in the bruising competition between the nation's two biggest brewers, Anheuser-Busch, sometimes called the king, and Miller Brewing, a growing, aggressive marketer.

It appears now that the issues may be more than a tempest in a bottle.

Involved are accusations of deliberate misrepresentation and exploitation of consumers, and claims that the news media and a government agency are being "used."

On November 10, Anheuser-Busch filed with the Federal Trade Commission a request for an investigation of Miller, its parent, Philip Morris, Inc., and its advertising agency, McCann-Erickson Worldwide.

Miller, said A-B, has been improperly insinuating that Lowenbrau, a quality beer that it distributes, is the original imported product that connoisseurs have savored for nearly five centuries, when in fact Miller now brews it domestically.

McCann-Erickson declined to comment, but the response from Miller was immediate and spirited. "We find it incredible that the world's largest brewer would ask the FTC to protect them," it said, adding pointedly:

"It seems apparent that the crown on the King of Beers must be slipping."

But a study of the 32-page statement filed by A-B indicates that its accusations were motivated by more than, as Miller suggested, Lowenbrau's success in the "superpremium" market, where it competes with A-B Michelob.

Perhaps most importantly, AB claimed that domestic Lowenbrau isn't even the same beer that it said the consumer market was led to believe was a successor to that which was first tapped from a keg in 1383.

It isn't, said A-B, even the same beer that was until recently imported from Germany, but which Miller now makes in the United States under a licensing agreement.

Contacted at the Lowenbrau Brewery in Germany, a spokesman seemed to concur. The domestic product he said, is "sort of a light beer that has been tested and found good for American tastes."

complaint:

1. German-brewed Lowenbrau is made with 100 per cent barley malt and no adjuncts. Domestic Lowenbrau is 72 per cent by weight barley malt and 28 per cent corn grits.

2. German-brewed Lowenbrau contains no non-natural additives. Domestic Lowenbrau contains potassium meta bisulfate, an antioxidant, and enzymatic chill-proofing compound, as well as kalcold to improve foam.

3. The German product is naturally carbonated, or krausened. The domestic brew is carbonated non-naturally by injection of carbon dioxide.

4. The German brew is fermented twice over a period in excess of six weeks. The domestic product is fermented once for a period of nine days.

When Miller Brewing was told that these parts of the A-B document might be published, it responded with a long statement saying that A-B was using the FTC and the media "to wage nothing more than a campaign of product disparagement in a competitive battle with us."

Said the spokesman: "To our knowledge this is the first time in the history of the FTC of a complainant."

"The fact is that this complaint, which you have a copy of, is not a public record, further confirms their use of the press in this competitive battle."

The spokesman added, "We are confident that our advertising, labeling and packaging is accurate, truthful and in compliance with the law." A detailed refutation would be filed with the FTC, he said.

Asked about the public versus private nature of the document, Stephen Newberg-Rinn, an FTC attorney, stated flatly: "It is in fact public." The decision to make it public can be made by the complainant, he said.

Because of apparent misunderstanding, he said, he had even called the Miller Brewing attorneys to emphasize the point.

After Miller Brewing files its answer to the complaint, he said, the matter will be reviewed and a recommendation made to the full commission.

SANTA and the PIGWIDGEN

By LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: On their way to find the Pigwidgeen, Claus and the elf come upon a sleeping giant. Tweedle- nees foolishly wakes the giant who starts after them in a rage.

CHAPTER EIGHT THE DONKEY

"RUN for your life!" shouted Claus. He tore down the far side of the mountain. "I'm coming! I'm coming!" sputtered Tweedleklees, leaping after Claus. He lurched over a rock and went slipping, sprawling, tumbling head over heels until he came to a stop standing on his head with both legs wrapped around a tree.

Opening his upside-down eyes he saw the head of the giant looming over the top of the mountain. The giant grinned.

"Help!" bellowed Tweedleklees.

Claus turned and saw the giant reaching out to snatch the elf in his gargantuan fist. His heart pounding, Claus unshouldered the bow the elves had given him to kill the Pigwidgeen: He shot the magic arrow into the heart of the giant.

The earth quaked and the mountain tottered when the great giant fell. Tweedleklees leaped to his feet and slid down the mountainside to Claus.

"You've done it!" he cried admiringly. "You've killed a giant!"

"Yes," said Claus gravely. "But I've used the magic arrow and it cannot be used again."

"Pooh!" exclaimed Tweedleklees. "You've three more weapons. There's no need to worry."

Then he and Claus continued on their way. The farther north they went the colder the wind blew. One day they met a witch huddled by the side of the road.

"Good day," said Claus. "Can you tell me please if this is the way to the place where the Pigwidgeen dwells?"

"I'll tell you nothing," rasped the witch.

In wrath, the witch blew powder in Tweedleklees' face.

"Aren't you cold sitting there?" demanded Tweedleklees.

"Fie on you!" snapped the witch and she covered her head with her cloak.

Claus and Tweedleklees went on their way. They had not gone far when Tweedleklees said angrily, "She can't talk to me that way. I'm going back and tell her a thing or two."

He ran back to the witch and tapped her on her shoulder. The witch withdrew her head from the cloak and Tweedleklees said, "You were very rude just now. You should apologize."

The witch's eyes flashed green and purple lights. Her face was chinless and her nose was like a tea kettle spout turned upside down.

"It could be," said Tweedleklees huffily, "that if you acted nicer you would look nicer."

The witch rose in wrath. She reached under her cloak and drew out a handful of powder. She blew the powder in Tweedleklees' face and muttered, "That's for being a butinsky!"

Tweedleklees threw his hands over his face. He felt his jaw dropping and his teeth jutting over his lips and his ears growing long and hairy. In a moment he was turned into a donkey and the witch had disappeared.

Claus had continued on his way. He was astonished when a donkey came up behind him and nudged his shoulder.

Claus looked around for Tweedleklees but there was no sign of the elf. "Tweedleklees!" he shouted. "Look what's here!"

The donkey threw back his great long head and brayed mournfully. "What can be the matter?" wondered Claus.

The donkey pawed the snow with his hoof. Claus looked down and saw he had stamped out two words. "It's me."

"Who?" cried Claus in confusion. And then he groaned, "Oh, no," as he finally understood.

Tomorrow: The Snake Nest

Pickaway County CAP At Maxwell AFB

It has been announced that the Ohio Wing of the Civil Air Patrol will conduct a field trip to Maxwell AFB in Montgomery, Alabama.

The unit departed this afternoon at 4 p.m., and is slated to return Sunday. Both departure and return will be at Rickenbacker Air Force Base near Lockbourne. The flight will be made on a C-123.

Participating in the exercise will be the Pickaway County Composite Squadron 1004.

Fairfield Man Wins Lottery

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Coggin, 64, of Fairfield said he felt "like a winner all the way" as he appeared on the Ohio Lottery television show Thursday night. His feeling was right. He won $25,000.

The retired maintenance foreman said he was "on Cloud Nine, right on top," after his big win. Coggin said "I felt like a winner all the way. I couldn't think anything but positively."

Coggin said he had been planning a trip to Hawaii anyway and the big win makes those plans solid.

A weekly buyer of lottery tickets, Coggin said he bought the winning one at a drivethrough beverage store in Fairfield. He is the father of four, the grandfather of nine, and expects another grandchild soon.

Other winners Thursday were: Willie Bewley of Indianapolis, $7,100; Jackie Sturm of Louisville, Ohio, $7,400; and Mike Gregory of Shelby, $8,500. Linda Freeman of Columbus retired as champion with her $25,000 in winnings from last week.

The TV Bonus winners were: Linus Feldbush of Bolivar, $50,000; Thomas Young of Cleveland, $10,000; and J.F. Walsh of Columbus, $5,000.

Food For Thought

STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS

1/2 cup vacuum packed wheat germ (regular)

chopped green onion

1/2 teaspoon basil, crumbled

1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

1/4 cup melted butter

2 teaspoons chicken seasoned stock base

2 tablespoons flour

3/4 cup chablis or other white wine

1/2 cup half and half

2 whole chicken breasts, halved and boned

1 tablespoon butter for frying

Mix wheat germ, onion, basil and garlic powder into melted butter.

Combine stock base and flour, gradually add wine and half and half.

Stir until smooth. Add 1 tablespoon sauce to wheat germ mixture and set remainder aside.

Place chicken breasts skin side down on board. (If desired skin may be removed.) Cover with waxed paper and flatten with mallet. Place equal amount of wheat germ stuffing in center of each chicken breast. Roll breasts around stuffing. Fasten with picks.

Brown chicken rolls in 1 tablespoon butter in skillet over medium high heat. Transfer to 1-1/2 quart baking dish. Pour wine sauce over chicken. Cover. Bake at 400 F. 45 to 50 minutes or until tender. Remove picks.

Makes 4 servings.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail VanBuren

Families Anonymous Helped This Mother

DEAR ABBY: In answer to CURRENTLY IN LIMBO, who was sure her well-known husband was on drugs but didn't know what to do about it, you were absolutely right! He must admit that he needs help before anything can be done for him.

But what about the wife? She's going out of her mind worrying about him. A few years ago I was in a similar situation — only it was my son who was on drugs. Then I discovered FAMILIES ANONYMOUS.

After attending one meeting I had my first good night's sleep in years! From other members who had experienced the agonies I had been through, I learned how to handle my son. When he saw the change in my attitude, his attitude began to change and so did he. It was just like a miracle!

He is now clean and happily married, and best of all, we are a loving family.

Abby, please check us out and tell your readers about this wonderful group.

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: I have checked you out, and know that you are a legitimate self-help group. There are no dues or fees, no forms to fill out, no formal sign-ups, no last names and visitors are welcome.

For the location of a meeting in your area, write: Families Anonymous, Inc., P.O. Box No. 344, Torrance, Calif. 90501, and please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for their response as they are a non-profit organization run by volunteers.

DEAR ABBY: Five months ago I gave my father a gift certificate to a massage parlor for his 55th birthday. Since many months had passed and he had not used it, I wondered why.

Then a letter appeared in your column from HURT WIFE, asking why a church-going, happily married man would visit a massage parlor. You offered a number of reasons. "Curiosity, lust, an itch for variety, fear of missing something, temporary insanity . . . etc."

I gave my father a gift certificate to a massage parlor for a perfectly legitimate reason—to treat him to a relaxing massage. The fact that he has not yet taken advantage of it, I attribute to prejudice such as yours. I think you owe all legitimate masseurs and masseuses an apology.

HURT SON: And to them I apologize. But my judgment about massage parlors is based on the fact that literally thousands of dubious massage parlors have sprung up in recent years. And the massages (unlike beauty) offered there are more than skin deep.

DEAR ABBY: You can do every elementary and junior high school teacher a huge favor by suggesting that from a teacher's point of view, the best Christmas or Hanukkah gift a parent can buy their children is a set of pencils with the student's name on them.

Teachers spend a lot of time settling arguments regarding ownership of pencils.

SEVENTH GRADE TEACHER
DEAR TEACHER: Thanks for a dandy suggestion. Write on, teacher!

In Military Service

Lieutenant Commander R. Daniel Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Robinson, 103 Reber Ave., assistant supply officer, is serving in the USS Kitty Hawk which is on extended deployment in the western Pacific. His address is:
Lt. Cdr. R. D. Robinson, USS Kitty Hawk CV63, S7 Division, FPO San Francisco, Calif. 96601.

Pvt. Gary L. Goodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Goodman, Amanda, recently completed advanced individual training at Ft. Benning, Ga.

During the seven-week course, students received training which qualified them as light-weapons infantrymen and as indirect fire crewmen in a rifle or mortar squad. Instruction included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. Pvt. Goodman entered the Army in July of this year.

DAVID L. RITENOUR

Airman David L. Ritenour, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Ritenour, Jeffersonville, has been selected for technical training at Chanute AFB, Ill., in the Air Force aircraft maintenance field.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Ritenour is a 1976 graduate of Miami Trace High School. His wife, Kathy, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jacobs Jr., New Holland.

Writer Instructs
Billy Graham

NEW YORK (AP) — A Presbyterian minister who has written a book about the Rev. Billy Graham says he believes the evangelist should avoid politicians.

"I feel that he should stay at arm's length from world political figures," David Poling, an Albuquerque, N.M., minister, said Wednesday.

Poling criticized Graham's involvement with several presidents, including former President Richard M. Nixon. He also suggested that Graham should avoid prayer breakfasts in the future.

Poling, a former president of the Christian Herald, writes for the Newspaper Enterprise Association. His book is entitled "Why Billy Graham?"

Carter Sometimes Corrects
Memos Grammar, Spelling

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter sometimes corrects grammar and spelling in memos submitted by underlings. Maybe he should turn his attention to their speech texts.

The office of Robert Lipshutz, White House counsel, once handed reporters a text in which Lipshutz reported that leaders of the developing nations are busy "irradiating illeracy." That's not a typographical error, or errors. At least, not here.

Lipshutz also was quoted as using the following ungrammatical phrase: "out of respect of the inherent dignity and man and woman."

Dr. Peter Bourne, the president's special assistant for health issues, is a learned man. But someone, presumably a speechwriter, recently had him spelling minuscule as miniscule.

During the campaign, Carter himself earned a reputation for precise use of words. He is not infallible, of course.

For example, Carter likes to talk about the "enormity" of the energy problem. The preferred definition of the word in Webster's New World Dictionary are "great wickedness" and "a monstrous or outrageous act; very wicked crime."

Carter presumably uses the word as a reference to "enormous size or extent; vastness." But the dictionary says this is "generally considered a loose usage."

In the first months of the Carter administration, foreign policy adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski kept himself so far out of the public eye that he was rumored to be reluctant to appear on television talk shows or otherwise make bid for personal publicity.

More recently, the president's Polish-born assistant for national security affairs has appeared on

Dizzy Plays
In Africa

MASERU, Lesotho (AP) — American jazz trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie and his quartet arrived in this southern Africa town to take part in the Maseru Jazz Festival on Saturday.

The quartet was met at the airport by Albert Mogale, minister of culture, on Wednesday. Traveling with Gillespie were guitarist Rodney Jones, drummer Mikky Poker and bassist Benny Brown.

Saturday's lineup includes bass player Monk Montgomery, singer Al Wilson and six music instructors from Rutgers University in New Jersey.

ABC's "Issues and Answers" and held a series of briefings for White House reporters, two of them on the record. He has not appeared a bit bashful.

That brings to mind former President Nixon's German-born assistant for national security affairs. Henry A. Kissinger also stayed in the background as a White House

DECORATOR — Lloyd and Dorothy Wardell are pleased to announce the addition of Noreen Smith to their staff of experienced interior decorators at 1260 N. Court St. Ms. Smith graduated from the University of Michigan with a bachelor of science degree from the college of architecture and design. Smith's primary position is in the area of window treatment which includes draperies, shades and the innovative woven woods. Customers may request an appointment in their home for accurate measurements of the windows. Ms. Smith may be contacted at Wardell's Carpet and Rugs Tuesdays through Saturdays from 9 to 5:30 p.m.

newcomer, but not for long. Should Brzezinski decide to "go public" on a grander scale, he can call on staff advisers experienced in the realm of journalism and public relations.

For the first time, Brzezinski and the National Security Council staff he heads have their own professional spokesman. He is Jerrold Schecter, former diplomatic editor of Time magazine, whose title is associate press secretary.

In addition, Brzezinski recently borrowed Fred Shaver, former U.S. Embassy spokesman in Venezuela, from the U.S. Information Agency. Shaver is expected to return to USIA soon, and it is not yet clear whether he will be replaced.

But Shaver's presence, however brief, has heightened speculation that Brzezinski will prove to be no shrinking violet.

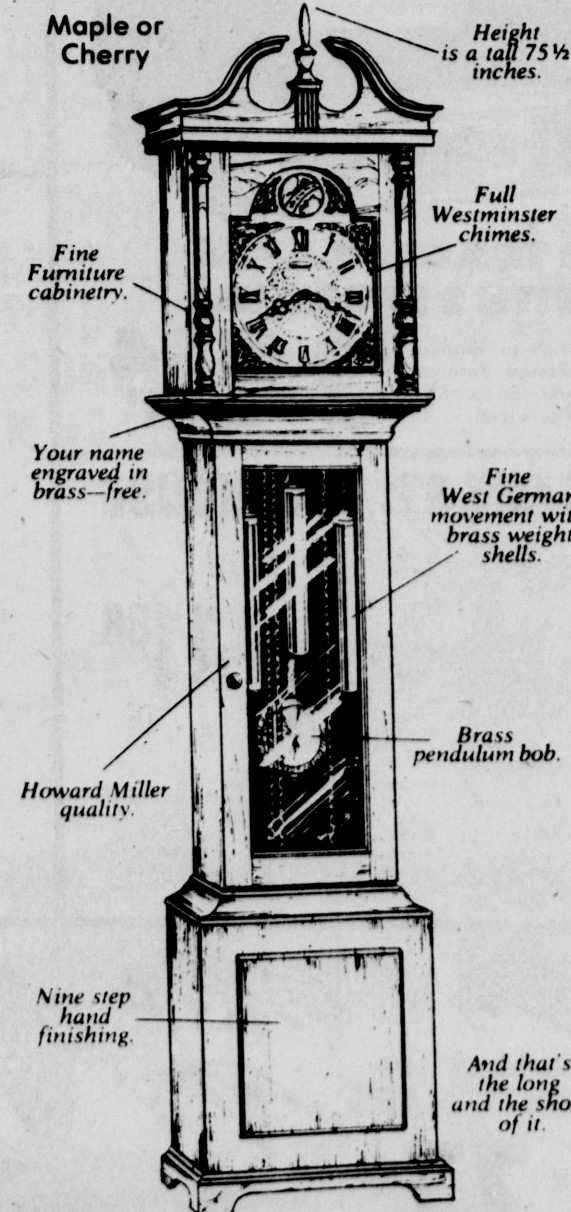

Past administrations relied on career foreign service officers to speak for the NSC. One of them, Richard Moose, has gone on to serve as assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

Income-tax may be a dirty word during the holidays, but like it or not, that time is just around the corner. If you like to get a jump on figuring your returns, we have the "J. K. Lasser Guide, 1978" available now.

Perish the thought, but IF you're having trouble with your 1978 model, don't despair. The 1978 editions of "Chilton" and "Motor" auto repair manuals have arrived.

On the subject of cars, two other new books will be of interest to car buffs. "The Grand Prix Carpetbaggers" is the autobiography of John Cooper co-authored with John Bentley. It's a lively memoir of 3 decades of automobile racing which tells the exciting inside story of this glamorous international world of men and machines.

Who hasn't dreamed of owning a convertible! "The Great American Convertible" by Robert Wieder is an affectionate guide to the era of "topless" cars.

If you plan to ask Santa for radio equipment to be used as a hobby, the 1978 "Radio Amateur's Handbook" is a good source for valuable information. This is the standard manual of amateur radio communication.

For the lover of facts, "Information Please Almanac" for 1978 is now on the shelf. Sports fans will find facts galore in the new "Encyclopedia Of Sports" by Frank Menke.

The beauty of the ballet is enhanced when you understand it. "Balanchine's Complete Stories Of The Great Ballets" by George Balanchine will give you this understanding.

An adventure in the marketplace! That's the description given to the "S.O.S. Directory." It's a listing of factory outlet and sample stores where you can save on shopping. It covers a large selection of merchandise, a nationwide area and useful tips on buying wisely.

"The Dark Side Of Knowledge" is an exploration of the occult by 2 professors of physics. Albert Shadowitz and Peter Walsh take an intriguing and enlightening journey into the incredible world of the occult. Using the powers of science to explore all kinds of obscure phenomena, they are fascinated with what they find.

Since we didn't receive any new fiction this week, may we suggest that you think about reading some of the Christmas stories available. Pearl Buck has a good collection for starters. We'd be happy to help you find something to keep your reading interest these long, cold evenings. Relax from the holiday rush with a good book from your public library.

Derby News

MRS. GEORGIA SWEET, 869-2462

You are invited to attend morning worship services at the Derby United Methodist Church each week with the Rev. Linda Stafford bringing the message. Services start at 9:15 a.m. followed by Sunday School at 10:30 a.m.

If you wish to give flowers for the altar you are urged to do so, this is a lovely way to remember a loved one.

The children of the Sunday School classes are having practice for the Christmas program on Saturday from 2:30-4 p.m.

Cub Scout Pack 847 will be present on December 11 at the Derby United Methodist Church morning services and will present the church with a charter. The church sponsors the group.

The attendance of area folks at the Darby Elementary School Christmas Bazaar was tremendous on Saturday. Every organization in the area seemed to be represented and each offered many lovely and useful items for sale. A big thank you to all who participated or attended and contributed to its success.

At this time of the year please don't forget those who are shut-ins and cannot be here to help celebrate Christmas with us this year. Remember the following with prayer, a card, or a visit: The Taylor, Redman and Furniss families, Mrs. Lillian Nance, Herman Rowland, Bill Erb, Bill Davis, and Mrs. Ellie Cox. In area nursing homes are Mrs. Flonnie Vance and Mrs. Belle Webb, Madison Elms Nursing Home, London, Ohio, 43140; Mrs. Minnie Ridgway, Pickaway Manor Nursing Home, 391 Clark Drive, Circleville, Ohio, 43113; Mrs. Nelle Bauhan, Winchester Place, 36 Lehman Lane, Canal Winchester, Ohio, 43110.

Anyone I have missed? Please let me know.

To Mr. and Mrs. John Musselman goes congratulations on their fiftieth wedding anniversary the past week. On Sunday they were guests of honor at a celebration held in their home. Given for them by their granddaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wilson, Lori and Ryan of Mt. Sterling. Guests from the Mt. Sterling area were Gloria Musselman, Gary and Joanne Cox, Mrs. Josephine Cox, and Eleanor Alkire. Guests from Columbus were Helen and Bill Cox, Elmer Cox, and Martha Lee Mantle. Dale, Joyce, Tami and Tina Haney, Jim and Pauline Musselman, Rip, Betty, Scott and Teresa Musselman, Ned, Betty, Mark and Mitch Musselman, of Ballah Road, Alvin, Etta, Jimmy, and Julie Cox, Harrisburg, Charles and Doris Musselman, Obetz, Tom and Florence, Tonya Jo, Mark and Philip Musselman, Grove City, Elmer Cox, Bill and Helen Cox, Martha Lee Mantle, Columbus, Fern and Warren Mantle of London, and Kerwin and Jody Deisinger, and Hassel Dewie and Lyman Hunnicutt all of Derby.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Pruden, Bradley and Brian, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Sterling, Tony and Jodelle, of Cleveland, called on the Archie Sweets one afternoon last week. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kinney of Gibsonburg called on the Archie Sweets.

On Sunday K. P. Mason and his Grandma Mrs. Archie Sweet missed very much attending church due to illness.

From the Southwest Community Church of the Nazarene, the Southwest Puppets performed at the Darby Elementary School recently with help from Dean Darst, Stephanie Fraim, Rosemary Lenz, and Laura Writsel. Then they entertained, with Selina Puckett, Linda Pell, Cindy Langford, Paula Horn, and Paige Allen at Monroe and Darby Schools in the play "Nobody Likes Me."

For the ladies, Southwest Church will have "R and R Weekend" Jan. 27-29 at Salt Fork State Park, Cambridge, Ohio. The cost for three days will be $10.00 and $7.00 for two days, including four meals. It's purpose: to encourage spiritual growth and fellowship for sharing and some study.

On Sunday, Dec. 11, at 6 p.m. the Southwest Church will present their last film of the Successful Christian Living Series. The children's Christmas Program is scheduled for Dec. 18 at 10:40 a.m. at the Southwest Church.

Heart Patient Playing Tennis

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Olga Cifuentes, an 8-year-old Colombian girl who underwent successful heart surgery last month, played tennis for the first time this week.

She was introduced to the game Wednesday by Colombian Davis Cup players Ivan Molina, Alvaro Betancur and Jairo Velasco.

The girl, who before her operation could not take part in any sport, was reluctant and shy at first. But after a few practice hits and instructions from the tennis stars, she had great fun.

Olga was born with a hole in her heart and defects in her arteries.

The operation was performed by famed heart surgeon Dr. Christiaan Barnard.

Joan Mondale To Visit Soviet Union

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Joan Mondale flew to Leningrad in the Soviet Union to see the Hermitage Museum.

"The visit is strictly private, and she is going to stay there for only a few hours," a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said Wednesday.

Before going to the museum, the wife of Vice President Walter F. Mondale met with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin. Both were in Helsinki for the 60th anniversary of Finland's independence.

"She will have no official engagements in Leningrad. She just went there to see the art collections she loves to see," the spokesman said of her trip.

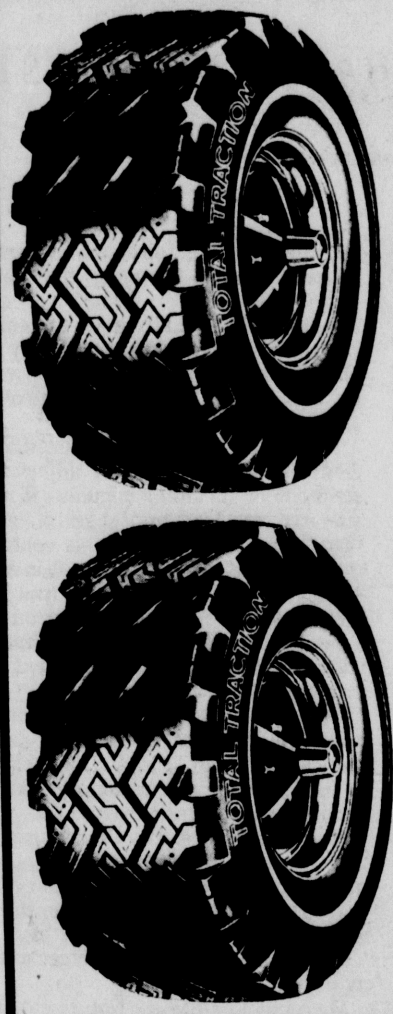

Mrs. Mondale was scheduled to return to Washington today.

OSU Commencement Scheduled Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 1,600 degrees will be awarded Friday, Dec. 9 during Ohio State University's winter commencement.

The 1,632 degree candidates include 997 who will receive bachelor's degrees, 388 masters and 149 doctorates.

Novice G. Fawcett, OSU president emeritus, who retired in 1972 after 16 years as head of the university, will address the graduates.

THE RADIO HOBBYIST

By Frederick Q. Maia
KKB-0924 - WSUT
Executive Director, American Radio Council

(Q.) For the CB'er, what is the most effective way to increase radio communication range?

(A.) All CB radios have an output power level in the neighborhood of 4 watts. According to Uncle Charlie (FCC) it is illegal to run higher power than this. There are, however, no restrictions on the type of antenna you can use. (There are height restrictions.) A good "gain type" beam antenna can effectively increase your radiated power and radio range considerably. You are allowed to place a beam antenna 20 feet higher than the structure on which it is mounted (provided it isn't a mast or tower installed especially for the beam.) A beam antenna placed 20 feet over a tall building or a tree using low loss coax transmission line can easily give you an ERP (effective radiated power) of 30 watts or more.

There are even lower loss transmission lines than standard coax type. Using open-wire "ladder line" or air-dielectric transmission lines (on a hundred foot length) can increase your ERP another 20 percent to 50 percent. Remember it isn't what your transceiver puts out in power that counts! It's what your antenna system radiates that is all important! It is an absolute fact that you can have a higher ERP with a good radiating system (and legal power) than you can with some (illegal) amplifiers and a poor one. It has been mathematically proven.

(Q.) Just what do all those fancy controls do on my CB radio?

(A.) Everybody knows about the on-off-volume switch, the mike button and the channel switch. The other switches, however, seem to confuse a lot of people. The fact is that in many cases they are not really necessary, but like the fancy car with all the "extras," sometimes it's nice to have them. The most common accessory controls found on most better quality CB's are:

Automatic Noise Limiter — Sometimes marked ANL or NL, this control limits unwanted pulses of static and noise caused by lightning, motor arcing, spark plugs and the like.

Noise Silencer or Blanker — Usually marked NB on the control, it is usually more effective than a noise limiter in that it can eliminate extra unwanted noise (to some extent) rather than just eliminating the sharp spikes or pulses.

Delta Tune or Fine Tuning — Allows you to change your frequency just a little bit in either direction of center channel. Helps to make the voice communications more understandable. Usually a Delta tuning control will allow you to adjust your channel frequency 1 KHz either way. On a sideband radio, this control is called a "Clarifier."

RF Gain — This is a sensitivity control that allows you to adjust the strength of incoming signals. If the signal is too loud and slightly "garbled," by backing off on this control, the signal will become clear. It is also handy for eliminating weak (but interfering signals) when a stronger signal is being copied. For weaker signals, however, you will want to increase the RF Gain.

Distance - Local Switch — is found on CB radios usually when they don't have an RF Gain control. This control is basically an attenuator in that it reduces transmitter power so that you will not overload nearby CB radios and be unreadable. Two-way communication is very difficult when the person you are talking to is in the same neighborhood and he does not have a way to reduce his CB transceiver's RF gain.

Microphone Gain — Not found on every CB radio, this control adjusts the amount of audio power being fed from the mike to the audio stage of your transceiver. It increases (or decreases) talk power. CB radio operators should be very careful not to overmodulate their sets and cause "bleedover" onto other channels.

"S" Meter — This is a front panel meter that serves a two fold purpose. It allows you to know that you are "talking" over the air on transmit and gives a relative incoming signal strength reading on received signals.

There are other controls, such as CB-PA (allows CB radio to be used for paging with an external speaker); selective calling (a brand new feature that is being built into CB's that will allow specific CB radios to be called); AM-SSB (switches that allow transfer from AM to sideband mode), and on and on... There seems to be no end. New controls are coming out daily it appears.

(Q.) How come you have to be 18 years old to get a CB license, yet a "ham" radio operator can be as young as four years old? Doesn't this place requirements in the wrong area?

(A.) Not really. In order to get an amateur radio license you must pass a written test on Morse Code, electronic

Snow Shoveling Can 'Break Your Heart'

A snow shovel may seem very innocent leaning against a garage wall or hanging on a hook in the basement, but in the wrong hands, usually those of an out of shape person, it can be a lethal weapon.

Kathy Tomlinson, president of the Pickaway County Heart Branch, says "Every winter following a heavy snowfall, our communities are hit with a flurry of heart attack deaths, most due to overexertion from snow shoveling."

Snow shoveling is a strenuous exercise. It may look light as it floats softly to the ground, but snow quickly packs down and becomes quite heavy on the end of a shovel.

"Anyone unaccustomed to regular physical activity, especially those persons over 45, can easily over do it," Tomlinson said. "These persons should shovel slowly and rest often."

The heart association advises that anyone shoveling snow, despite age, should take occasional breaks. Even the healthy man can push himself to the point of exhaustion or even heart attack.

Tomlinson said, "Following these heart association tips can help keep that snow shovel in your hands all season."

If overweight and, or out of shape, see a doctor before shoveling, even if no symptoms of ill health are present.

If you have a history of heart disease, it is imperative to see a doctor before heaving that first shovelful. Shovel before eating or at least two hours afterward. Always avoid undue exertion immediately after meals.

Don't make your arms do all the work. Use all your muscles. Those shovelfuls will be lighter if you lift with your back, leg and arm muscles.

"Remember, snow is much heavier when wet," Tomlinson added.

Wear warm, but light clothing. Underdressing may lead to chilling, while too much clothing could lead to overheating.

Tomlinson also advised against smoking or drinking while shoveling snow.

"Alcohol may give you a false lift theory and radio rules. (And at least 2 four year olds have passed this extremely simple test. They had to have the questions read to them since they were not yet in school!). There are no proficiency requirements to getting a CB license. The fact is that it is more difficult to get a "ham" than a CB license, therefore the age limit is dropped in the Amateur Service.

and lead to overexertion," Tomlinson said. "Smoking, added to the cold temperatures, greatly constricts blood vessels. That combination, along with the exertion from shoveling can be deadly."

According to the heart association, the best way to tackle the chore of snow shoveling is to go about it in moderation, or better yet, hire a neighborhood youngster.

Mayor Undergoes Hip Surgery

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Erastus Corning II, dean of the nation's mayors, was reported in satisfactory condition after surgery on his hip.

Surgeons implanted an artificial ball-and-socket joint in Corning's right hip Wednesday to replace the natural joint, which had been damaged by arthritis. He is expected to be up on crutches within several days, but may remain hospitalized for several weeks, his doctors said.

Corning, 67, was re-elected last month to a 10th term. He has been mayor of New York state's capital city since 1942.

Canton Teachers Vote To Strike

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Canton city school teachers voted 3-1 Thursday to strike Jan. 3 if agreement isn't reached before then on a salary increase.

The strike action was approved at a mass meeting attended by some 700 teachers after negotiators reported that the school board said it could not provide a pay raise during the life of the current contract, which expires June 30.

No increase was provided in the contract, which contains a wage reopener clause. Negotiations under that provision began Nov. 21.

Present salaries for the district's 1,100 teachers range from $8,800 to $16,544.

Al Rubenstein, president of the Canton Professional Educators Association, said no dollar amount has been demanded by the teachers, rather "something reasonably acceptable by both sides."

The system serves 16,352 pupils.

Fire Prevention Stressed With Holiday Decorations

COLUMBUS — The holiday season presents special fire hazards — hazards that could cause serious injury or death. State Fire Marshal Terry E. Drake urges Ohioans to take special precautions when decorating their homes.

The Fire Marshal's Fire Prevention Bureau reports that Christmas trees, electrical equipment and open flames of candles and fireplaces present the greatest fire hazards. To reduce the number of holiday fires in Ohio, Don Ryan, Chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau, developed the following guidelines.

When buying electrical lighting and other decorations, check that all electrical equipment has been tested by a nationally known and recognized testing laboratory. If lights are to be used outside, they should be approved and manufactured specifically for exterior use in order to withstand the elements. Also check last year's electrical equipment to be certain none of the wiring is frayed or exposed.

Use the proper size bulbs in your decorative lighting. Test the lights and replace any burned out bulbs before putting them in some hard-to-reach spot on your tree. Always turn lights off before you leave the house or go to bed.

When decorating, be careful not to overload electrical circuits. A circuit is overloaded when a fuse burns out or the circuit-breaker turns off. If a fuse burns out, do not replace it with a larger one; this will not increase the capacity of the circuit and will only add to the hazard.

Use extension cords only when absolutely necessary. Do not run cords under carpets, rugs, or any other combustible material.

Always use a fireplace screen and never leave burning candles or fireplaces unattended. Don't use your fireplace to burn large amounts of discarded wrapping paper; your fire could overheat and cause damage. Be careful not to place combustible decorations or greenery near candles or fireplaces.

If you have a live tree, make sure your stand is always full of water — a dry tree is an extreme fire hazard. Be certain your tree stand is sturdy and large enough for your tree. Avoid combustible tree decorations and do not place your tree near any heat source (such as vents, fireplace, television sets). Do not block doorways or exits with your decorated tree.

Marshal Drake reminds Ohioans that taking the extra time to follow these guidelines and check for fire hazards could make the difference between a joyous or tragic holiday.

Additional fire prevention information is available from the Fire Prevention Bureau of the State Fire Marshal's Office at 8895 East Main Street, Reynoldsburg, Ohio 43068.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY JACK RANDLE OF MARSH INSULATION

Because of the interest in and the need for residential and commercial insulation, we want you to know more about it.

We will not use material that does not list the following specifications, or does not have a warranty on the bag or an accompanying certificate of warranty..

....and we recommend that you do not either!

1. Brand name and manufacturer should be listed on the bag.

2. List of specifications should be provided:

a. Federal specification HH-1515C

b. Flame resistance test C-739

1. Class I—flame spread of 25 or less

2. Class II—flame spread of 26-50

(Anything with a flame spread greater than Class II should not be used.)

c. Thermal Resistance Test C-519/C-518

1. Information about "R" factor should be provided.

R factor — Thermal Resistance; the resistance rendered by insulation or building material to the flow of heat. Expressed as Fahrenheit degrees per BTU/(hour) (square foot).

2. The greater the R Factor the better the insulation.

d. Corrosiveness Test ASTM-C739

1. In addition there should be information about the corrosiveness of the product to plumbing and wiring. (A good product will not be corrosive.)

e. Government Standards

1. FHA standards—acceptable for use in FHA financed housing.

2. HUD standards—acceptable for HUD housing.

f. Surface Burning Characteristic—E-84

g. Density Test C-519

Unless these tests are on each bag of cellulose insulation or sometimes called wood fiber insulation, we do not recommend you put it in your home or business.

Mass Transit Systems Could Wind Up Transporting Students

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mass transit systems in Ohio's big cities could wind up transporting school pupils if major new busing programs are mandated by federal courts looking into segregation in the state.

Sen. William F. Bowen, D-Cincinnati, proposes this as an alternative to the state having to shell out millions of dollars for more buses and even greater outlays to hire drivers.

He had already introduced legislation to permit it when the education department asked for $2.1 million in state funds to buy 213 buses for the Columbus school system, after a federal judge ruled the city and state in violation of federal desegregation laws. The controlling board pigeon-holed it, for now.

Herbert D. Brum, the department's school finance chief, said exploratory talks had been held with the Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA), but was told that the transit system couldn't handle students because their school hours coincided with peak hour demands by other passengers.

Bowen and others said COTA's reason was invalid, because federal funds to purchase more vehicles for mass transit systems are available, and are apparently not available for the state and its school systems to purchase additional "little yellow buses" for the schools.

Although desegregation suits remain to be litigated — even the Columbus cases remains open — Brum estimated that in addition to Columbus, Cleveland may need $3 million to buy buses and Dayton $1.1 million. Similar demands could also come from areas such as Youngstown and Cincinnati, at some point.

In refusing to consider the Columbus

request, the board said it wanted additional information about the possibility of mass transit handling of school transportation, as well as the ability of local school boards to tighten belts and share some of the responsibility. Most districts provide busing for high school students but aren't required to under law, it was noted.

Joseph J. Somme, executive secretary of the Ohio House, soon may be a full-fledged, voting member.

He is rumored an odds on choice of the Stark County Democratic Committee to replace Rep. Irene B. Smart, elected to the municipal court bench Nov. 8 in her home county.

Somme, an amiable House employee respected by members from both political parties, served as former Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan's administrative services director while retaining his voting residence in Canton.

Members of the controlling board are mostly state legislators and they take care usually of those spending requests affecting a fellow member's home district.

So it wasn't too surprising this week when the board authorized a natural resources request for $10,000 to help plan a $1 million improvement of a state park golf course practically in the back yard of House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-New Boston.

Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-Bourneville, a southern Ohioan himself, said he thought "we should approve this for two reasons. It's the speaker's area, and if they can find enough flat land down there for a golf course, they should have it."

The request did get approved, although veteran Rep. A.G. Lancione, D-Bellaire, suggested a reason why it shouldn't be. Smiling, he said "the speaker is busy enough. We shouldn't encourage him to take up golf."

Flags Fly At Gallery

Come rally 'round the flags that are part of "New Glory, Part II: 'New Designs for Flags,'" at the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts Dec. 12 to Jan. 8, 1978.

The 25 original flags in this exhibition, all winners of the first nationwide flag-design competition, were created for specific organizations of the artist's own choosing, such as states, cities, the National Audubon Society and the Paiute Indian Tribe.

The goals of this exhibition are to mark the American Revolution Bicentennial, to reawaken interest in the flags of America's past and to inspire a higher level of design for flags of the future.

The exhibition was organized by the Santa Barbara Museum of Art and circulated by the Smithsonian Institution Travelling Exhibition Service.

The Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts is located at 480 E. Broad St. For more information, phone 221-68-01.

Bone Marrow Transplant Performed

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Doctors at University of Minnesota Hospitals performed a bone marrow transplant Thursday which doctors hope will save the life of a Cambridge, Ohio, boy.

Kevin Boyd, 11, received a pint and a half of bone marrow from his 8-year-old sister Tricia during a three-hour procedure, a hospital spokesman, Bob Lee, said.

Lee said both children were doing well. He said it would be about a month before doctors know whether the transplant was successful. In the meantime, Kevin will remain in protective isolation.

Kevin has aplastic anemia, which has destroyed the bloodmaking function of his bone marrow and rendered his immune system ineffective. It is hoped the transplant of healthy marrow will restore the marrow function and give Kevin an immune system that works.

Kevin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Boyd, was flown to Minnesota Nov. 20 after the family received private donations totaling more than $8,000 to help them pay existing hospital bills, transportation and housing costs in Minneapolis.

The Ohio Bureau of Crippled Children's Services will pay for the operation and the lengthy hospital stay it requires.

Kevin was at Children's Hospital in Columbus when it was discovered in mid-November that he had the illness. Medical officials there agreed he could get the best treatment in Minneapolis.

After it was made public that Kevin's parents could not afford to take him to Minnesota, offers of help poured in. A Florida man even offered to fly Kevin to Minneapolis in his private plane.

However, a commercial flight was used because the entire family had to be transported so doctors in Minneapolis could conduct tests to find the best candidate for the transplant.

Reverend Ike Keeps Financial Affairs Secret

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Somewhere inside the anonymous, glass-walled office building, a receptionist answers calls to the unlisted phone number: "Good morning, 6410."

To people who accidentally dial or pass by outside, there is no hint that they have come upon one of the nation's wealthiest religious groups.

For this nameless, modern building belongs to the empire of Frederick Eikerenkoetter, better known as the Rev. Ike.

The organization operates with a secrecy about its own financial affairs that oddly contrasts with its leader's exuberant celebration of the joys of spending money.

The studied obscurity of Ike's organization, the United Christian Evangelistic Association, is reflected by its headquarters.

There is no name on the door of the three-story building at 910 Commonwealth Ave. In the bare lobby, the only hint of what lies on the floors above is emergency switches labeled "computer rooms," "tape storage" and "key punch." But it is impossible for outsiders to see these rooms. The stairway and the elevator are locked.

"Ike's basic attitude is that the work that is done here is private," said Kenneth Kolman, the association's director of operations. "He has chosen to keep it very closed."

Estimates of the association's annual income range from $6.5 million to $15 million, but the real figure is secret.

The headquarters provides the behind-the-scenes organization for the flamboyant personal style of the Rev. Ike.

Requests to interview Rev. Ike were consistently refused and Kolman was very short on answers when questioned during a telephone interview.

Ike is a handsome, impeccably groomed 42-year-old black man who preaches the advantages of a positive self-image. And lots of money, Ike says, does wonders for self-esteem. "It is the lack of money, not the love of money, which is the root of all evil," Ike says.

He tells his followers: "We are not interested in pie in the sky by and bye. We want our pie now, with ice cream on it and a cherry on top."

Ike practices what he preaches. He wears $1,000 suits. His fingers glisten with diamonds and gold. He rides to his New York church in an $85,000 automobile.

At last count, Ike had 16 Rolls-Royces at his disposal. He has a choice of spending the night at a house in Redondo, Calif., an apartment in New York City or the church's parsonage in suburban Westchester County.

On Sundays, he preaches at his 5,000-seat United Church in the Washington Heights section of Manhattan. It is an ornate former movie theater filled with antique French furniture and valued at $2 million.

Ike draws a yearly salary of $40,000, but Kolman says most of the jewelry, cars and other symbols of wealth are paid for and owned by the church — the United Church, Science of Living Institute.

The tax-exempt church, in turn, is supported largely through donations. When the collection plate is passed on Sunday, Ike likes to say, "Please do not give change. Change makes me nervous in the service."

He urges followers to write to him, and much of the church's cash is contained in the piles of mail that arrives each day at a post office box in the Boston suburb of Brookline.

Kolman says the mail is put in sealed containers at the post office. Then it is taken to a bank, where bank employees open it and take out the money. They write the amount they find on the envelopes, then send all the mail to the headquarters.

"The money goes directly into the hands of the bank so that nobody in our operation gets their hands on it," Kolman said.

Although no money is handed at the headquarters, Kolman said the building is unmarked to avoid the threat of holdups.

The organization's books are audited by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., a nationally known accounting firm. They are also checked by Ike's wife, Eula.

"She comes in and helps keep me honest," Kolman said. "She examines every single expenditure. There is a great system of checks and balances within the organization."

Financial decisions are overseen by a seven-member board of directors. Bu Kolman said the directors' identities are another church secret.

Kolman, who was an accountant before he joined the church 10 years ago, said the board decided whether to accept investment suggestions made by him, Ike and the church's lawyers.

Most of the money, he said, is put into government securities and bank accounts.

However, he added, "There's not all that much invested, because the money is turned around very quickly into radio broadcasts, television and magazines. The purpose of the ministry is to get the philosophy across to the great mass of the people, and this is an extremely expensive thing to do."

Ike's sermons are heard on 85 radio stations each week with 15- or 30-minute programs, ranging from daily to weekly broadcasts. He discontinued producing television programs four years ago.

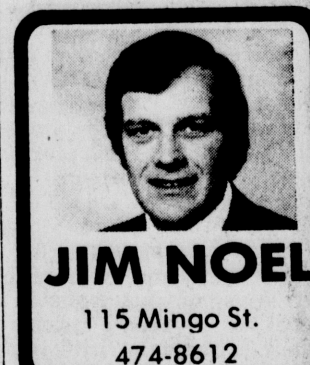

The church, founded in 1962, does not officially have members. But it receives mail from 1.3 million people each month. Most of them live in New York and the South.

Kolman says the following is mostly black, though in California they are 90 per cent white.

"Figures and information are filed with Internal Revenue, and Internal Revenue and the post office examine us very, very carefully," Kolman said. "If they didn't think that things were proper, we wouldn't still be here."

"What it really amounts to is that we do everything that's required of us. Beyond that, the Rev. Ike feels that it's nobody's business."

"Operations and hospital rooms cost a lot more than you think."

HOUSES ARE HIGH THESE DAYS — Chicago's oldest house which is being moved to a new site for renovation, is poised atop pilings above southwest side elevated train tracks over which it will have to be moved. The Clark house will inch over the train tracks on a Sunday when service on the line will be temporarily halted.

Everyone Knows Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everyone seems to have a theory on why Congress is deadlocked on so many issues this session. But no one seems to know what to do about it.

The various theories include changes in Congress, particularly the House, which has lessened the power of the leadership, and the fact that some tough issues that have come to a head this session.

Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. of New York, a senior House Republican, contests that "the issues that we've got to deal with really are sticky ones. As the old saying goes, if they were easy, we'd have dealt with them long ago."

However one tries to explain it, there is widespread agreement that the first half of the 95th Congress may be known more for what it hasn't been able to do than for its accomplishments.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., is a second-term congressman, a status that once was a guarantee of anonymity. But he never accepted the axiom that junior House members are rarely seen and never heard. He helped organize 80 moderates and liberals among the younger members into a bloc that wields considerable influence.

"A deal would have been cut on energy long ago if it had been left to the old guard," said Moffett in a brief interview during a break in the deliberations of the Senate-House conference committee which has made little progress in trying to reach a compromise on the non-tax portions of the energy legislation.

Despite the deadlock, Moffett contends Congress deserves credit for facing the energy problem.

"Two years ago, there was total paralysis in this town on energy," he Conable talked about House reforms and noted that "one committee chairman used to be able to speak for his committee with some confidence back during the days of unquestioned seniority and autocratic rule. Nowadays, he has to nurture the opinions not only of his subcommittee chairmen, but even of the rebellious and ambitious young men who make up his rank and file."

Energy and Social Security are two highly visible issues on which Congress has remained deadlocked, and legislators managed only this week to resolve a four-month-old battle over abortion. No simple theory applies to any of them.

Abortion is a highly volatile, emotional issue which has plagued Congress since the Supreme Court ruled that state laws flatly prohibiting abortions were unconstitutional violations of an individual's right of privacy.

That ruling and a subsequent decision that the government had no constitutional obligation to pay for abortions left the volatile question of the use of federal funds squarely in the hands of Congress.

Another question on which feelings run very strong is whether the federal government should regulate the price of natural gas. Deregulation is not a new issue.

The pro-and anti-deregulation forces have been fighting since 1954, when the Supreme Court ruled that the government could set prices for natural gas.

The year the court issued its ruling, Congress voted to strip the government of authority to set gas prices. But Dwight D. Eisenhower vetoed the bill.

That was the last time the deregulation forces prevailed on Capitol Hill. Last year, the Senate voted to drop government price controls while the House voted to keep them. The election-year session was coming to a close and no attempt was made to reach a compromise.

Legislation to deal with financial problems in the Social Security System has run into the political reality that no one wants to push for a substantial tax increase as an election year approaches.

Most cases come down to issues that were never easy to resolve, to traditional political pressures and to a changing membership that prizes independence above party loyalty.

Pneumonia Vaccine Licensed

ROCKVILLE, Md. — The Food and Drug Administration today announced it has licensed a vaccine against pneumococcal pneumonia, a common form of pneumonia.

There are no other vaccines on the market to prevent this form of bacterial pneumonia, which is a serious and sometimes fatal lung infection.

A similar but less broadly effective pneumonia vaccine was developed in the 1940's under the sponsorship of the Armed Forces, but its use was abandoned and further research ended since it was generally assumed at that time that antibiotics would solve the pneumonia problem.

Despite the wide use of antibiotics, however, pneumonia today is the fifth leading cause of death in the United States, killing an estimated 25,000 Americans annually. The type of pneumonia against which the vaccine protects accounts for a major portion of these deaths. The vaccine is effective in at least 80 percent of the people who receive it.

The company which has been licensed by FDA to sell the vaccine, Merck, Sharp & Dohme, West Point, Pennsylvania, expects to begin commercial distribution early in 1978. The brand name of the vaccine is "Pneumovax" (polyvalent pneumococcal vaccine).

The vaccine is expected to be particularly useful for the elderly and for people over the age of 2 with serious chronic diseases, since these groups face an increased risk of dying from pneumonia.

Pneumonia is not generally fatal in healthy young adults and children in the U.S., and these groups are not considered prime targets for the vaccine.

The incidence of pneumonia increases under crowded conditions, so the vaccine also is expected to be used in nursing homes and other institutions.

Preliminary studies suggest that the vaccine also is useful in sickle cell anemia patients, since they are at especially high risk from severe pneumonia infections. Studies also are underway to determine the effectiveness of the vaccine in preventing middle ear infection in infants.

Reactions to the vaccine, such as soreness and redness at the injection site, are common, but usually last no longer than 48 hours.

Since the vaccine is entirely derived from inactivated or killed bacteria the vaccine itself cannot cause pneumonia.

The vaccine was developed at the Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories under the direction of Dr. Maurice Hilleman, working in cooperation with Dr. Robert Austrian of the University of Pennsylvania and investigators supported by the National Institutes of Health.

Field trials of the vaccine, involving some 30,000 volunteers, began in 1973.

Unified Book Of Worship And Hymns For North American Lutherans Near

NEW YORK (AP) — The church that sparked the dream of a unified book of worship and hymns for all Lutherans of North America has virtually quit the project. But it nevertheless nears realization for the others.

They've agreed on the contents and set the publication schedule for a new Lutheran Book of Worship, 10 years in the making, for common use of most Lutherans of the United States and Canada.

A blending of "the familiar and fresh, the old and the modern, the traditional and the contemporary," says the Rev. Omar Bonderud of Minneapolis, an American Lutheran Church official, of the new book.

It'll be the first revised service and hymnbook for nearly six million Lutherans in two decades, and their closest yet to a combined approach to worship.

LE Board Makes Personnel Decisions

At the Logan Elm Board of Education meeting Monday night, one resignation was accepted from a substitute bus driver and three substitutes—one secretary and two drivers—were employed.

Mark Albright was employed to teach driver education after school.

The board adopted a salary schedule for cafeteria workers effective Jan. 1.

Board President Roger Hobbie appointed a committee of two board members and superintendent John Henn to study salary schedules for secretaries and other non-teaching employees. Recommendations will be made to the board as the study progresses.

Guidance Counselor Kobel reported to the board the various activities and functions of the department.

Dow West, high school principal, asked the board for additional secretarial help at the school. He also received approval to hold commencement exercises on the football field at 2 p.m. May 28.

Approval was granted for attendance to the following meetings: Jewell Hinton to Fiscal Management of School Food Service; Gary Weaver to the Academy of Newly Elected Board Members; Donald Bower to the National School Board Association; Gobel Branham to Managing and Auditing Energy Use; and for any board members who wish to attend the Negoti-Aid Contract Administration Workshop.

The board approved purchasing of materials for covered walkways leading to the pre-engineering classrooms at the Washington School, McDowell and the high school. Construction is underway, with completion scheduled by Jan. 1.

A resolution was passed accepting amounts and rates as determined by the budget commission and authorized payment of the necessary tax levies. The operating millage rate of 26.1 was certified to the county auditor.

Approval was given for school placement for a child with muscular dystrophy along with reimbursement for transportation and expenses.

The superintendent was requested to obtain soil tests at the proposed site of the tennis courts which are to be constructed by the Booster Club.

A discussion was held concerning construction of a roadway with federal funds between Tarlton Road and Zane Trail Road on the west boundary of school property.

The examiners reported on the state audit of school finances for June, 1974 to May, 1977. It was read and approved by the board.

The meeting was extended to Dec. 29 at 1 p.m. All board members were present as well as West and Kobel made," thoroughly in accord with Scriptures and Lutheran confessions.

In spurning it, a newly set up Missouri Synod review committee charged doctrinal impurity in some hymns, such as in the final verse of "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" and in the second verse of "Amazing Grace."

The committee also objected to a hymn, "At the Cross Her Station Keeping," saying it contained the idea that Jesus' mother, Mary, shared in his suffering on the cross. Among other things called unacceptable were some rephrasings in the ancient creeds.

However, the traditional forms of creeds and prayers also are included in the new book.

The head of the Missouri Synod review group, the Rev. Dr. Robert C. Sauer, conceded there had been concern about the implications of fellowship with other Lutherans, but he maintained this was not the central issue.

The collective resignation of the Midwestern-based denomination's worship commissioners was only the latest such upheaval in that denomination as it pushed its drive for tighter adherence to its positions apart from other Lutherans.

Close to 200 congregations with about 100,000 members have pulled out of the denomination in its pressure for Biblical literalism that previously had led to a walkout of professors and formation of a separate seminary in St. Louis.

The denomination's convention last July declared a state of "protesting fellowship" toward a sister body, the American Lutheran Church, because of its ordination of women and ecumenical links with other Christians.

Despite Missouri's aloofness, however, most of the rest of American Lutheranism has strongly ratified the new worship book, and set a publishing schedule making it available as of the first Sunday in Advent next year, Dec. 3, 1978.

Containing 544 hymns, old and new, the book also will include orders for various worship services and festivals.

For two U.S. denominations, the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America, along with the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada, the book will vitalize a new bond at a basic point — in worship and song.

Presbyterian Minister To Be Installed

The Rev. Edward A. Clydesdale will be installed as pastor of the Presbyterian Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m. by the Presbytery of Scioto Valley.

The message for the evening, "Go and Tell," will be delivered by Dr. Hugh Bean Evans, executive Presbyter of the Scioto Valley Presbytery. Also sharing in the service: Rev. Jack L. Pursell, vice-moderator of the Scioto Valley Presbytery, Rev. Henry A. Walters, previous pastor of the church, Dr. Frank J. Irvine, who served as interim pastor, Rev. James Grove of the First Presbyterian Church of Chillicothe, Rev. Julian Taggart of the Amanda Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Mary Orr, elder of the Kingston Presbyterian Church and Mr. J. C. Simpson, clerk of session of the Circleville Church.

An informal reception following the service is being prepared by the Women's Association. The community is invited to attend.

ODLC Remembers Holiday Policy

With the holiday season approaching, Director Clifford E. Reich of the Ohio Department of Liquor Control reminded distillery representatives and department employees of the department's policy on gifts and gratuities. The policy states:

"No employee of the Department of Liquor Control shall solicit or accept any reward, gratuity, gift of any nature, payment or compensation for any services rendered except his or her regular salary."

The Director sent letters to liquor vendors and employees this week reminding them of the gratuities policy.

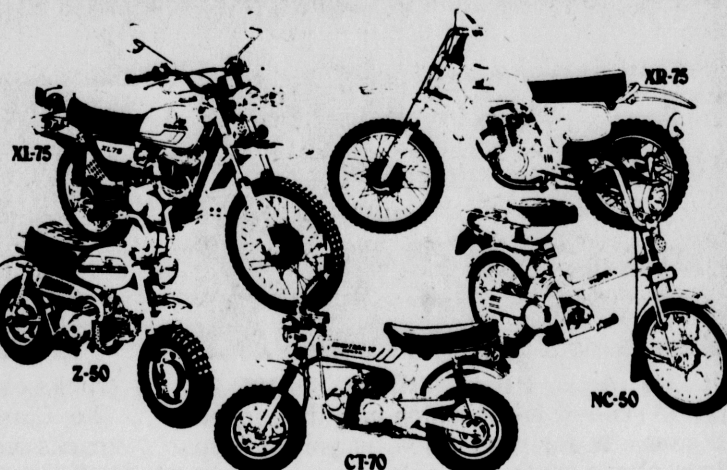

Director Reich said the policy was instituted shortly after he assumed his position in January, 1975. He said that both employees and the industry have respected this policy and that he was sure he could depend on their continued cooperation.

"It is not necessary for any vendor to send gifts in order to do business in the Department of Liquor Control," the Director stated. "The only requirement is that they abide by policies, procedures and requirements established by law."

Willie's Dillies

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

One day this week we were sitting around lying to each other as always when the subject of high school football teams came up and various squads...past, present and future...were gone over with a fine tooth comb.

A lot of fine teams and plenty of top flight athletes have come out of Pickaway County and we are proud to have been a part of them and grateful for the many nice memories they have left with us.

One of the teams that stands out as we look back...and they have been plenty...was the undefeated 1970 bunch of Tigers from Circleville.

A lot of things are happily implanted in our minds in regard to this team but two things really stand out...Doyle Kiser's 60-yard punt return under the dim lights at Hamilton Twp. that broke a scoreless deadlock and set the Red and Black on its way to victory...The final game of the season against Logan who were 7-2 and at one time during the season ranked in the AAA state poll. After battling 0-0 with only 3:30 left in the first half, the Tigers exploded for three touchdowns to lead 20-0 at halftime and were on their way to a 38-0 win...And a headline that read "It's 10 and 0 with none to go."

We remember Dick Radcliff, one of the top linebackers we've ever seen, breaking his arm in the season opener at Grove City, and Jim Mogan and Mike Hamrick taking over the linebacking duties...and what a job they did! And Radcliff fought back and was back in action before the season ended to give the Tigers a trio of linebackers that couldn't be beat with a stick.

It was a great offensive line that opened gaping holes for the Tigers backs to romp and race through the opposition...And they had the backs to do it...Tom Bowers sending the pigskin into the ozone and finding Mike Webb like a bill collector setting his sights on a deadbeat...But, don't ever overlook what we consider one of the finest defensive units we have had the pleasure of watching...Running against them was like playing Russian Roulette with a machine gun.

We are proud to have been part of this great group and will never forget them. In case some of you don't remember...They lined up like this: offense-Ends-Webb, Gary Owens and Don Valentine; Tackles-Mark Davey and Bill Fowler; Guards-Gary Robbins and Gary Mogan; Center-Craig Allison; Quarterback-Bowers; Fullback-Dave Truex and Rich Speakman; Slot Back-Chris Long; Halfbacks-Tom Shea and Harold Smith.

When the defensive Tigers roared onto the field, sharpened their claws and dared anyone to come at them, it was: Ends-Fowler and Owens; Tackles-Tom Frericks and Bill Francis; Middle Guard-Davey; Linebackers-Jim Mogan, Hamrick and Radcliff; Cornerbacks-Truex and Valentine; Halfbacks-Bowers and Kiser.

Nine of these young men were named first team All-South Central Ohio League and 10 more received honorable mention. Coach Denny Williams was named AA Central District Coach of the Year and Webb made All-State.

Yep...It was quite a team...And if you don't agree...Do as they always say...Look at the record.

Our "fearless" forecast—We like to see Cincinnati win but we think the "Steel Curtain" will cage the Bengals.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Massive Baseball Trades Shock Winter Meeting

HONOLULU (AP) — An 11-player deal involving four teams and including such stars as outfielder Al Oliver, pitchers Bert Blyleven and Jon Matlack, and first baseman Willie Montanez, shocked baseball's winter meetings in a turbulent session of trading and executive decisions.

The mammoth trade among the Texas Rangers, Pittsburgh Pirates, New York Mets and Atlanta Braves overshadowed such things as the reinstatement of suspended Braves' owner Ted Turner, a new four-year contract for National League president Charles Feeney, an American League turnaround of a group seeking to buy the Boston Red Sox, and a $5 million reorganization of the Cleveland Indians.

Texas owner Brad Corbett started the four-way swap that changed the look of the National League East, made the Rangers a favorite in the American League West and began the reconstruction of Turner's hapless Atlanta team.

Corbett began Thursday talking a minor deal with the New York Mets when he discovered the Mets coveted Montanez, slugging first baseman of the Braves.

So, the Rangers' owner talked Atlanta into dealing him Montanez for reliever Adrian Devine, outfielder

Tommy Boggs and minor league infielder Eddie Smith. Turner was delighted to unload Montanez' reported $300,000 yearly salary for three young inexpensive players.

Now, with Montanez in hand, he talked the Mets into delivering left-handed pitcher Jon Matlack and first baseman-outfielder John Milner to Texas for outfielder Tom Grieve and a player to be named later.

Corbett, however, wasn't through. He had been trying all week to grab outfielder Al Oliver from Pittsburgh, one of the game's premier hitters. So, he convinced the Pirates to take Milner, and with Matlack in the fold, delivered right-hander Bert Blyleven to Pittsburgh for Oliver and rookie shortstop Nelson Norman.

It was a coup. Corbett had a fine pitcher in Matlack, much better than his 7-15 record with the Mets, and a consistent hitter and excellent fielder in Oliver. Pittsburgh got a good hitter in Milner, and the pitcher they so badly needed in Blyleven. The Mets picked up needed power in Montanez, and as Turner said, "we got some young players more interested in baseball than money."

It was believed to be the biggest winter meeting deal since 1954, when the Baltimore Orioles and New York Yankees engineered a 17-player trade.

Pittsburgh Favored To Beat Cincinnati

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Welcome to the playoffs, Pittsburgh Steelers. So long, Cincinnati... and Washington... and New England... and Atlanta.

The National Football League's postseason puzzle won't be completed this weekend, but virtually all of the pieces will fit into place after the Steelers beat the Bengals and St. Louis whips Washington Saturday, and Los Angeles, Miami, Baltimore and Oakland win Sunday.

Now for the long-range forecast:
—In the American Conference, Pittsburgh will win the Central Division title this weekend and, a week later, Miami will win the Eastern championship and Oakland will deal itself into the playoffs with the wild card berth.

—In the National Conference, St. Louis will eliminate the Redskins this week and, next week, will win the conference wild card spot while Minnesota takes the Central crown and Chicago gets nothing.

If you're mapping out your post-season viewing schedule, plan to watch Oakland at Miami and Pittsburgh at Denver Dec. 24, followed by Minnesota at Dallas and St. Louis at Los Angeles Dec. 26.

Looking ahead is fun. Looking back isn't. Last week's mark was 7-7. For the season, the figures are 117-51—696. This week's picks:

Steelers 21, Bengals 13
When Pittsburgh's defense has to be good, it is very, very good. The Bengals still are trying to find themselves. They'll find themselves home for the holidays.

Cardinals 24, Redskins 16
A few weeks ago, St. Louis was dreaming of a division title — or maybe just daydreaming. The Redskins' dreams become a nightmare.
4 Dolphins 17, Patriots 10
An Upset Special. We're convinced the Dolphins' defense is under-rated ...

almost as much as the offense.

Rams 20, Falcons 9
It's a meaningless game for Los Angeles — but the Rams still remember their season-opening loss in Atlanta.

Colts 28, Lions 14
If Detroit can't beat the bad teams on the road, how does it expect to win against the good ones?

Raiders 24, Vikings 13
A Super Bowl replay. With or without Fran Tarkenton, Minnesota always comes out the same way — second-best.

Bears 30, Packers 10
Here's the step-by-step explanation of how Chicago is going to miss the playoffs.

The Bears will beat the Packers and the New York Giants and will finish 9-5, as will the Vikings. Their division and conference records also will be the same (6-1 and 8-4). And because Minnesota beat the Bears by six points (22-16 on Oct. 16) while Chicago beat the Vikings by just three points (10-7 on Nov. 20), the Vikings will get the division title.

St. Louis, by finishing 9-5, will be deadlocked with the Bears in conference records—and because the Cardinals beat Chicago 16-13 on Sept. 25, they'll get the NFC's wild-card berth.

Broncos 20, Chargers 17
San Diego's been hot lately and Denver could ease up now that it's title is secure. But the Broncos need the momentum.

Seahawks 28, Chiefs 17
Did you know Seattle is first in NFC passing offense? Did you know Kansas City is last in NFC offense — and last in defense, too? That adds up to another upset.

Browns 23, Oilers 20
And here's yet another one. Houston's attack is hardly dynamic — especially outdoors.

Cowboys 27, 49ers 14
It's not the most thrilling way to end the Monday night schedule, but it could've been worse. It could've been

... Jets 31, Bills 23
... in which the Bills keep going nowhere without O.J. Or it could've been ...

Eagles 21, Giants 20
... in which Philadelphia finally manages to win a squeaker. Or ...

Saints 16, Bucs 3
... in which a Tampa Bay field goal is a moral victory.

Earl Campbell Wins Heisman Trophy

NEW YORK (AP) — When Tony Dorsett won the 1976 Heisman Trophy as the outstanding college football player in the land, Earl Campbell was in the training room at the University of Texas trying to ease the pain of an injury-filled junior season.

"I saw it on TV," Campbell said, "and I said to myself ... 'Someday.'"
Someday arrived Thursday night as Campbell, a 220-pound blockbuster from the rose fields of Tyler, Tex., won the 43rd annual Heisman Trophy. The announcement was made on national television to cap an hour-long-plus CBS "spectacular" that wasn't nearly as spectacular as Campbell's slashing runs.

Trailing Campbell in the voting were Notre Dame tight end Ken MacAfee and Oklahoma State running back Terry Miller ... or, if you prefer, Miller and MacAfee.

No one really knows except the accounting firm of Harris, Kerr, Forster & Co. The Downtown Athletic Club of New York, which awards the Heisman, usually lists the top 14 finishers, along with votes for first, second and third places and total points based on a 3-2-1 count, as well as a breakdown by regions.

This time, no one from the DAC seemed to know what was going on and every question about the voting drew a reply of, "I can't tell you what I don't know. There's nothing we can do about it."

The DAC insisted that no one from the accounting firm was around. CBS was incredulous.

"They (Harris, Kerr, etc.) are the chink in the armor," said a spokesman for the network. "As far as we're concerned, they're holding this thing up."

But this was Earl Campbell's night and nothing could detract from it, not entertainers like Connie Stevens, Leslie Uggams, Elliott Gould, Robert Klein and assorted pompon girls and dancers. Nothing could spoil it, not even gimpy-kneed O.J. Simpson's debut as a song-and-dance man, although his song-and-dance duet with Gould came out more like grunt-and-shuffle.

"I guess I'm too happy to cry and too happy to smile," said the poker-faced Campbell, who led the nation in rushing with 1,744 yards — he had just 653 a year ago when he was plagued by leg injuries and missed four games — and became the No. 1 ground-gainer in Southwest Conference history with 4,444 career yards.

"I deserve what happened to me tonight because I worked so hard," he continued. "Last year, I knew there was gonna be a tomorrow and I started working out in the middle of May. The Heisman Trophy means 22 years of hard work. If you only knew how hard I worked you'd say, 'Earl deserves it.'"

Campbell's situation figures to make him (1) an early selection in the National Football League draft next spring and (2) rich. First, though, he has one college game remaining when the No. 1-rated Texas Longhorns meet fifth-ranked Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2.

Then it's on to the pros, where Campbell hopes to "do what I've wanted to do since I was in the fourth grade. I think I've got a great future ahead of me if I take advantage of it."

Steve Owens scored 56 touchdowns for Oklahoma from 1967 through 1969.

Darrell Royal, now the head football coach at Texas, is the all-time interception leader among Oklahoma players with 17.

Baseball Played By Pilgrims

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Turner may not have been aware of it when he was skipping the 12-meter sloop Courageous to victory in the 23rd defense of the America's Cup this summer, but baseball and yachting are blood cousins.

They have been for at least 126 years.

For this piece of priceless information, we are indebted to Harry Simmons of the baseball commissioner's office. Harry is the game's VPICODUPIEEFODCA. Translated, that is Vice President In Charge of Digging Up Information Everybody Else Forgot or Didn't Care About.

It was Simmons who, a few years ago while rummaging through the dust and cobwebs of diamond lore, discovered that baseball, or a rough form of it — instead of being an invention of Gen. Abner Doubleday in the mid-1800s — actually was a vice of the Pilgrims back in 1622.

The revelation surfaced in an official proclamation by the then Gov. William Bradford of Massachusetts. At the time, Christmas was not a legal holiday for most Pilgrims, who regarded it as heathen. The straight-laced, highly religious Puritans, however, refused to work on Christmas Day.

Gov. Bradford bowed to the Puritans' convictions. Yet on Christmas Day, 1622, while leading workers into the fields, he caught sight of the Puritans "at play in the streets, throwing and stroking in a game called 'stoole ball.'" He was livid. He proceeded to dress down the offenders with an official reprimand.

"Stoole ball" became an ancestor of baseball as we know it.

Recorded baseball history also got a shaking up when Simmons, in his research, uncovered journals telling of black "freedmen" playing a game similar to baseball in the Weeksville (Now Bedford-Stuyvesant) and Williamsburg sections of Brooklyn in 1860, before the Civil War.

Jackie Robinson was 87 years late.

As for the dapper, swashbuckling Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves baseball team, he was a century and a quarter late in linking those two implausible of sports cousins — yachting and baseball.

When Turner sailed the sleek Courageous to four straight victories over the Australian challenger, Australia, off Newport, R.I., he was putting a reverse twist on some ancient lore found by Simmons in a yellowed and tattered book, published in 1868, titled "American Pastimes." It was written by Charles Faverely and touched on such sports as Base Ball (Cap B, B, two words), Cricket, Rowing and Yachting.

One name appears prominently in two of the chapters — that of George Steers. It was Steers who designed and built the schooner America for Commodore John C. Stevens of the New York Yacht Club. It was the America which sailed into Cowes in the summer of 1851 and — after her commandant had thrown down a challenge — beat 16 of Britain's finest sailing vessels in a race around the Isle of Wight.

An easy winner, the U.S. schooner's crew was awarded a bottomless silver cup by the Queen. This became the famed America's Cup, for which England and other nations have challenged over the ensuing years but never won.

During this period, a favorite pastime back in the United States was a game called Base Ball, borrowed from the old English game of Rounders, and refined, "a noble and manly game," historians said. Base Ball clubs sprang up almost everywhere, one of the earliest being the Knickerbocker Club of 1842 and 1843.

Another team was the Eckford Base Ball Club of Brooklyn, composed of shipwrights and mechanics. The team's star player: George Steers, designer of the America.

When Eckford beat Union 228 in its first game, Frank Pidgeon, writing in "Porter's Spirit, 1855, could not restrain his enthusiasm.

"George Steers," he said. "Everything he did was well. I fear many a day will go by before we see his equal again."

So went the early growing pains of our national pastime.

Not true. Researcher Simmons insists, that after the bloody Civil War, a dying President Lincoln called General Doubleday to his bedside and invoked him: "Our country is divided. Do something. Invent baseball."

Nets Late For Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New Jersey Nets fought their way through a snowstorm to reach Chicago Stadium and arrived late for Thursday night's game against the Bulls. Their shooting touch arrived even later.

The Nets missed their first 16 shots of the game and found themselves down 19-0 before Howard Porter finally hit a jumper to break the ice after 6:28 had gone by.

The Nets, whose 3-22 record is by far the worst in the National Basketball Association, never recovered. Chicago led 30-11 at the quarter and coasted to a 104-78 victory.

"We're not the type of team to come from behind," observed Coach Kevin Loughery of the Nets, whose latest losing streak is now at six games. "We missed too many easy shots and we're just not strong enough to play catch-up."

In Thursday night's only other NBA game, the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Golden State Warriors 117-116.

Wilbur Holland led Chicago with 18 points and Mickey Johnson and John Mengelt had 16 apiece. Rookie Bernard King scored 23 for New Jersey, but Porter, who finished with 13, was

Hawks Place Charles On Waivers

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Hawks, looking to save some money, have placed veteran National Basketball Association guard Ken Charles on waivers.

Charles, a five-year veteran from Fordham University, reportedly was making about $100,000 a year when he was cut Thursday to avoid a deadline whereby any player employed after that has to be paid for the rest of the season.

"It was an economic move," Hawks General Manager Mike Gearon said.

Charles, a No. 3 draft pick in 1972 who came to Atlanta last year in a trade which sent Tom Van Arsdale to Buffalo, had been averaging 9.4 points a game this season.

"That's life in the NBA," said Charles, a stockbroker in the off-season, of the cut. "What else can you say? I just have to go on to something else."

His departure leaves the Hawks, 12-10, with a backcourt of second-year man Armond Hill and rookies Eddie Johnson, Charlie Criss and Tony Robertson.

MacAfee Is MVP

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame has named All-American tight end Ken MacAfee the most valuable player on this year's football team.

MacAfee, a senior who caught 54 passes for 797 yards and six touchdowns this year, was honored Thursday night at the Irish awards banquet.

Ecclestone May

Return To Flames

ATLANTA (AP) — Tim Ecclestone, who injured his knee earlier this season, may be back at practice in three weeks, the Atlanta Flames announced.

The National Hockey League club had feared that Ecclestone, who has missed all but four games, would be lost for the remainder of the season.

The Flames said doctors examined his right knee and found only a slight cartilage tear which will not require surgery.

5 Girls Keep Basketball Stats

KEEPING THE STATS — Basketball stats this year are Kathy Clark, Diana Cox, Amy

By LISA LINTNER
The 1977-78 basketball statisticians are as follows: seniors Jane Cole, Kathy Clark, Amy Schneider, Teresa Tomlinson and junior Diana Cox.
Jane Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cole, has been a basketball stat for two years. Jane keeps all violations, assists, bad passes and turnovers. She says about being stat,

"We all get along well, and we have a lot of fun at the games."
Amy Schneider keeps the statistics for charges taken, fouls, field goal percentages, and free throw percentages. This is Amy's second year as stat. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schneider and comments, "It's a lot of fun. I really like it. I like going to all the games!"

Eighth Grade Cheerleaders Featured

By TERESA TOMLINSON
The six eighth grade cheerleaders were chosen last May.

Jennifer Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cole, has been a cheerleader for two years and is the captain of the squad. Her activities at CJHS include cheerleading, working in the office, and being a gym assistant. When asked her reaction to being chosen, she commented, "When they put the megaphone around me and said I got captain, I screamed and burst out crying." She added, "I was so happy I had gotten it. I think it's a great honor to cheer for such a great bunch of guys." Her likes include cheering and playing volleyball and softball.

TWO-year veteran Toni Lintner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Lintner, is active in cheerleading and band. Her hobbies include riding horses, swimming, cheering, and milking cows. When asked her comment on being chosen, she responded, "I was nervous when I was picked. It is an honor to cheer for the Tiger teams." She added, "I would like to say good luck to the seventh, eighth, and ninth grade basketball teams, and the wrestling teams."

"I really enjoy cheering and was really excited to be chosen," commented Kim Moats. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Moats and has been a cheerleader for two years. Her likes include gymnastics and swimming, and at CJHS she is involved in the band.
Kim Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson, is cheering for her first year. She is active in the band and her likes include gymnastics. "I enjoy cheering for the guys and being a part of the team," commented Kim.
Two-year veteran Kim Smith enjoys swimming and gymnastics. At CJHS, she is involved in cheerleading and band. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Quinn. When asked her reaction to being chosen cheerleader, she commented, "I was really excited and I feel great!"

Looking Back At Red, Black

By MELISSA ALLISON

Don Greenlee, a member of track 2-3 and football 3-4, is now co-owner of Circle Plastics and a member of the Emergency Medical Team.

Weta Mae Leist, EMS, choir, sextet, is now employed as a secretary for the Agriculture Department.

Kenny Williams, vice president of Stooze Club, is working at DuPont.

Bob Scranton, ticket chairman for both class plays, is a Pharmacist at Bingman's.

Phyllis Cupp, prom chairman, is a secretary at Bowling Stock Yards.

Jim Arledge, football player and track, is driving a truck.

Paul Allison, football and golf, is a truck driver for Owens Illinois.

Steve Brudzinski, varsity football and golf coach, took the golf team to state champs in 1956; he is teaching woods and mechanical drawing at CHS.

Mrs. Janet Boggs, who taught world history, now owns the Children's Shop.

SOS Has Busy Month

By ELLEN CHRISTY

"December is a busy month for SOS," stated club president Terri Strawser. Monday the club sold Charity Newsies for Kiwanis. They wrapped candy Tuesday for the DuPont Christmas party.

Wednesday the club will be participating in the Underprivileged Children's Christmas Party, which is held at the high school. The SOS Christmas party will be held Dec. 19 at the home of Judy Tharp. Members are going caroling at Berger Hospital and various rest homes.

Goods for the SOS Christmas basket are to be in by Dec. 19. Dance committees are meeting now to plan for the Sweetheart Dance on Feb. 11.

"I hope all of the club's members will get involved in these December events so that SOS can greatly benefit the community over the holidays," concluded Terri.

Kathy Clark says about being a stat, "I love it! I get to go to every game." Kathy keeps the shot chart, and this is her first year to stat. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Clark.

Teresa Tomlinson keeps rebound statistics. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tomlinson. This is Teresa's first year to be a stat. She said, "I feel honored to be a stat for the Tigers."

Diana Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cox, also keeps a shot chart. Diana says, "It's really fun. It helps me know more about basketball." This is Diana's first year as a basketball stat.

The stats would like to wish the reserve and varsity basketball teams the best of luck this year.

Student Returns To Circleville

KIM RIFFLE

By ANGIE ALLEN
"I like CHS, and I think it's a lot of fun," commented Kim Riffle, new sophomore at CHS.

Kim is returning to Circleville from Lakewood Junior High School. She resides at 154 Hayward Ave. with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Francis, and her two brothers.

Kim's hobbies are camping, fishing, and all sports. A big dislike of Kim's is homework.

Band Ready For Christmas Concert

By JANET SPRING

Have you been to the CHS music room lately? It really sounds like Christmas. The band and choir are busy preparing for the upcoming Christmas Concert Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The choir will be presenting several soloists as they sing, "Silent Night," "Masters in This Hall," "Christmas Song," and "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen." Harmony, the Swing Choir, will then perform two of their numbers: "Deck the Halls and All That Jazz" and a special version of "Away in a Manager," arranged to a Mendelssohn concerto. The choir will finish their part of the concert with "It's the Most Wonderful Time of the Year," "Hodie Emmanuel," and "Glory to the Newborn King."

The CHS Concert Band will be performing six of their numbers, starting with "Jingle Bell Rock," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" and "Cantique De Noel" follow with "Of Festive Bells and Ancient Kings," "Great Songs of Christmas," and "Sleigh Ride."

F. Allen Howcroft, band director, stated, "Coming from football season down to concert season, there is an interesting changeover in dynamic contrast, and it is interesting to note the prominence that the woodwinds now must take. We feel it is difficult but not impossible to have each instrument playing so you can hear them."

Members of the choir, band, and Swing Choir hope for a good turnout to this festive holiday concert, which is open to the public.

Merchants Purchasing Magazines

By DENISE CRAWFORD

Ward's Cardinal Market has purchased ten magazine subscriptions, plastic covers, and one metal magazine rack for the Circleville High School Library, according to Mrs. Karen Seum, librarian.

They received these subscriptions and supplies from EBSCO, a magazine agency which goes to different businesses and asks them to buy subscriptions.

McDonald's will also furnish seven magazine subscriptions, plastic covers, and one metal magazine rack.

Mrs. Seum will choose the titles. In receiving these subscriptions and supplies Mrs. Seum stated, "The magazines are used and greatly appreciated by the students."

Capital Grad Teaching In Junior High

MRS. DEBRA MALLORY

By DEANNA CRAWFORD

A new addition to the teaching staff at the Circleville Junior High School is Mrs. Debra Mallory. Mrs. Mallory is a graduate of Capital University, and this is her first year of teaching. She commented that she likes the town and thinks it's quiet.

As a ninth grade English teacher, Mrs. Mallory stated, "I get the basics in English and reading across because I think it's important."

In addition to teaching English she will also coach the girls' reserve basketball and softball teams. Her hobbies are coaching the girls' basketball and softball teams and reading. She resides on Nicholas Court with her husband Greg.

Counselors' Corner

The Engineering Technology department at Miami University offers instruction leading to a Bachelor of Science in Applied Science degree. Upon successful completion of this program, the graduates will be prepared to enter the engineering fields of manufacturing operations, technical services, and industrial marketing.

Otterbein College, in cooperation with Grant Hospital, offers a "2 plus 2" program in nursing. Upon successful completion of the first two years, one is to be prepared to write the licensing examination to become a Registered Nurse (RN). Upon successful completion of an additional two years of upper division nursing study, one will receive a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree (BSN) from Otterbein.

Representatives from Columbus Technical Institute will be here Tuesday and a representative from Hocking Tech next Friday. Interested students and parents are invited to attend these sessions.

Santa Visits School

By ANGIE ALLEN

Guess who's coming to CHS? Santa! Along with gifts, treats, and games, Santa will be at the SOS' Underprivileged Children's Party on Wednesday from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

Clubs at CHS are taking active part in organizing the party. Club's duties include the following: Annual Staff-party favors, DECA-name tags, EMS-invitations, Key Club-transportation, Latin Club-gifts, Red and Black staff-games, Student Council-Christmas tree and decorations, and The Curtain Callers will be presenting a Christmas play.

SOS members and advisor Mrs. Karen Seum have been busy planning and organizing the party for some time. Members Susan Crabtree and Cheryl Smith were selected as chairmen of the party and have headed up the plans. The SOS club is also in charge of transportation and refreshments.

So you better watch out, 'cause Santa Claus is coming to CHS!

Students Place In Contest

KATHLEEN HIGGINS AND KATHY BERRIGAN

By ANNA ISAAC

Kathy Berrigan, a junior at CHS, received first place in the county in the thirty-first annual Voice of Democracy contest. Kathleen Higgins, a sophomore, received second place.

This contest is sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States (VFW) and the Ladies Auxiliary of the VFW.

This year's theme is "My Responsibility to America." Participating students were to give a speech on this theme.

It was required for the students in Miss Joy Miller's Drama I and speech classes to participate in the contest.

Five students were chosen from each class. These students were Kathy Berrigan, Dawn Butler, Sue Frericks, Mary Gans, and Dave Marshall, who were chosen from the speech class, and Yon Bakalas, Ruth Baughman, Kathleen Higgins, Phil Jarrosiak and Kris Rahe, who were chosen from the Drama I class.

These ten students had to then present their speeches in the CHS auditorium and be judged by the English faculty of CHS for the high school competition.

Three students were chosen to represent CHS in the County competition. They were Kathy, Kathleen, and Ruth Baughman, a senior.

These three students attended a banquet at Johnny's Restaurant to compete for the county title on Dec. 1.

Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Higgins, won second place and received a plaque and $25.

Kathy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Berrigan, won first place and received a plaque and $50. Kathy will now compete in the district competition.

When asked how she felt about winning, Kathy commented, "I was very happy and surprised to win." Kathleen stated, "I was happy to receive second place for Circleville."

Pillow Fighters Make Better Lovers

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The harder a husband and wife whack each other in pillow fights, the more likely it is that their marriage is a happy one, a University of Utah study indicates.

A study of 23 married couples by four researchers indicates that spouses who wallowed each other the hardest with soft pillow clubs reported less discord in their marriages than those with lighter touches.

The study, designed to examine non-verbal communication, involved putting couples into a 6-foot ring. Participants were asked to box each other for a minute with the clubs, which were wired to show the number, frequency and intensity of the blows.

After the bouts, the couples completed a questionnaire to measure agreement on 10 marital issues.

Researchers said spouses who openly and vigorously expressed anger in a playful setting appeared to be closer than others.

LEGAL NOTICE

Pursuant to 12 U.S.C. par. 182, notice is hereby given that the shareholders of The Third National Bank of Circleville, 166 East Main Street, Circleville, Ohio, have agreed to transfer by purchase the assets and liabilities of the bank to TNB National Bank, Circleville, Ohio, a wholly-owned subsidiary of First National Cincinnati Corporation organized for that purpose. As of the consummation of the sale, TNB National Bank changed its name to The Third National Bank of Circleville, assumed all of the selling bank's outstanding liabilities to depositors and creditors, and will continue the business of the selling bank under the same name, at the same location, and with the same officers, directors and employees as the selling bank. The selling bank's shareholders, at a special meeting held on September 27, 1977, elected to voluntarily liquidate and dissolve their bank as a separate entity. However, this will not affect the continuation of the selling bank's banking business. December 5, 1977 thru February 3, 1978

Film To Be Shown At Ringgold UM

"Corrie: Behind the Scenes with The Hiding Place," a new full-length color release from World Wide Pictures, will be shown at the East Ringgold United Methodist Church, 17689 Main Street, Ringgold, Ohio, on Sunday. A single showing is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

"The Hiding Place," a true story filmed in Holland and other European locations, is based on the experiences of Corrie ten Boom, who, with her father, sister, and brother, provided refuge for countless Jewish families. A secret room was constructed in their home as a hiding place for use during Gestapo raids. The ten Boom's activities were discovered, and they were sent to prisons and concentration camps.

According to Kenneth Bliss, Director

of Distribution for World Wide Pictures, "The Hiding Place" has been extremely well-received, both by audiences and film critics. "Corrie" was produced to give people who have seen "The Hiding Place" or read her many best-selling books an opportunity to hear her share many of her memories about her life in Holland, her family, and her lifetime of service to others."

Bliss added that the film "offers a great lesson in the perseverance of a personal faith in a very dark and trying period of world history. Corrie ten Boom, now in her eighties, has a tremendous vitality, a deep spiritual commitment, and a profound love for her fellow man. We believe we have succeeded in transmitting a part of her zest, personality, and source of

Bliss noted that the film includes "interesting sidelights on the experiences of the cast and crew during the filming of 'The Hiding Place'."

The Reverend Michael E. Swanton, pastor of the Ringgold Church, stresses that the showing of "Corrie" is open to the public free of charge. Only a "free will" offering will be taken. "We encourage families to plan to attend together, for what we believe will be a memorable experience," he concluded. A nursery will be provided for those attending with small children.

There's beauty to the morning after a snowstorm, with the world turned white. The trees march in line like soldiers buried under the weight of their packs. Branches bend under the load; sometimes they break. But, more often they're resilient enough to withstand the storm . . . and still keep growing.

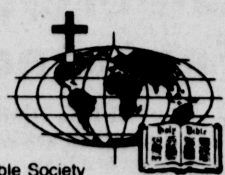

Can we say the same of ourselves? Do we stand up under burdens, or do our hidden shoulders snap and break? It might help us to bear heavy loads if we realized that we're never alone. The world is full of others staggering along under their own burdens, and most of them manage to keep going. And the lucky ones who have a true faith even realize that the pilgrimage has a reason, a meaning, even though they may not understand it.

Where do you find faith? You don't. It comes to you. And the Church is the first step toward such a meeting.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — It's been 20 years since Raymond Burr began a long run as television's most famous barrister, and the burly Canadian actor is as busy as ever.

"I did a cameo thing in '79 Park Avenue,' the television special, I had a part in a movie we just finished in Canada and I'm talking about two other movies now," said Burr, known round the world for his portrayal of "Perry Mason" in the courtroom series that ran nine seasons.

"I'm considering a two-hour special for television," the actor continued, "and I'm thinking about a television series, though there would have to be limitations written into it, like six months a year away from work."

"If I don't go back to television next year with another series, I won't go back for a series at all," Burr said.

Burr's next scheduled appearance on TV is as narrator of a public television special Christmas Eve, "Christmas Around the World." It's an hour-long program of live reports on Christmas celebrations in eight countries.

Burr, at 60, maintains the commanding presence that made him a symbol of justice both as Mason and as the wheelchair-bound Chief Robert Ironside in the crime series, "Ironside." It's difficult to sit across from Burr and not think of Mason and Ironside.

"People really identified me with law and justice when I got into the 'Perry Mason' show," Burr said. "In fact, I stopped driving my car whenever I'd had a drink. How would it look for Mason to be arrested for drunken driving?"

"I didn't live 24 hours a day as Perry Mason or Robert Ironside," Burr said, "but I always thought it was important to become vitally interested in the characters."

"Perry Mason" is as popular as it was—episodes still are being rerun in this country and abroad—for several reasons, Burr said. The cast was a good one, the writing and direction were superior, and, said Burr, "I don't think there's anything like nine years on television for developing a character."

"And then I think we were dealing with certain fundamental truths," he said, "that most people could identify with."

Burr acted on the stage and in scores of movies before "Perry Mason." Until then, he was best known as the prosecuting attorney in "A Place in the Sun" and the killer in "Rear Window."

Though crime was at the core of both "Perry Mason" and "Ironside," violence was downplayed in favor of reasoning as a solution to the characters' problems.

"The kinds of things on today are more of a reflection of the times we're in," Burr said.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR SATURDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Be careful in your approaches. Also, be enthusiastic about all endeavors or your efforts may not impress, may not produce the results you seek.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Do not let a desire for comfort or pleasure cause you to neglect duties important to your future. Be tactful in making requests, not demanding.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Do not fret over delays or disappointments. Meet obstacles with composure: YOU can overcome them all.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): If dubious about certain matters, give them further study and, if necessary, seek expert advice. In leisure time, devote yourself to a hobby for a change of pace.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Collaborate on a program with associates who have allied interests and principles. Some excellent ideas could result from a "meeting of minds."

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Friends, associates may want to change some plans. Consider carefully before objecting. You may see new values.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): One of your ideas which others might consider "visionary" seems to have solid foundation, so give it more thought and don't let others discourage you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): A day calling for flexibility. Don't adhere rigidly to a course when new developments definitely call for a change of policy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24 to Dec. 21): Your impulse to "get going" should be checked until associates are ready to join you. Forcing matters will only lead to dissolution.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): With further thought, you now see possibilities in hitherto barren areas of achievement so, if you're in a mood to take a chance, go ahead. Success likely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Good stellar influences. Especially favored: real estate interests, home improvements, family concerns and social activities.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may not be in the best position to take action on a cherished project just now, but that needn't deter you from keeping your plans in mind.

YOU BORN TODAY are roundly talented and will show definite leanings toward certain interests early in life. Follow your intuition: it is potent. You have an intense love of freedom and independence and may eschew marriage and domesticity for fear of being "trapped."

Where your career is concerned, you have many choices, notably in the business and (or) financial world; in music, literature, medicine, the law or science. You have an ardent nature, but are not particularly demonstrative; love the outdoors, sports and animals. Birthdate: Cesar Franck, noted composer; Emily Dickinson, Amer. poet; Chet Huntley, TV news commentator.

The sun is an average star. Some stars are nearly 100 times more massive, and some are only one-hundredth times as massive.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is LONG FELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

1. Card of Thanks

The family of Todd McNichols would like to extend our deepest appreciation and sincere thanks to our many friends and neighbors for their prayers, beautiful floral offerings and many acts of kindness. It has meant so much to us during the accident and death of our son, brother, and grandson. We would especially like to thank Paul Smith, Mader Ambulance Service, Wellman-Reams Funeral Home. Also the Rev. Jacob Lehman and the Rev. Lynn Summers for their aid and words of comfort. May God bless you all.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry McNichols, Tami, Tabitha, and Grandparents.

Brothers Keep Alive Art
Of Chairmaking

BOSS HOLLOW, ARK. AP — The government is custodian of a vanishing American wilderness. Jack McCutcheon is custodian of a vanishing American art. One or the other is going to have to give.

Jack McCutcheon is a chairmaker. In partnership with his brother-in-law, Charles Christian, he makes chairs in a fashion handed down from the earliest settlers of the Ozarks, a hardy, self-sufficient breed who made do by the bounty of the wilderness and their own wits.

Jack and Charles learned the chairmaking art from Jim Nichols, Charlie's father-in-law, who is now 73 and who, as a lad of 16, learned from his own father, and so on back to the pioneers.

Some years ago Jack and Charles were invited to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington to demonstrate their techniques to scholars of America's folkways. Such is the rarity of their craft.

It is a method involving warping the wood by boiling and then fitting the curved pieces together precisely, joining seasoned wood to unseasoned wood so the joints grow stronger with age, not weaker.

They use no nails or screws or glue. Most of their tools are hand made. Yet chairs made by Jim Nichols more than half a century ago are as sound as ever, and chairs made by Jack and Charles will be around long after both of them are gone. They are functional chairs, simple, straightforward, as honest in design as they are sturdy. "I have heard of a man in Kentucky who makes chair bottoms the way we do," Jack McCutcheon said. "I don't know his name. If there are others, I haven't heard of them.

"Most of the people who make chairs similar to ours, hand made chairs, use split oak for the seat bottoms. I really believe we're the last using bitternut bark. Nothing I've seen is as good or lasts as long."

There's the rub.

Bitternut trees, a variety of hickory, grow in relative abundance in this sparsely populated section of the Ozarks. But, gradually, more and more of this section has been designated as wilderness area, a legal designation which preserves the natural state of an area by prohibiting the cutting of a single tree.

On recent Saturday Jack McCutcheon, his wife, Lois, and their 23-year-old son, Carl, drove 15 miles from their home at Ben's Branch over sinuous mountain roads, no more than dirt lanes, to the nearest legal stand of bitternuts Jack had been able to scout out.

They parked at the mouth of Boss Hollow and then walked, or rather scrambled, a quarter of a mile along rugged slopes to the remote site.

"The bitternut isn't a regular hickory tree," Jack said. "It's really a weed tree. Timber people clear them out and throw them away when they set up a logging operation. But it's the only tree we can use for our chairs. No other kind will do."

The irony is that if Jack McCutcheon's source of supply is cut off, tauntingly, in the valiant effort to preserve the wilderness, a tree will live and an American folk art will die.

Utility Firms Eye
Consumption Rates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's utility companies will be keeping a close watch on energy consumption rates today to see whether their call for conservation in the face of an early winter and a coal miners' strike has been heard.

The bitter cold snap which has settled in for the week has already caused scattered outages and has produced energy demand so high that one supplier cut back electrical voltage to 53 counties on Wednesday.

Utilities renewed their conservation pleas from last winter with a call for special efforts to save electricity.

Since most of Ohio's coal consumption is for production of electricity and the United Mine Workers are on strike, the energy companies are relying on conservation to make their coal stockpiles last several weeks.

Robert S. Ryan, director of the Ohio Energy and Resource Development Agency, said the state has to cut about 15 per cent from its electricity consumption in coming weeks in order to make the utilities' stockpiled coal suffice.

"A 15 percent reduction won't make a substantial difference, but it will make some difference in the length of time our present coal supplies will last.

"We just cannot look toward our society without electricity, so we must do everything to save electricity," Ryan said Wednesday.

Sections of northern Ohio were the first to experience energy cutbacks attributed to the cold weather, but the energy consumers probably did not notice the voltage dip.

For three hours Wednesday, Ohio Power Co. reduced the voltage to its 600,000 customers by 2.5 per cent. The utility serves 663 communities in 53 counties in 53 counties in north, central and east Ohio.

Richard Blaes, systems operations manager for the Canton-based utility which is part of American Electrical Power System — the nation's largest utility holding company — said the voltage reduction could not have been detected by the residential consumer.

Blaes said the action was necessary due to a heavy drain on generators, War ended with the Treaty of Portsmouth in 1905.

Violence Flares At Ohio Mines

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Violence has flared at Ohio coal mines for the first time since the nationwide strike by the United Mine Workers began Tuesday.

A pre-dawn scuffle at Southern Ohio Coal Co.'s Meigs No. 1 mine near Pomeroy included gunfire Thursday. But a Meigs County sheriff's department special investigator was unable to determine where the shots came from.

Striking mine workers were picketing the mine and non-union mine foremen were inside the mine at the time of the shooting. There were no injuries or arrests.

Later in the day, a firebomb was ignited at Southern Ohio's Raccoon No. 3 mine in Vinton County, but authorities said it did no damage or injuries.

Sheriff's dispatcher Kathryn Davis said pickets threw the bomb near the mine complex entrance. Sheriff's deputies and Highway Patrol troopers were sent to the mine at least twice Thursday to clear pickets from the entrance.

Steve Hiles, a spokesman for the American Electric Power Co. in Lancaster, said the company had received assurance from District 6 UMW officials that the harrassment at the company's three mines would stop by late Thursday evening. Southern Ohio Coal is a subsidiary of American Electric Power Co.

Hiles said pickets at Southern's three Meigs County mines had interfered with access to and from the mines by nonstriking employees and vendors.

Early Thursday, strikers erected barricades at the mines to keep personnel out, Hiles said. He said two individuals complained rocks were thrown in their car windows as they drove through the area.

Hiles said the union officials said pickets would be limited and free access would be provided to the mines.

Negotiations between the 160,000-member UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association were to resume in Washington Thursday.

The union is demanding the right to strike at individual mines and a refinancing of the union's troubled health and pension funds. Coal operators, meanwhile, are demanding that the new contract contain penalties against miners who participate in wildcat strikes.

Membership ratification procedures for a new, three-year contract will take at least 10 days to complete.

Some 10,000 Ohio miners are idled by the strike.

RECITAL PLANNED — Mrs. Clara Teegardin helps her pupil Emily Hall practice "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" for the Christmas recital planned for 3 p.m. Sunday at St. Phillips Episcopal Church. The public is invited to hear a wide variety of Christmas carols under the direction of Mrs. Teegardin, organist and choir master at the church. Emily is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hall.

moved, forward all mail to the moon, 632 SE Crater, Lupas as moon dark side."

Costello began measuring. The letter "D" in Dallas was 7 feet from the floor of the boxcar. "Apr. 4, 1963" was 5 feet, 8 inches from the floor. That gave him an idea how big the writer was.

Next, Costello talked to Bressler. The mill hand told him he found the door of the boxcar shut, but that its seals were old and had been broken. Van Washenova said the same.

Agent James E. Cullen photographed the inside of the boxcar.

Now there were two choices: Assume the words about Oswald were written after Kennedy was killed. That would mean tracing its whereabouts since Nov. 22. Or assume the more ominous — that the words were written before the assassination.

As early as April 4? Earlier?

That would mean tracing the boxcar all over the country, talking to innumerable people, spending day after day, tying up agent after agent. . . .

Agent Lawrence M. Cooper in Detroit decided to do both.

From Martin Howe, freight service manager for the New York Central Railroad, he found:

—On assassination day, Boxcar 124475 moved from Detroit to Vassar, Mich.

—It was unloaded at the Super Food Co.

—Five days later, it moved empty back to Detroit.

—After that, it moved empty from Detroit to Newport.

Also from Howe at the New York Central, agent Cooper got an itinerary for the boxcar reaching back to March 4.

Sketchy as the itinerary was, it was 49 lines long, listed cities from Seattle to Weehawken and named railroads from the Western Pacific to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy.

Boxcar 124475's cross-country wanderings became agent Cooper's problem.

Agent Horace Beckwith got the job of tracing the car in Michigan since Nov. 22.

And agent Beckwith got a break. At Super Foods in Vassar, manager Frank Stevenson said Boxcar 124475, filled with Quaker Oats, had been sealed from assassination day until Nov. 26. On that day, it was unloaded by a receiving clerk named Russell Torrey.

Beckwith found Torrey in the Super Foods warehouse.

Had he unloaded a boxcar full of Quaker Oats on Nov. 26?

Well, yes, he had.

Did he notice Lee Harvey Oswald's name scrawled inside?

Well, in fact, sometime that Tuesday afternoon, before he had completely finished lugging the Quaker Oats out of the boxcar, he'd stopped working for a few minutes and written Oswald's name inside the car with yellow chalk he used to mark freight boxes.

At the Jackson Twp. P.T.B. meeting Nov. 21, the motion was passed to buy a counter top for the kitchen. Brad Thompson said it was badly needed, and that it was not possible to install a garbage disposal at this time.

It was moved that the group pay part of the pamphlet costs on the Westfall levy, and that Christmas candy be purchased again this year.

The room count was taken, with Mrs. Schreiner's room winning.

After the meeting was a successful Christmas Bazaar. At 7:30 p.m. Dec. 20, the classes will present a Christmas program at the school.

Division Of Parks To Hold Hearing On Rule Changes

COLUMBUS — The Division of Parks and Recreation of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR) will hold a public rules hearing Thursday, December 15, in Columbus to discuss rule changes concerning the operation and use of state park facilities.

The hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Building C conference room at ODNR's Fountain Square headquarters. Fountain Square is located just south of Northland Shopping Center at 1952 Belcher Drive in northeast Columbus.

Purpose of the public hearing is to permit persons to express their views on the proposed rules, according to Ralph Vanzant, Chief of the Division of Parks and Recreation.

The proposed rule changes would enable persons who are permanently or totally disabled to camp in state park camping areas at one-half the regular fee. They will also be allowed the same benefits as holders of Golden Buckeye Cards.

Under the proposed rules, Golden Buckeye Card holders will be entitled to reduced rates at state park cabin facilities from Tuesday following Labor Day weekend in September through Thursday preceding Memorial Day weekend in May. Currently, card holders are entitled to reduced rates from November 1 through March 31.

Additional rule changes to be presented at the public hearing would:

- Permit overnight sleeping on boats in designated areas for a cost of $2 per night. Class A or B campers and holders of seasonal dock permits will be exempt from paying a fee.
- Allow individuals not registered as campers to use a trailer waste station facility at a state park campground for a cost of $1.
- Permit dogs, trained for the purpose of aiding deaf persons and being used to aid such persons, in state park cabins, lodges, beaches and campgrounds.
- Prohibit any passengers, except the driver, from being in a motor vehicle while launching or loading a boat from a state park boat ramp.

— Allow the waist flotation device referred to as the "belly boat" to be used when fishing on ODNR-maintained lakes. The "belly boat" is prohibited for use in swimming areas and ski zones.

A copy of the proposed rule changes may be obtained from the Division of Parks and Recreation, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus 43224.
